Soviet Joins U. S. in Favor Of Partition Of Palestine

Two Nations Agree On Major Issue For First Time In U. N. Session

Round Is Lost

RUSSIA LOSES U. N. fight to put blame for Greek border strife on United States Intervention. Page 6.

Will Keep Trying

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

Lake Success, N. Y., Oct. 13.—Soviet Russia took her stand alongside the United States today for partitioning Palestine into independent Jewish and Arab states.

It was the first time in this assembly that the Russians and Americans had stood together on any major issue. Last Saturday the United States had come out for the "basic principles" of the partition plan recommended by a majority of the assembly's special commission that went to Palestine in the spring.

The Soviet position, like the American, dealt with general principles and left plenty of room for future disagreement over details. There were four main points in the statement read to the assembly's 57-nation Palestine committee by Semen K. Tsarapkin, 41-year-old counselor of the Soviet Embassy in Washington:

1. Historical arguments about Arab or Jewish claims to Palestine are beside the point; the assembly's job is to find a solution;

2. In theory a single binational state in Palestine would have been preferable, but it would not work in the present state of Arab-Jewish tension;

3. While the partition plan is sound in general, changes in boundaries and other details should be worked out by the same special commission which the assembly sent to Palestine earlier this year; and

4. The proposed economic union between the new Jewish and Arab states may be the road toward ultimate reconciliation between the Jewish and Arab populations.

American Consulate In Jerusalem Bombed

Jerusalem, Oct. 13 (AP).—A bomb was tossed at the United States Consulate today and an Arab informant said the attack was by a member of an Arab group constituting the "striking force" of the exiled mufti of Jerusalem.

The informant said Americans had been warned by telephone to quit the consulate before the bomb was thrown and advised to "leave Palestine." A consular official denied this, saying no telephone "or any other warning was received."

Two women employes of the consulate—one an American citizen—were injured.

Authorities said they believed the bomb tosser was a woman who walked into a guarded dead end street, threw the bomb into a consulate garden and got away. They did not attempt to identify her further.

Amid Mounting Tension

The explosion came amid mounting tension in the Holy Land over unconfirmed reports of Syrian and Lebanese troops massed on the northern frontier.

It was the third attack in recent weeks on consulates of nations favoring partition of Palestine, and the Arab informant declared the French and Czechoslovakian consulates were "next on the list."

He named the attacker as from the M. G. M. group, which he said was the "striking force" of the mufti, Haj Amin el Husseini, who has been in Lebanon to attend the meeting of the Arab League.

Another Arab informant had said the top Arab leaders in the Middle East had decided to start military action in the Holy Land

Looks Forward to Farm Life

St. Elizabeths Patient Held Sane, Freed After 26 Years

With the slow gaze of long dreaming, Ernest B. Williams, 62, looked forward last night to a new life on a Midwestern farm where he hopes to find peace and quiet.

For 26 years his home has been the hall of broken lives and tortured minds they call the maximum security ward of St. Elizabeth's Hospital.

Yesterday he was freed by the decision of a District Court jury that his mind was sound and that he could go where he wished. However, hospital officials still were planning to see if there are any legal steps that may bring him back.

The Washington Post
ERNEST B. WILLIAMS

Williams talked to reporters for The Washington Post in the office of his attorney, John J. Leahy, in the Union Trust Building. Leahy was assigned by District Court to handle the case.

Williams said he had not made up his mind exactly what to do next. He said he was thinking of going to Illinois where he worked for a time as a barber many years ago.

He has been thinking, he said, of getting a small farm somewhere near the Great Lakes where it will be cool, where he can raise a few chickens, grow some vegetables, and most of all have peace and quiet. He grew up on a Texas farm, Williams said.

Leahy said Williams has some cash on deposit in St. Elizabeths, and some funds in his brother's keeping with which to get a start. He also wants eventually to see his two brothers again, Williams said. One is a retired Naval officer, Lieut. Comdr. Joe B. Williams of San Diego, Calif., and the other is the Rev. Marvin V. Williams of San Angelo, Tex., according to Leahy.

Church-State Separation Group Formed

Protestants Launch Nation-wide Unit to Resist Encroachment

A Nation-wide organization to "insure the separation of church and state" was created yesterday at a gathering here of 60 Protestant leaders from all parts of the United States.

Presided over by Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam, Methodist Bishop of New York and former president of the Federal Council of Churches, the group appointed a nine-man committee to draw up the organization's constitutnoi and platform.

The committee will present the constitution for approval when the group convenes again "soon" in St. Louis.

Dr. J. M. Dawson of Washington, D. C., secretary of the group, said the new organization was formed out of a need "to resist any encroachment of the American doctrine for separation of church and state, which we believe involves religious liberty."

"Essence" of the organization, said Dr. Dawson, is found in a resolution unanimously adopted by the Protestant leaders, which calls upon:

"All Americans who profess allegiance to Protestantism, Judaism, or any other religious faith, and those who though professing no church allegiance believe in the American form of government, to join in demanding that legislatures and executives and courts shall defend the Constitution against all attempts to subvert it."

Dr. Dawson said that as a part of its program the organization "demands immediate discontinuance of Myron Taylor as the President's personal representative to the Pope."

Virtual Diplomatic Status

Objection to Taylor's role, he said, is based on the contention that it gives virtual diplomatic status to the Vatican.

Besides Bishop Oxnam, other Protestant leaders present at the meeting at Calvary Baptist Church were:

Dr. Samuel M. Calvert, general secretary of the Federal Council of Churches; Dr. Charles C. Morrison of Chicago, editor of the Christian Century; Bishop William Scarlett, Episcopal Bishop of St. Louis; Dr. Louie D. Newton, president of the Southern Baptist Convention, Atlanta; Ellis H. Dana, head of the Wisconsin Council of Churches; Dr. James A. Crane, general secretary for the Disciples of Christ; Willard E. Gidens of Washington, executive secretary for the National Education Association, and E. M. Rogers, also of Washington, representing the Supreme Council of the Scotish Rite.

Congressmen Fired Upon In Greece

Athens, Oct. 13 (AP).—Representatives Olin E. Teague (D., Tex.) and Donald L. Jackson (R., Calif.), were fired on today by mortals north of Kilkis, Greece, near the juncture with Bulgaria and Yugoslavia, but escaped an injury, an American Embassy spokesman announced tonight.

Teague and Jackson are members of a House Foreign Affairs Subcommittee touring Europe.

The spokesman said Greek military sources reported several shells fell near the congressmen. With them was Lieut. Col. Allen C. Miller, assistant military attache and U. S. delegate to the recently dissolved United Nations Balkans subcommission.

The incident was reported shortly after Premier Themistokles Sopholis called on the Greek people to "rally against the threatened tyranny of a minority serving foreigners" and announced an austerity program to balance the budget.

Greatest Portion for Army

The greatest portion of the new budgetfi which excludes the importation of all luxury items, will go to support the Army, now being supplied with American funds through the United States mission to aid Greece. The present American contribution is more than 150 million dollars for the armed forces, with more expected as they are enlarged. The total for Greek aid is 300 million dollars.

The 87-year-old premier announced formation of a foreign trade administration to control all exports and imports. In the prepared text of his address, distributed in advance, he said this administration would be headed by an American in the employ of the Green government. This reference was deleted from the address as delivered. Sophoulis said he made omissions from the prepared text because "I was too tired to read the whole speech."

American sources said the new body would be headed by John P. Dawson, former professor of law at the University of Michigan.

Sophoulis, referring to his amnesty to Guerillas in the north, told the Greeks to form "an unbreakable and true front" to "help those who repent and escape from the stranglehold of rebellion in order to return to the Green fam-

Torture by Four Kidnapers Charged by D. C. Carpenter

The Detective Bureau is investigating charges of a 31-year-old carpenter that he was kidnaped for five hours, beaten unconscious and tortured by four men.

According to the carpenter one of the men said he was a detective and showed what appeared to be a police badge.

The victim, Carl J. Akowskey, 3950 C st. se., declared the man who posed as a detective also brought out a police gallery photograph of him (Akowskey) and asked him if he was the man in the picture. The alleged attack occurred early Sunday morning.

The assailants asked him for information about a $13,000 safe robbery from the home of James K. Mahorney, 3027 Adams st. ne., which occurred last August 5, Akowskey said.

Akowskey and his brother-in-law, Richard A. Cooper of 239 17th st. se., had done some carpentry work for Mahorney in April.

Cooper had previously reported to police that on September 5, he was attacked by two men in his car in front of his home. He said yesterday he believed the same

Strike Ends At 1 Button Plant in Md.

38 Ridgely Workers Return to Posts But Federalsburg Continues Fight

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

Ridgely, Md., Oct. 13.—The locally unpopular strike of button-workers here appeared broken today, victim of public sentiment and deputized townsfolk, but—

In Federalsburg, 21 miles away, a similar and larger strike was apparently going strong, with citizens adopting a hands-off policy in the workers' demand for union recognition.

The contrasting tales of two cities involves two plants of Excelsior Pearl Works, Inc., both erected more than a decade ago with local financial support.

New Plant Unopened

Contributing to public interest among Ridgely's 1000-plus population is a new, unopened, $30,000 plant which many of the citizens feel will be abandoned if unionizing succeeds.

Mayor Martin L. Sutton, here, reported today that 38 of the local plant's 52 workers returned to their jobs this morning. Of the 14 absentees, he said, 6 are "unwanted by the company."

It was Mayor Sutton who last Thursday deputized "40 to 50" local citizens (including several high school lads) to protect returning workers confronted by "out-of-town pickets."

No violence or near-violence was reported today either here or in Federalsburg.

"Once the workers realized they were going to be protected," declared Mayor Sutton, "they were willing to go back to work."

Return of the workers, however, was otherwise characterized by an organizer of the striking union, who said it was a "psychological effect of the deputizing of so many people."

Strikers Scared

"The Mayor's action scared the strikers, and they crawled back to their jobs, feeling that the whole town was against them," declared James Lynch, organizer, Baltimore office, International Ladies Garment Workers, AFL.

In Federalsburg (pop. 2500), Mayor Clinton S. Poole reported that less than one of every four workers was back at his job today. The Federalsburg plant employs about 300 workers, he said.

He criticized the deputizing action of Ridgely's Mayor, declaring it "very dangerous to appoint so many deputies in such excitement." He, himself, appointed only two night guards "to help protect the company's property."

In a workers' mass meeting at 1 p. m. today in Chambers Park playground, Federalsburg, Irwin J. Jaffe, assistant regional director, ILGWU, also criticized the Ridgely Mayor's deputizing action, declaring:

"Colt automatics are good for frightening people, but they can't cut buttons."

Jaffe estimated that 70 of 250 employes in Federalsburg had returned to work, and praised those remaining on strike in Ridgely for "resisting terrific pressure."

Jaffe read a letter to the assembled throng of about 100 persons. The letter, purportedly from Maryland State Labor Commissioner James F. DiDomenico, invited the union representatives and Bernard Rifkin, company president, of New York, to meet in Federalsburg Thursday, to "discuss the problems."

The workers' trek back to their jobs here in Ridgely today began

Chile Chief Tells of Red 'War' on U. S.

Communists Use Latin America as Base, He Declares; Proofs Presented

By Ray Josephs

Santiago, Chile (By Air Mail). "Russia and her satellites have already declared invisible war against the United States and the American republics and are now using Latin America as a field from which to effectively attack the United States economic and war potential."

That statement, the strongest yet delivered by any hemisphere chief executive whose country maintains formal relations with Moscow, was made by President Gabriel Gonzalez Videla in an exclusive interview with the writer today (October 10).

Videla

Naming names, citing facts and displaying documents while I typed by notes on the President's personal typewriter in his paneled office in La Monedo, Chile's White House, Gonzalez Videla asserted:

1. CHILE'S explusion of two Yugoslav diplomats charged with "working with Communists in a plan to create revoluation here" would be followed by action against other diplomatic officials if, as appears likely, other activities are discovered. (In answer to a direct question as to whether this meant breaking relations with Soviet Russia, Gonzalez Videla made the only off-the-record answer of our hour-long talk. His tone, I can report, was extremely strong.)

'Definite Proof' Found

2. Evidence already obtained—some through seizures of the baggage of the expelled diplomats—provided "definite proof" of the plans drawn up in Belgrade for "moving into every country in the Americas, including the United States."

3. The plan was begun in Chile because its Communist Party is one of Latin America's largest and best organized and had, through a coal miners strike begun last week, "already succeeded in partially paralyzing both this country itself and its production of copper and nitrates vitally needed by the U. S."

Himself elected with Communist help little more than a year ago and the first Latin American President to place Communists in his cabinet in return, Gonzales Videla told me:

"I have learned from bitter experience what no other Latin President has—three major lessons of utmost importance to the United States.

"First, I found that the Communists are not really interested in the solution of the economic and social problems of the country where they're working. They make magnificent programs; programs which they pretend to support. But they do everything to break them up in action, since they are only interested in creating economic anarchy which they expect to use to achieve their own ends.

Reds Want Control

"My second lesson was that the Communists work their way into the key unions—mining, transportation and so on—with the definite purpose of controlling the country.

"Third, they put their organization and control over the masses in the unions in the hands of the

National 17-Point Plan

Restaurants to Do More Than Asked Toward Saving Food

The Nation's restaurant men will give better than asked-for cooperation to President Truman's food conservation plan.

Announcement of the decided stand was made here last night by Charles Luckman, chairman of the Citizens Food Committee, following lengthy conference with the National Restaurant Industry Advisory Committee.

It was accompanied by the announcement of a 17-point plan to extend the program beyond the initial waste-saving measures sought.

In earlier developments yesterday, District Commissioners voiced "whole-hearted approval" of an invitation to set up a local citizens' food committee, while meat suppliers locally predicted that today would find less meat consumed than last Tuesday, the first "Meatless Tuesday."

Previous expressions of doubt over the workability of the self-denial plas to save grain for export to Europe were swept aside by the restaurant men in last night's annaunced program. The restaurateurs asked only that an executive committee of the industry be appointed "to discuss individual problems and work with the Citizens Food Committee on listing items to be classified as meat."

Appointed to that executive committee were George R. LeSavage, advisory chairman, of New York; John L. Rennessy, advisory committee vice chairman, also of New York; Andrew Grotty of Boston, Mass.; George Hanby of Chicago, Ill., and E. E. Seward of New York.

"The sweeping steps toward food conservation adopted by this group, embracing all sgments of the public feding industry," declared Luckman, "constitute a very important step toward attaining our goal of 100 million bushels of wheat for hungry people this winter."

"I want to commend the public spirit evidenced by these men, all of whom recognized the need for making contributions to meet this world crisis of feed."

Among the conservation features promised by the restaurants were pledges to cut down excessive portions, publicixed the program, serve bread and butter only on request, eliminate toast trimming, limit the number of crackers with soup servings.

Also: abandon the three-layer cake durin gthe emergency, use substitutes for wheat cereal wherever possible, limit butter servings, supervise cooking to mini-

Check Made of Aid To Europe Possible Without Congress

Part of Vast Credit For Reconstruction Shifted to Meet Crisis

The 15-man Herter committee is making a close check of Government funds and credits htat might be used to avert a European emergency without a special session of Congress.

This was reliably learned last ngiht as some influential friends of the Marshall Plan on the group privately voiced doubt about the desirability of a special session.

Several ranking members of the committee, just back from a five-week European survey, are concerned lest the longer range plan for Europe's reconstruction be jeopardized by a premature House floor fight on stopgap aid.

One member, who asked not to be quoted, said it wasn't a question of providing any emergency aid needed—that this must be done in any case, even if it means putting the program through Congress in "two bites."

His point was that so far as legislative strategy is concerned, "one bite" would be better and that one bite confined, to the Marshall Plan and the well integrated program the committee intends to recommend.

The Herter committee's expert staff is checking its own figures against departmental data on which the President based his call for some 580 million dollars in emergency aid.

It also is looking into Government balances and unexpended relief funds that might be applied to any winter emergency that develops without special session action by Congress.

Silent on Session Issues

Meanwhile, Chairman Christian A. Herter (R., Mass.) and the seven members of his special Foreign Economic Committee who preceded him to Washington are publicly silent on the special session issue. They were represented as keeping an open mind on th subjet until they have all the facts.

House Foreign Affairs Chairman Charles A. Eaton (R., N. J.), previously reported as favoring a special session, put it this way yesterday:

"If we find the facts to be as presented by the President and the State Department, we should take

The U. S. Export-Import Bank yesterday authorized hard-pressed France to use 93 million dollars of a reconstruction loan to buy coal and other raw materials.

Announcement of the decision was made after President Truman had three officials of the governing board of the Export-Import Bank at the White House to hear first-hand reports on the European economic and political crisis.

The money was made available to France at a time when her supply of dollars was about exhausted, and six days before the French municipal elections scheduled for Sunday.

In May, 1946, the Export-Import Bank granted France a credit of 650 million dollars with the understanding that it was to be used strictly for the purchase of machinery and other equipment for reconstruction. About 185 million dollars of the original sum remains on hand.

Officials of the bank changed the rules so that France could use $93,000,000 of the balance to buy badly needed coal, petroleum, lubricants and cotton.

The French have been buying about 1,500,000 tons of American coal a month.

Herve Alphand, France's director of economic affairs, told reporters here last week that France would run out of dollars on October 15.

Over the weekend, Henri Bonnet, the French ambassador, appealed to American officials to make available part of the reconstruction loan for coal and other raw materials. He was backed by the State Department.

Already Contracted For

French purchasing agents already have contracted to spend the full amount of the reconstruction loan for heavy equipment needed to revive France's export trade. It now will be necessary for the American manufacturers to agree on a diversion of the $93,000,000.

Among those who made reports at yesterday's White House meeting were Lewis W. Douglas, Ambassador to Britain; Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, Ambassador to Russia; Gen. Lucius Clay, military governor of the United States Zone

Governors Get Truman Plea; Plan to Save Bread Is Studied

By John Ball
Post Reporter

The Nation's distillers voted yesterday to shutdown operations at midnight, October 25, for 60 days, and to turn their stocks of grain over to the Government for export to hungry nations abroad.

The shutdown, to cut use of grain in the manufacture of distilled liquors and alcohol, is expected to result in a saving of upwards of 20 million bushels.

The decision was announced last night by Charles Luckman, chairman of President Truman's Citizens Food Committee, after a four-hour session with the distillers in the office at the old State Department Building reserved for the personal use of General of the Armies John J. Pershing.

Day of Developments

It followed a day filled with developments in the campaign to conserve grain to prevent mass starvation in food deficit countries.

1. President Truman wired each of the 48 State Governors asking their "wholehearted cooperation" in the food drive. His plea followed a similar appeal by Luckman Saturday to the Mayors of the Nation's leading cities. The President asked that each Governor designate an individual or group "to work with the Citizens Food Committee to organize the activity in his State to insure the success of the war on hunger."

2. Agriculture Secretary Clinton P. Anderson called upon all livestock producers and shippers as well as commission firms, dealers, stockyard companies, auction markets and packers to cooperate in the conservation of corn and other grains. Anderson asked the "elimination of wasteful methods of feeding hogs destined for immediate slaughter."

Bread Saving Studied

3. Luckman announced that leaders in the baking industry are studying plans to discontinue the consignment of bread to retail dealers. Bakers now place their bread for sale in stores, agreeing to take back all not sold within 24 hours. Dropping this rule, it was stated, would result in a saving of 10 per cent in bread—a savings one expert said would amount to 50 million dollars worth a year.

Fewer Cattle on Corn

4. Agriculture Department surveys have shown that farmers will put fewer cattle on grain feed in coming months because of the short corn crop and because of the financial risk involved in feeding high-priced corn.

The result, the Agriculture Department stated, will be (1) a saving in grain needed for export, and (2) less top quality beef on the meat counters next spring and summer.

Only three small distillers withheld consent to the shutdown, Luckman said. Their hesitancy, he said, was not due to unwillingness to aid the campaign but to peculiar situations that made the shutdown critical for them. Their cases, he said, will be considered by a "hardship" committee, set up by the distillers and the food committee.

Union Opposes Move

Meeting with the distillers was Harold Krieger, general counsel for the Distilling, Rectifying and Wine Workers Union (AFL). Krieger opposed the shutdown, but left

Learned the Hard Way

Shop Failure Taught Lesson, Truman Tells Advisory Group

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

President Truman is not at all embarrassed by the fact that he went broke in the haberdashery business in 1922. On the contrary, he is proud to be able to say that he paid off all his debts, though it took him 20 years to do it.

Mr. Truman made this clear yesterday in talking to members of the Small Business Advisory Committee. The White House later made public his remarks.

"I know some of the troubles of small business," the Chief Executive said. "I was in one once myself, after the first World War. It took me 20 years to get out from under that experience, and I would hate to see the young men who are anxious to make a start for themselves in this period have to suffer the same troubles that I had to go through with to get the experience."

He was referring to what happened to him when, as Captain Truman of Battery D, he returned from France in 1919. For a brief period he went bacq to the Truman farm. Then he and his old comrade in arms, Eddie Jacobson, became partners and opened a haberdashery shop in Kansas City.

The firm, dealing in shirts, neckties and other men's wear, did well for a couple of years and then was hit by what Mr. Truman used to call the "Mellon depression." It went broke in 1922.

Mr. Truman was still paying off his debts when he came to Washington as a United States Senator in 1934. Eventually all creditors were paid in full.

Talking yesterday to members of the Small Business Advisory Committee, the President expressed his sincere interest in what they were trying to do. He continued:

"Mr. Harriman (Secretary of Commerce) and his staff are working to really do something for the small business of the country, which in the long run is the big business of the country.

"I was astonished when I was informed by the Secretary of Commerce that 800,000 new small business enterprises had been started since the end of the war two and a half years ago.

"I was with the small business committee of the Senate on several occasions when they were holding hearings, and I am extremely anxious to see the Commerce Department do what they are trying to do: give small business people the service and information which big business has the opportunity to set up for itself."

Mr. Truman at this point told how it took him 20 years to "get out from under" his own experiences.

Three Adrift for 19 Days Rescued From Minesweepers

Pearl Harbor, Oct. 13 (AP).—Three American castaways were transferred to the Navy Patrol craft 881 at 4:15 a. m. today (9:15 a. m., EST) ending 19 days adrift in the remote Pacific on a group of powerless minesweepers.

The Hawaiian Sea Frontier, which announced the rescue, said the men were aboard two of the four minesweepers on which they drifted away from the vicinity of Palmyra atoll September 24.

The rescue men said the other two had sunk October 1.

The men, apparently in the best of health despite their long ordeal by sea, were William B. Hopkins of Washington, D. C., and Leonard Metts and Horace Crosby, both of Charleston, S. C.

They were sighted from the air Saturday about 440 miles northeast of Palmyra, and planes had kept them under surveillance until the surface vessel arrived.

The misadventure began when the tug Edward M. Grimm, which was towing the four 85-foot 'sweepers from Charleston to Manila, ran out of fuel after bucking headwinds in the eastern Pacific.

The tug had to cut the tow loose and limp into Palmyra.

Distillers Will Shut Down On October 25 for 60 Days

early for Louisville, Ky., to consult with officials of the international group. He said his group "saw no need for the shutdown." Earlier threats that the union may bring court action under the Taft-Hartley Act against the distillers will not be decided until today, he said.

Krieger had charged that 30,000 workers would be put out of work by the shutdown. Luckman said distillery operators had put the figure at "from 2500 to 7500."

Luckman turned down a labor request for a delay of 10 days. He pointed out that a further deferment would "mean a vast quantity of grain would be consumed during such postponement." He held the vital need for grain 'was immediate.'"

"The problem of workers who may be displaced is very real, and I am deeply concerned about it, but I believe it can be resolved," Luckman said.

Hopes For Solution

"Some distillers have already discpssed with me the possibility of reassigning or otherwise dealing with the displaced workers. I am very hopeful that an equitable solution can be worked out and I shall do everything in my power to assist."

Two other provisions were included in the shutdown agreement:

1. The industry agreed to limit the use of grain until the shutdown "so that the contribution of grain will not be impaired."

2. Government agencies will take immediate steps to acquire distillers stocks of grain on hand and on order, "in accordance with the distillers' pledge."

The distillers who will shut down, Luckman said, operate more than 90 per cent of the liquor-making capacity of the country.

Calls it a "Waste"

In his appeal to packers to reduce feeding of livestock just prior to slaughter, Anderson pointed out that feeding at that time was for the purpose "of acquiring temporary weight increases or fills."

"In view of the critical need for existing grain supplies, such an economic waste is unjustificable," he said. He added that it would not "violate humane principle."

The Advertising Council, of New York City, announced it will undertake a nation-wide "information program" in support of the food drive.

The program requested by President Truman and Luckman, "means millions of dollars will be spent by American business to carry food conservation message in advertisements."

From Philadelphia, the Associated Press reported that the Presbyterian Church will support President Truman's four-point program of voluntary food rationing. The announcement by the Rev. Dr. William Barrow Pugh, stated clerk of the Church' general Assembly, was made at the request of Charles P. Taft, president of the Federal Council of Churches in America.

Buy in Canada

Detroit and northern Vermont authorities reported that many residents of those sections were crossing the Canadian border to buy groceries.

Customs authorities said that traffic through the Detroit-Windsor tunnel and the Ambassador Bridge is about 20 per cent greater than a year ago at this time.

Vermont residents were reported shopping in Canada for eggs at 61 cents a dozen; butter at 65 cents a pound; chuck roasts at 39 cents; pork loins at 52; lamb at 38 and hamburger at 35.

Stores are remaining open on the Canadian side until late at night as customers appear. Canadian prices have been increasing recently because of American demand, it was reported.

'Torture' Victim Displays Injuries

The Washington Post

KIDNAPED, HE SAYS—Carl J. Akowskey, 31, of 3950 C st. se. (left), reported to police he was kidnaped, beaten and tortured early Sunday by four men, one of whom professed to be a police officer. The men questioned him concerning a $13,000 theft from his employer, he said. With him here is his brother-in-law, Richard A. Cooper, 34, of 239 17th st. se., who declares he was assaulted by two men in a previous incident. Both are employed as carpenters by James K. Mahorney. They are shown comparing injuries group may have assaulted Akowskey.

Akowskey told The Washington Post the following:

He left an 8th st. se. delicatessen shortly after midnight and walked to his car, which was in front of the Marine Barracks at 8th and G sts. se. He was just stepping on the starter when a man accosted him, told him he was a detective and flashed a badge and Akowskey's picture.

Slugged in Back of Head

When he got out of the car, he was slugged in the back of the head. When he regained consciousness, he found he was in a moving car with his head completely bound with adhesive tape. He started kicking and fighting in the back seat, kicking through the left rear window. He was subdued after getting a hold of a man in the front seat.

After a ride of about 20 or 30 minutes, he was taken out of the car and pushed into what he guessed was the basement of a building. Two of the men sat him in a chair and began to question him about "Mr. Mahorney's safe, bonds and money." He lost consciousness several times, he said. He said he was slugged hard enough to break the back of his chair. Burning newspapers were applied to his bare foot, his chest was pricked with a knife point and he was kicked in the shins. One man threatened to cut his fingers off. Each time he lost consciousness, he was revived by having water thrown in his face. He was also given the barrel of a pistol to feel, and threatened with it.

Say They'll "Get Cooper"

When the men had finished with him, they pushed him into their car again and drove him at high speed to the vicinity of his parked car. Before he was thrown out, one of the men said they would "get Cooper."

The Market Basket

Plenty of Cheese Is Available

By Lucia Brown
Post Reporter

Plenty of cheese—both in stores and storage—awaits Americans in need of tasty, plentiful protein foods.

So far this year, production of cheese in the United States has been 127 per cent of production by this date in 1946, a record year. About 75 per cent of this cheese is American Cheddar, sometimes known as "store cheese."

The American taste for cheese is increasing, too, together with production—and was even before the President's conservation program. Cheese eating in this country will average more than 7 pounds per person this year, the United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics estimates. The 1935-39 average consumption was only 5½ pounds per year, while in 1925 we ate only 4½ pounds each.

Cheddar Is Versatile

American Cheddar, our favorite cheese, is the one most suited for use in main dishes—souffles, rarebits and others. It's sold in various forms, being classed according to age.

"Current" cheeses are the milder, softer, more rubbery ones that are sold within 30 days after making—"made on Monday sold on Tuesday," as one cheese man said.

"Short-held" cheese is 1 to 6 months old, and "aged" cheese is more than 6 months old. The older it is, the sharper, also the more expensive. The preference for sharp cheese is growing in this country, dealers say, and the supply lagging behind demand.

Prices Lower Now

Prices on American Cheddar are lower now than at this time last year—about 7 to 10 cents cheaper a pound at wholesale—but considerably above OPA prices and about three times prewar prices.

Cream and Neufchatel cheese are runners-up to Cheddar in the amount produced in this country. Next on the list come Italian varieties, then Swiss, Blue and Limburger in the order named. Skim milk cheese—cottage, pot and baker's—are also produced in large quantities, principally by small local companies.

Some cheese has been imported since the end of the war, but Europeans aren't sending much over because of their own food situation. Swiss production will be low this year because of the 3-month's drought, it's reported.

What You Don't Know Won't Hurt You, Odell Learns

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 13 (AP).—Coach Howie Odell of Yale got a big jolt today out of a story told him about his kicking specialist, Bill (One-Shot) Booe, but confessed he wouldn't have enjoyed it had he learned about it before the Columbia game last Saturday.

Booe, whose eyesight isn't perfect, although it's hard to tell judging by the way he kicks those extra points for the Elis, wears contact lens.

Just before going on the field for the Columbia contest, he suddenly recalled he had forgotten to take his lens to New York. Keeping his secret, he, nevertheless, went out and booted a field goal from the 25-yard line, and converted after both of Yale's touchdowns, as the Blue beat the Lions, 14 to 7.

that he shot and killed a physician who was examining him at the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers at Togue, Md., in May, 1921.

At a hearing before a United States commissioner at the time, he was freed of the shooting charge on the grounds of mental instability. Leahy said there was no prospect that new legal action would now arise from that charge.

Original Charge Ignored

Leahy said he had not looked into the original charge.

Williams did not want to dispose of it. "I never killed anyone," he said.

Leahy said the question before the jury was simply whether Williams is now of sound mind, not whether he was of unsound mind 20 or 10 or 5 years ago. Today he is recovered," said Leahy.

Dr. Winfred Overholser, superintendent of St. Elisabeths, said he plans to confer today with District Attorney George Morris Fay about the possibility of further legal action. Dr. Overholser said "we still feel that Williams is of unsound mind and that he should continue to be confined."

"We regret that a jury has disagreed with our doctors," said Dr. Overholser. "We have no animosity against any patient. While Williams was a patient he was quite orderly and behaved himself very well."

Near Freedom Once

In all his 26 years of confinement there was just one point 12 years ago when Williams came close to the freedom he gained yesterday. That was when a District Court Justice granted a habeas corpus petition on the ground that Williams had been illegally committed to the hospital in 1921.

But in 1935, as Williams stepped out of court, he was promptly seized by deputy marshals and held for a formal inquiry into his sanity.

Leahy said the result of that inquiry was a finding that Williams was suffering from schizophrenia, paranoid type—Leahy pointed out that the words meant split personality, accompanied by delusions—and he was recommitted.

Wrote to Court

Leahy said Williams reopened his case by writing letters to the court. When he took up the case, Leahy said one of his first actions was to get a private physician, Dr. Michael M. Miller, to examine Williams.

Dr. Miller is a former staff doctor at St. Elizabeth's who was discharged as an aftermath of published reports that he had accused Congressmen of too much drinking—reports which Dr. Miller said were based on unfortunate misquotations.

Leahy said that Dr. Miller had testified that he had found that Williams was not suffering from delusions, and that there was no psychotic content, or dangerous mental disturbance. Dr. Bernard A. Cruvant of St. Elizabeth's Hospital testified that Williams was suffering from dementia praecox. The trial was in the court of Justice T. Alan Goldsborough.

Williams said the thing that kept him going in his fight for freedom was "the fact I knew I was unjustly confined."

"Now I feel happy," he added with a chuckle.

"Really it has been a long stay out there. It has been terribly monotonous although I have had good treatment. It is not true of all of them. I have seen some very hard treatment. Some patients have to be restrained with almost abusive force.

"I deny there was every any impairment of my mind so far as not being able to conduct myself properly."

Williams said the food at the hospital had been plentiful, not too good but not bad. He said his main hobby had been painting and drawing, and for recreation he played checkers but not cards.

He could not join in athletic recreation because of his artificial left leg. He said he underwent an amputation after serving in the Army. His first enlistment ran from 1907 to 1910, he said, and two of those years were served in the Philippines. He said a second enlistment in 1913 was cut short by a disability discharge.

He said he lived for two years in Washington before his admission to the hospital in Maine. Leahy said that in 1920 Williams had received a patent on a so-called liquid feeding brush, but had never received a return on it.

did not know for sure that he

Williams said he had made no final plans in advance because he would be released. "I'm thinking about going away from Washington," he said. "I've been bothered here with bronchitis."

Dairyman Says Restaurants Discourage Drinking of Milk

Durham, N. H., Oct. 13 (AP).—The House Agriculture Committee, beginning a "grass-roots" tour of the Nation's farm areas, was told today that some restaurants are discouraging milk drinking "in the hope that customers will substitute tea or coffee, which give the restaurant more profit."

Howard W. Shelby, manager of the United Farmers of New England, Inc., a milk producers' cooperative, asked the committee to inquire "into the possible existence of monopoly, collusion, unfair trade practices and restraint of trade in food distribution."

Selby told the committee at a "We have a recent example of public hearing:

restaurants in Boston removing the word milk from their menus because they are unable to retain a margin for handling the finished product of about twice what the farmer realizes for his total cost of producing the milk."

He said, however, that restaurants have not stopped selling milk because they must serve it to customers who call for it.

"This is not in the public interest or the farmers' interest."

Other spokesmen, representing various New England farm organizations, recommended full production of agricultural products and aid for any starving peoples of Europe.

George M. Putman of Concord, president of the New Hampshire Farm Bureau, and Selby both proposed a revision of the farm parity price formula to give agriculture a "fairer" share of the Nation's purchasing power.

(Parity now is calculated to give farmers a purchasing power, in comparison with other elements of the economy, based on some past period—usually 1909-1914.)

Selby advocated a long range farm program, including a new parity formula which would give the farmer, as its goal, an income equal to the current earnings of other groups of workers employing comparable hours of labor, skill, managerial ability and risk. Selby also favored continuation of the present type of farm price support to achieve the parity objective and coordination of all fiscal and monetary controls to keep the general price level as stable as possible.

To Issue Proclamation

District Commissioners announced acceptance of Luckman's invitation to localize the conservation program by proclamation and appointment of a local Citizens Food Committee. Appointment of the local committe chairman is expected today or tomorrow.

The telegraphed invitation was received by John Russell Young, president of the District's three-man board of commissioners. It asked the emphasis of four basic points in local support of the program. They are:

1. Use no meat on Tuesday.
2. Use no poultry or eggs on Thursday.
3. Save a slice of bread every day.
4. Restaurants serve bread and butter only on request.

Are Warming Up

On the eve of the Nation's second "Meatless Tuesday" local meat suppliers reported the public to be warming up to the Presidential plea for voluntary denials. The supplier's index was his cash register.

Yesterday's sales tallies, said the majority, were "noticeably smaller."

One supplier summed up the sentiment of his group when he declared:

"Patriotic response seems to be gaining momentum. Our orders for meat normally consumed on Tuesdays are much lower."

House Group to Ask U. N. Action on DPs

Rep. Chelf Says Subcommittee Agree Problem Can Be Handled in No Other Way

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

A House Foreign Affairs Subcommittee plans to request Secretary Marshall to put the problem of Europe's million displaced persons before the United Nations at once, it was disclosed yesterday.

Representative Frank Chelf (D., Ky.), a member of the special group which investigated displaced persons camps in Europe during the recess, said the subcommittee was agreed that only a pro rata allocation among some of the United Nations will solve the problem.

The subcommittee, Chelf said, believes that this country should ask the other members of the United Nations to work out a plan for immediate absorption of the DP's into all of the democratic nations.

Told Anti-Communist

Asserting that the DP's are almost without a single exception violently anti-Communist as well as anti-German, Chelf said the committee would recommend that no displaced persons be forced against their will to go to Russia or any of its satellites.

Individual interviews with 2000 DPs indicated that they would prefer to go to Canada, England, Australia or the United States in that order, Chelf declared.

The committee will also recommend that those countries which now make a practice of selecting only "the cream of the crop" in displaced persons camps for emigration immediately cease the practice.

Chelf said it was apparent that if this practice continues only "a hard core" of unemployables who will be impossible to assmiilate will be left.

Bills Held Inadequate

The subcommittee, which is headed by James G. Fulton (R., Pa.) who is still in Italy, is convinced that neither the Stratton bill nor the Chelf bill now before Congress can meet the displaced persons problem adequately, the Kentucky congressman said.

He advocated that instead Marshall work out a quota with the U. N., and recommend to the Congress that this number be admitted immediately.

If the U. N. nations could act with sufficient speed, Chelf said, he would favor a special session of Congress to pas a new immigration bill permitting the entry of the recommended number.

Chelf urged all possible speed in settling the problem in view of the hardships confronting the displaced persons, the great majority of whom, he said, are industrious and hard working.

The Kentucky congressman said that the preparatory commission of the International Refugee Organization will shortly announce its support of the move to place the DP problem in the hands of the United Nations.

The problem of displaced Jews should be handled in the light of the fact that 90 per cent of the Jewish DPs want to go to Palestine, Chelf reported.

One of the most tragic lacks at all the DP camps is lack of material on which to work, Chelf reported. He said that only about 60 per cent of the persons are employed because of this shortage of materials which prevents young people from learning trades.

He suggested that churches of all faiths in America should consider this problem so that perhaps a given number of churches in a town or city could 'adopt" a DP camp, furnish it with materials, and possibly provide an outlet for the finished products.

Earlier yesterday Representative Karl Mundt (R., S. D.) reported that Communism's move in Western Europe "has been stopped cold for the past 60 to 90 days and could be turned into an ebb tide very easily."

Mundt, a leading advocate of continuation of "the Voice of America" program, declared,

Effort Held Needed

"We very definitely have to make a strenuous effort to increase our information program in there. Russian propaganda is vicious, well financed, and skilfully promoted by an active and extensive staff."

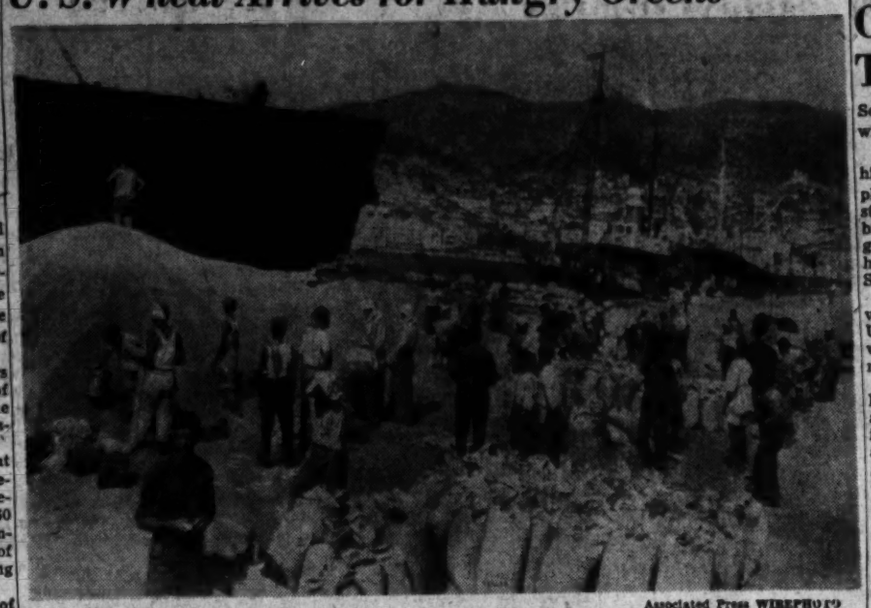

Mundt urged emergency relief for France this winter, and said additional food allotments may be necessary.

Mundt is chairman of a House Foreign Affairs subcommittee which returned yesterday after a month's trip through Europe surveying political conditions and the effect of the State Department's information program.

He predicted that the Soviet action in establishing the new nine-nation "information bureau" in Belgrade will "boomerang very badly, because it brings the old Communist international into the open again and will unite the people in Europe who are opposing Communism."

A special Senate Subcommittee on Immigration headed by Senator Chapman Revercomb (R., W. Va.), left yesterday to make its own survey of refugee camps in Germany, Austria and Italy.

Red Strike Order Halts Traffic in Paris Subways

Paris (Tuesday), Oct. 14 (AP).—Paris subway transportation came to a halt early today after the Communist-dominated General Confederation of Labor ordered a strike of 9600 subway operators and bus drivers. An estimated four million people are expected to be affected.

A slow paralysis began in the evening even before the strike became complete. Hundreds jammed loading platforms along miles of the underground railway system, trying to push their way onto trains appearing only about once every hour. Bus loading platforms also were jammed.

The strike was called after collapse of wage negotiations between the General Confederation and the Labor Ministry.

State Withholds Action in Budget Row in Alexandria

The Virginia State Compensation Board in Richmond yesterday recommended further efforts to reach a compromise between the Alexandria City Council and city employes whose annual budget requests have been termed "excessive" by the council.

The board yesterday heard protests by City Councilman Everett L. Hellmuth and George K. Bender against budget figures submitted by three city officials whose salaries are partially paid by the State, but took no action pending further discussion by the principals. E. R. Combs, board chairman, said it would act in the dispute only if an agreement cannot be reached.

The council has protested the budgets of Commissioner of Revenue C. Aubrey Callagan, City Treasurer Roger C. Sullivan and City Sergeant R. H. Cox. Commonwealth's Attorney Howard W. Smith, jr., whose salary also is partially paid by the State, has not requested a budget increase.

Fredericksburg Bank Fraud Case Retrial Ordered

Richmond, Va., Oct. 13 (AP).—The Fourth United States Circuit Court of Appeals today ordered the Fredericksburg bank case remanded "forthwith" to the district court with the direction that the proceedings be "accorded precedence over every other matter pending in the district."

Judge Sterling Hutcheson of the district court now is in position to orde ra new trial at the earliest possible date.

In acting as soon as possible after the orde rto remand is received in the lower court, Judge Hutcheson will be acting on a point in the opinion handed down this afternoon by Judge John J. Parker and his associates on the Circiut Court of Appeals.

"The circumstances require that they (the seven defendants now involved in the case involving a gigantic check-kiting scheme) be promptly retried and that he proceedings against them be not delayed," the opinion directed.

some action, probably in special session."

Easton, chairman of the committee Herter led to Europe, was closeted with the Massachusetts Republican for more than an hour yesterday, receiving an oral report on the Europe an study.

Receive Press Jointly

Later, both Eaton and Herter received reporters jointly. Eaton told nwsmen the goup went to Europe to study a permanent aid policy and "the first they knew of this alleged emergency was what it read in the newspapers."

Herter was asked if he was "surprised" by what he read, and replied: "Yes, I frankly was surprised." He said what surprised him most was that the President put the special session decision up to Congress.

Making clear that he was speaking "as an individual" and not as vice chairman of the committee, Herter agreed with Eaton that the committee's first job is to determine whether there will be a winter emergency.

He said the committee will try to "strike a balance sheet between availabilities—between what they (European countries) have and what they need."

The Herter group will meet here November 5, and make its recommendations available to the House and Senate Foreign Affairs Committees, called for November 10.

Chile Chief Tells of Plots

Soviet Union to do with as it wishes."

Gonzalez Videla declared that his "disillusionment was completed" when he found "how strongly Russia had sought to break up the United Nations organization" in whose foundation he participated as a delegate to San Francisco.

"She is seeking constantly to develop her differences with the United States to create and foster world unrest and particularly unrest in the Americas," he added.

The Soviet Union and her satellites picked Chile for her copper and nitrates, he continued. "This is a democratic country which has always permitted all political groups to function openly. Our Communist Party is well organized—its unions have always had freedom and they have moved into our main industries and into coal—our key source of power.

"They represent an invisible army which Russia, through sabotage and stoppages can and does use when it thinks the moment is ripe. This has been proven by our investigations and by documents which we have in our possessions."

Got Head Start

Gonzalez Videla declared that his government had been proming the avtivities of the expelled diplomats, Andrej Curja, Charge d'Affaires and Civil Attache of Yugoslavia here since August 25 and Dalibor Jakasa, secretary of the Yugoslav Legation in Buenos Aires (who had been visiting here) even before the recent revelation of the World Communist International organization in Belgrade.

Chile has a large Yugoslav community, he explained, primarily centered in the copper and nitrate center of Antofagasta in the north and Punta Arenas in the south. Most first and second generation Yugoslavs are anti-Communist. But the party which numbers more than 5000 dues-paying members here, reportedly has many Yugoslavs who are pro-Soviet card carriers.

In its expulsion order which came with dramatic suddeness in the midst of unrest caused by Chile's coal strikes, the Chilean government charged that Curja (who has lived here for many years) was named as contact man between the Communist here and in Europe on a recent visit of Marshal Tito's representative, Gen. Ljubomir Ilic. Jakasa, it added, "was in Santiago to relay new instructions."

Not Just Wages

"I found that our coal strike which began last week was not simply a wage conflict when I ordered salaries increased more than 40 per cent and gave workers other concessions more favorable than any they had asked," the President told me. "The terms weren's accepted—for the Communists had contrary orders from Belgrade."

Because Gonzalez Videla is "certain the Communist plan in Chile is but one step in a total program" his first moves after the expulsion were to hold a 58-minute conversation with Gen. Juan D. Peron of Chile's trans-Andean neighbor Argentina and to meet with United States Ambassador Claude Bowers. An Argentine delegation has already been flown here by Army transport to study local developments with a view to determining ramifications in Argentina. A number of other Latin countries have instructed their ambassadors to determine if documents now being translated from Yugoslav apply to their countries.

Police Free Yugoslav Expelled From Chile

Buenos Aires, Argentina, Oct. 13 (U.P.).—The foreign office announced tonight that Andrej Cunja, former Yugoslav charge d'affaires who was expelled from Chile last week for allegedly fomenting strikes and unrest, has been released by Argentine police.

Reports presisted that major events were in the offing. Some diplomats predicted an anti-Communist pact between Argentina, Brazil and Chile would be signed in a few days.

Taxi Driver Indicted In Slaying of Waitress

Martinsville, Va., Oct. 13 (AP).—Will J. Shumate, 46-year-old taxi driver, was indicted today in City Circuit Court on a charge of murdering Mrs. Olene Benson, 22-year-old waitress, in a crowded downtown restaurant here August 8.

Shumate will go on trial tomorrow before Judge Kennon C. Whittle.

Shumate is charged with having entered Martinsville restaurant the evening of August 8 and fired three shots at Mrs. Benson.

President's Fund Nearly Depleted By Storm Help

President Truman's financial affairs were complicated yesterday by the virtual depletion of his special $500,000 emergency fund.

Latest estimates show there is less than $40,000 left in the special fund provided by Congress for the President to use at his discretion, particularly to meet sudden emergencies.

Recet hurricanes in the South took a big bite out of the fund which cannot be replenished without congressional action. What has the President's fiscal advisers worried is that he would be practically penniless to combat disaster should a violent storm damage some part of the country before Congress can supply additional emergency funds.

The recent series of storms in Louisiana, Mississippi and Florida took more than $100,000 out of the fund.

Newsprint Shortage Until 1950 Predicted

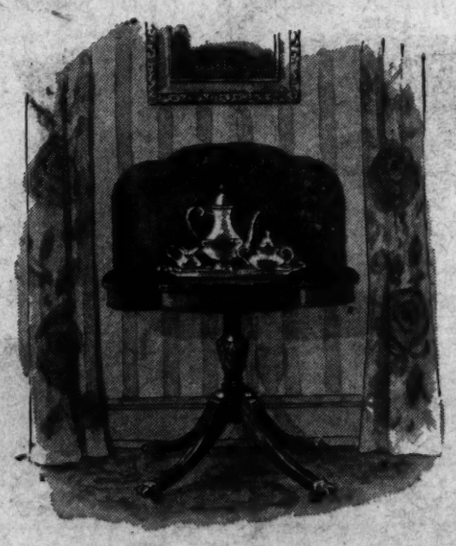

Chicago, Oct. 13 (AP).—Representative Brown (R., Ohio), chairman of the House Committee on Newsprint, predicted today the shortage of newsprint will continue until 1950, and added there are "indications of a further price increase."

John Gunther says:

"Ed Taylor's RICHER BY ASIA amply fulfils the promise of his "Strategy of Terror." This new book by Taylor is not merely the work of a war reporter and former Army officer but of a richly maturing political philosopher. I have found more stimulus in it than in anything I have read this year. I find Mr. Taylor provocative, complex, courageous and occasionally perplexing and obscure. This book really goes after sober fundamentals. It should be particularly useful to good citizens at this time when so much of the world is riven by cruelty, selfishness and greed. A final reason why I like this book is that so many people—vicious, old school imperialists and neo-marxists both—will dislike it."

Virginia Preacher Gets Retrial In Snake-Bite Death of Wife

Richmond, Va., Oct. 13 (AP).—The Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals today ordered a new trial for a southwest Virginia faith healing preacher who had been convicted for manslaughter in the snakebite death of his wife.

In handing down its opinion—one of eight returned today—the court reversed a jury verdict in the Wise County Circuit Court by which Harvey O. Kirk was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary for the involuntary manslaughter of his wife. She died September 3, 1945, after being bitten by a rattlesnake at faith-healing ceremonies.

The court opinion, written by Justice A. C. Buchanan, held that the Wise County jury was not instructed correctly on the law of involuntary manslaughter. The court did not go into the merits of the evidence against Kirk.

Assessment Excessive

Other opinions of the court today held that a parent may punish a child within the bounds of "dut moderation;" held that Nelson County had made an excessive evaluation of the well-known Swannanoa property and affirmed two manslaughter convictions.

Justice C. Vernon Spratley said that this was the first time in the court's history that it had been called upon to pass on the measure of punishment which may be inflicted lawfully upon a child by a parent or foster parents.

The court affirmed a $500 fine and a 12-month jail sentence imposed in the Hopewell Circuit Court on Walter Carpenter, who was charged with assaulting a seven-year-old girl, his ward. Evidence in the case disclosed the child had been "cruelly and brutally beaten" by her foster-father with a belt and a switch. The child's of sence, the court noted, was "merely filching some candy in the family home."

Agrees Parent May Punish

The high court agreed "that a parent has the right to administer such reasonable and timely punishment as may be necessary to correct faults in their growing children," but it said this right "cannot be used as a cloak for the exercise of malevolence or the exhibition of uncontrolled passion on the part of the parent."

In the Swannanoa case, Skyline Swannanoa, Inc., appealed a decision of the Circuit Court of Nelson County affirming an assessment of $76,300 on the estate owned by the late Maj. James H. Dooley and denying any refund of real estate taxes for 1944.

Evidence presented indicated the million-dollar mansion had fallen into decay and the buildings were worth considerably less than the tax assessment. The court adopted a suggestion by counsel that an average be taken of the last three sales prices of the property and a 40 per cent ratio be used for assessment purposes. This cut the assessment to $36,673.

General Practice Physicians in Va. Plan to Organize

Roanoke, Va., Oct. 13 (AP).—Family physicians will form the Virginia Division of the American Academy of General Practice at a meeting heer tomorrow, Dr. John O. Boyd, jr., a member of the House of Delegates announced today.

Dr. Boyd, who is attending the three-day convention of the Medical Society of iVrginia, defined a gneral practitioner as a doctor "who does not limit his practice to one branch of medicine or surgery."

Until the recent formation of AAGP, these doctors had no organization devoted to the promotion of standards in their practice, although the various types of specialists are members of 13 different national boards. There are 1500 general practitioners in the State.

The purpose of the AAGP is to promote high standards in the practice of medicine and surgery. Approximately 200 physicians registered for the medical society convention.

Sportmen's League Plans Two Shows

Annapolis, Md., Oct 13 (AP).—Plans for sportsmen's shows in Baltimore next winter and Washington in the spring were outlined during a weekend convention of the Maryland League of Sportsmen.

The 140-delegates attending the two-day meeting also passed resolutions urging:

(1) Completion of the Savage River dam in Garrett County;

(2) Opening of Loch Raven Reservoir, near Baltimore, for fishing;

(3) Establishment of a full course in wild life management at the University of Maryland;

(4) That bass fishing be allowed in Lake Roland and the Pretty Boy reservoir after July 1;

(5) Opening of Evitts creek, from Route 40 to the Potomac, to fishing for species other than trout;

(6) That minnow and live bait dealers in Washington County be permitted to possess more than 35 species of live bait fish.

Chester Bedell, executive director of the league, said that if the Savage River dam were completed, it would provide that section of the state with a new clear water fishing ground and be an insurance against flood.

He contended that "not to finish the project, which already has used up several millions of dollars in Federal funds, would be a lamentable waste of public money."

Construction of a dam was stopped during the war as a material conservation measure and funds to complete it have not been appropriated.

The Baltimore version of the sportsmen's show will be held February 6-15. The dates for the Washington exhibition were not set.

Pupils to Get Racial Facts In Baltimore

Baltimore, Oct. 13 (AP).—Baltimore school teachers are asked to disseminate facts to demonstrate to their pupils "there is no point to any racial superiority claim," under a department of education subcommittee report approved by the school board.

The report, developed from three years of study and research, recommends a program to promote better race relations and eliminate so far as possible religious intolerance.

It was emphasized the program is not to be considered a set or established policy adopted by the school board. The board explained that teachers "are not to be circumscribed in their activities" toward development of a "democratic life" in classrooms.

In a foreword to the suggested program, Dr. William H. Lemmel, Superintendent of Public Instruction, said:

"By disseminating facts of history, anthropology, psychology, and biology, children will learn that there is no point to any racial superiority claim, for brown, white, black, yellow, and red people have all made their contributions to man's advancement.

"By helping pupils to understand religious customs and ritual and their basic significance, they will be able to substitute respect for others' religion in place of prejudice."

Railroads Ask Right to Raise Sleeper Rates

Sixty-nine railroads asked the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday for authority to boost passenger fares in sleeping cars operating west of the Mississippi.

The proposed increases would cover both standard Pullman and tourist sleepers. Basic one-way Pullman fares would be raised from 3.3 to 3.5 cents a mile, while tourist sleeper fares would go from 2.75 to 3 cents a mile.

In a joint petition, the railroads said operating costs make devisions necessary, and they cited increases recently granted in the East and South.

Automotive Association To Meet October 20-22

Richmond, Va., Oct. 13 (AP).—Former United States Senator Josh Le of Oklahoma and Dr. C. C. Byrd, president of the University of Maryland, will address the annual convention of the Automotive Trade Association of Virginia, to be held here October 20-22.

The 1000 delegates expected also will hear Henry J. Taylor, radio W. Darden of the University of Virginia and Gov. William M. Tuck.

Planned Parenthood League Reports Expansion in Services

Richmond, Va., Oct. 13 (AP).—Expansion of clinic services over Virginia during the past year by the Virginia League of Planned Parenthood was reported today by the League's president, Dr. H. Hudnall Ware jr., at a session during which a prominent minister urged better educational preparation for marriage.

Dr. Ware's annual report was presented at the eighth annual meeting of the Virginia League of Planned Parenthood. He disclosed that 36 planned parenthood clinics now are integrated into the regular maternal and child health clinics of State and local health departments or in such hospitals as Medical College of Virginia and the University of Virginia.

The principal speaker at the meeting today was Dr. Leland Foster Wood, secretary of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America and author of several books.

Dr. Wood urged that the home, church, school and community unite "to give the entire rising generation such a preparation for marriage and home building that they will be marriage builders rather than marriage wreckers."

Presentations of prizes in an essay contest on "planned parenthood and delinquency" were made tonight by Judge Herbert G. Cochran, juvenile and domestic relations court, Norfolk. The awards went to Earl Kelley Lane, Randolph-Macon College, Ashland; Mrs. Odessa H. Lindsay and Miss Beilah N. Martin, MCV School of Nursing.

Black Locust Forest Is Leased by State

Charleston, W. Va., Oct. 13 (AP).—The State Conservation Commission has obtained leases on four separate tracts of land in Randolph County on which a forest of black locust believed to represent the finest quality in the Nation has been found, officials announced here.

State Forester Wilson B. Sayers said that the new timber tract, which is believed to represent a new strain, and has been designated the West Virginia pinnate, was discovered by Dr. Henry Hopp, head of the United States Bureau of Plant Research at Beltsville, Md.

Hospital Payment To Be Requested From Alexandria

The Alexandria City Council will beface dtonight with a request for a "token payment" to the Alexandria Hospital, pending settlement of a dispute between the hospital and the city over rates for charity patients.

Th request will be presented by David C. Book, chairman of the hospital board of directors, who has asked that the council make a payment to offset expenses incurred in the care of indignts. The hospital's original request for an $8.61 daily rate hit a snag when the council refused to authorize any rate in excess of $7.50.

Scientists Plan to Study Effect Of Dry Ice Use on Hurricanes

Tampa, Fla., Oct. 13 (AP).—Scientists made initial experiments today in attempts at calming a destructive storm by dropping dry ice on cloud formations, but the results were uncertain.

A month's study of pictures and extensive data collected will be needed to determine whether valuable information has ben obtaind on hurricanes.

Three Air Force planes flew into a tropical storm 500 miles due east of St. Augustine, Fla. There was no immediate indication that they turned the clouds into rain or snow.

As the hurricane trackers returned the weather bureau reorted winds from the storm they had worked would be felt along the Carolina coast.

Only 80 pounds of dry ice were fed into the storm. An automatic screw, similar to those on coal stokers, was used to distribute ice in a thin line over the clouds.

Vincent Schaffer, General Electric Co. consulting engineer who made the first test over a year ago with dry ice, said the 10 observers aboard the plane could not be certain just what was learned about the storms until the data has been studied.

Florida Storm Starts Recurve Toward Coast

Miami, Fla., Oct. 13 (AP).—The tropical storm which ravaged rich agricultural and resort sections of southern Florida began a slight recurve toward the middle Atlantic coast tonight after whirling 500 miles out to sea.

The Weather Bureau, saying the blow had regained hurricane force, ordered northeast storm warnings up from Cape Hatteras to Wilmington, Del. The storm was located at 4:30 p. m. about 190 miles south southeast of Hatteras.

Meanwhile, rising flood waters created grave problems of health and housing for parts of the lower Florida east coast lashed by wind and torrential rains Saturday.

In the worst affected sections of greater Miami—Hialeah and Miami Springs—national guardsmen were summoned for armed patrol duty.

At least 12,000 persons were reported homeless in the two towns, with many other parts of Dade County under water and hmoes evacuated. Broward and Palm Beach Counties also were among those which were taking a beating from high water.

Flood damage to more than 3000 homes in the Miami section was placed at $4,500,000. Fort Lauderdale estimated its flood damage in "tens of millions of dollars."

U. N. Scraps Red Proposals On Greece

By Robert Bruskin
Post Reporter

Lake Success, N. Y., Oct. 13.—The United Nations today decisively scrapped Russia's demands that the Greek government and Anglo-American intervention be blamed for guerilla fighting in northern Greece.

Despite the shrill sarcasm and invective of Andrei Vishinsky and his bloc, the Assembly's Political Committee rejected the Soviet resolution, 40 to 6. Even the three Scandinavian countries, hitherto abstaining from recording their felings, voted with the majority.

Today's meeting brought to a close the debate of almost three weeks on the Greek issue. It gave ex-Prosecutor Vishinsky a new opportunity for forensic fireworks and a threat that he would keep trying to achieve Russia's ends before the plenary sessions of the General Assembly.

The Soviet proposal, voted paragraph by paragraph, was defeated nine times before the final vote on the entire resolution. A Soviet request for withdrawal of foreign troops and foreign military personnel from Greece was rejected, 18 to 111, with 25 members abstaining. A proposal for establishment of a United Nations commission to "guarantee" that American aid is being used "solely in the interests of the Greek people" was defeated, 20 to 11, with 24 delegates abstaining.

Soviet efforts to blame the Greek government for hostile actions against Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Albania were scrapped 39 to 7, with 10 abstaining.

So adamant were the delegates today that they even voted down Soviet proposals coinciding with several they had approved in the American resolution, which sought to restore normal relations between Greece and her three Communist dominated neighbors.

Vishinsky singled out Hector McNeil of Britain and Herschel Johnson of the United States for special attention. He condemned as a "bubble of bluff" the American stand on Greece and offered to "shake hands" with Johnson if he would agree to establishment of the Soviet-proposed commission to supervise foreign aid.

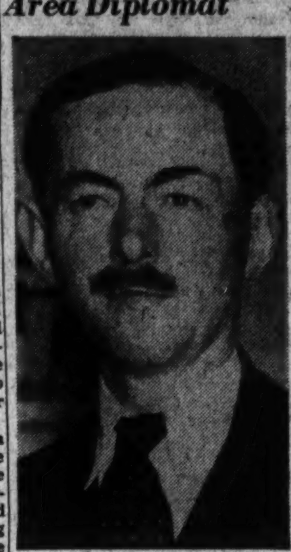

"Why are you afraid of such a commission?" he taunted. "Is it such a terrible commission? Does it have arms? Does it have armies?

"Why cannot we shake hands on this one item and see where the economi acid is going? Of course you cannot vote in favor of it," he said. "Why? Because the economic aid is not economic aid at all . . . it is military aid."

On Vishinsky's assertion that 150 million dollars of American aid to Greece would go for military aid, Johnson answered, "What of it?" Greece has to maintain peace," he said.

"I will pay here a great tribute to the Soviet Union," Johnson went on, dryly. "I know of three little countries on the Baltic (Latvia, Lithuania and Esthonia) that were once flourishing democracies, and no one ever hears a peepe of any disturbance there. The Soviet Union has effetcively enforced peace in thosecountries."

Explosion Misses Area Diplomat

ROBERT MacATEE
of Washington, D. C., and Front Royal, Va., United States Consul General in Jerusalem, was in conference with Palestine high commissioners at Government offices yesterday when a bomb explosion shook his consulate immediately after the British withdraw their troops.

(In London a Foreign Office spokesman said Britain had informed Syria that presence of Syrian troops on the Palestine frontier would be a "disturbing influence" and might well cause the internal situation in the Holy Land to deteriorate.

(Syria was informed that the British mandate government was expected to maintain order within Palestine until British forces withdraw.)

A reliable informant said only 150 tents with 10 soldiers each had been counted this morning in Syrian territory along the border, tending to quiet Jewish fears that Arab military action was imminent.

Spokesmen for the Jews said they were continuing preparations for self-defense in case attacks were launched.

The women injured in the consulate blast were Mrs. Ethel de Levie, about 35, of Providence, R. I., and Mrs. Miriam Pilpel, a Palestinian. Both worked in the consulate mailroom.

Mrs. De Levie was cut slightly by broken glass from a window and walked from the building holding a handkerchief to her bleeding nose. Mrs. Pilpel suffered shock and hysteria and was carried out. Other workers and consulate officers, including 17 Americans, remained at their jobs.

The blast destroyed the consulate's office entrance door and shattered windows and frames.

The doorway of the Polish consulate was blown in last night, and a bomb damaged the front of the Swedish consulate September 27. Sweden's Justice Emil Sandstroem was chairman of the United Nations special committee on Palestine (UNSCOP), a majority of whose members favored partition.

U. S. Consul General Robert B. Macatee, of Front Royal, Va., and Washington, D. C., was away from his office at the time of the explosion. The section of the building used as a residence was not damaged.

Windows were broken in an automobile parked in the garden, and the consulate roof was cracked.

Leftists Hold Narrow Lead, De Gasperi Gains in Rome

Rome, Oct. 13 (AP).—Late returns tonight in Rome's municipal election gave the Communist-dominated "people's bloc" a narrow lead over the Christian Democrats and it appeared the two bitter political enemies would get from 25 to 30 seats each in the 90-member city council.

Returns from 1096 of 1233 precincts gave the leftists 183,526 votes against 182,730 for Premier Alcide de Gasperi's Vatican-supported party. The rightist Qualunquists (Common Man) were running a poor third with 56,691 votes.

The margin of 796 votes held by the people's bloc was not sufficient to insure victory, and there were enough ballots to be counted in the 127 missing precincts to keep it a neck-and-neck race.

The showing by the Christian Democrats, a moderate Catholic party whose premier heads a government in which the extreme left has no representation, constituted a big step forward in political strength.

Last November the Christian Democrats had received 104,627 votes and got only 17 seats in the council.

Today's election was made necessary when the junta elected by the council could not agree on a mayor, and the government had to step in and appoint a career prefect to administer the city until the new elections.

Hatch Act to Be Topic

Charles H. Barnes, attorney with the Civil Service Commission, will conduct a question-and-answer forum on the Hatch Act tonight at 8 o'clock at a meeting of the Northeast Fairfax County Citizens League at Chesterbrook School.

Swedish Author Seizes Girl From Asylum, Flies Her Away

Oslo, Norway, Oct. 13 (U.P.)—Trosten Akrell, Swedish detective story writer, landed his private plane near Kongsberg, Norway, tonight after a dramatic 250-mile flight from Stockholm, Sweden, where he freed his sweetheart from an insane asylum after stabbing an attendant.

Norweigian police arrested the couple, described as having been in love for some time.

The 34-year-old Akrell's Piper Cub ran out of gasoline after dodging Swedish fighter planes sent from Stockholm in pursuit.

Akrell said he had intended to fly to the United States with Mrs. Louise Forsell, 25, a one-armed narcotic who volutarily had entered Beckomberga Asylum for treatment.

Swedish police said Akrell, dressed in a white coat, accosted a nurse at the asylum and said he was a doctor who had come for Mrs. Forsell.

The nurse refused to release the patient, and Akrell, according to police, stabbed her and knocked her unconscious. He locked the nurse in Mrs. Forsell's room, and the couple left in Akrell's car.

They took off immediately in the author's private plane and were out of sight before the Swedish air force was alerted.

Mrs. Forsell, who lost an arm in a childhood accident, made an adventurous flight to North Africa and the Middle East with Akrell last winter.

Play Day Set In Montgomery

Approximately 100 students from five Montgomery County public schools will participate in a "play day" Thursday at the Montgomery Hills Junior High School, Seminary rd., Silver Spring, Md., from 3:30 until 6 p. m.

"Play day" was inaugurated last spring as an informal type of after-school competition of teams of girls as a substitute for the varsity type competition, which presents "too great an emotional and physical strain on school-age girls," according to Mrs. Patricia G. Perusse, physical education instructor at Montgomery Hills.

Students of Montgomery Hills Kensington, Leland and Takoma Park Junior High Schools and the Silver Spring Intermediate School will participate. In event of rain, the "play day" will be held Friday at the same time and place.

Choosy Kitten Prefers Cucumbers to Milk

Menomonie, Wis. (U.P.)—Kitty is a cat that prefers cucumbers to milk.

Kitty's owner, Deloris Brown, says the cat learned to drink milk only after being deprived of water, but still "will only drink a little once in a while."

But the first time Kitty was fed a cucumber, she went wild and now eats them all the time. No strict vegetarian, Kitty sometimes consumes beef and lean pork.

The cat is described as an excellent "mouser," but Miss Brown says she never troubles to devour her prey. She'd rather have a cucumber.

Unruly Zoo Denizens Banished to 'Alcatraz'

Milwaukee (U.P.)—Officials at the Washington Park zoo here have established a virtual Alcatraz Island.

It started when some resident geese objected to the presence of some flamingos and attacked the new arrivals until they were separated and put on an island.

Then a donkey stirred up a fuss by attacking a white peacock. He, too, was banished to the island with the geese.

The third to be evicted was a peacock that renewed the geese's attack on the flamingos.

Officials said there's plenty of room on the island for any more offenders.

Comparison Test Given To German Helicopter

Wallingford, Pa. (U.P.)—A German helicopter is being thoroughly tested by Prewitt Aircraft Co. engineers here to see how it compares with ours.

The craft, a Flettner 282, has intermeshing contra-rotating motors, each mounted so that its axis makes an angle of 24 degrees with the axis of the other.

It has a climbing speed of 300 feet per minute, a hovering ceiling of 1000 feet and a maximum speed of 90 miles an hour.

Soviet Joins U. S. Stand on Palestine

left the Arabs without a shred of support except from the Moslem world. In consequence there is every prospect tonight, for the first time, of a two-thirds vote of this Assembly in favor of partition.

Many smaller countries, whom one delegate described as the "chronic abstainers," had been shy of voting one way or the other on Palestine, for fear of involving themselves in a new Soviet-American clash. Now it is expected that the Latin-Americans, the Scandinavians and other small nations will no longer be afraid to commit themselves to partition.

This belief was strengthened by the calm and reasoned manner in which Tzarapkin stated the Soviet position today.

No Red Propaganda

From start to finish his statement contained not one word of abuse of other countries' motives or policies. It had nothing to say about familiar Soviet propaganda themes such as the presence of foreign troops in the Middle East, or the penetration of "monopoly capital" into the Arab world, or the alleged presence of "war criminals and traitors" among the displaced persons in Europe.

Old-timers here could remember no such moderate speech on a major issue by any Soviet representative since the establishment of the United Nations. The manner of the statement, as well as its substance, helped instantly to clear the atmosphere and to set the stage for concrete accomplishment by the assembly on the Palestine issue if on no others.

Tsarapkin began by brushing aside the historical arguments which Jews and Arabs have been using, at exhausting length, during this Assembly.

"We have here," he said, "not an academic dispute in respect of how long the Jews or the Arabs have lived in Palestine . . . We are speaking here of the right of self-determination of many hundreds of thousands of Jews as well as Arabs living in Palestine to live freely and peacefully in their own state."

Recalls Jewish Suffering

He recalled the "exceptional calamities and sufferings" of the Jewish people of Europe during the war. The Jewish people, as well as others, he said, "has the right that its fate, its security and welfare will not be dependent upon the mercy and good-will of this or that State."

The assembly had to send its special commission to Palestine because the British mandate "did not meet the test," he said. And he paid a tribute to the "useful and great work" done by the assembly's commission— a tribute which the United States had neglected to pay in its own statement last week.

He went on to say that the plan of a binational state, proposed by a minority of the commission, "has its advantages and qualities."

However, he said, this plan "cannot apparently be put into practice" because Arab-Jewish relations "have reached such a degree of tension that a conciliation of their points of view has become impossible."

"Because of this," he said, "we have to turn to the plan proposed by the majority of the commission —that is, the plan which provides the partition of Palestine into two independent states, one Arab and one Jewish, as this plan is under the present circumstances the one which could be better put into practice."

Favors Close Union

Tsarapkin then pointed to the proposal of the commission of inquiry that the two new states be joined in a close economic union. He said these proposals "deserve special atteention" not only from the standpoint of Palestine's future economy, but because they "would also be a means of bringing the peoples inhabiting Palestine together, and by this will be able to prepare in the future closer political relations between them."

He was careful to say that "further and thorough consideration" was needed on specific proposals of the inquiry commission, among them the frontier line between the new states, the measures to be taken during the transition from British rule, and the status of the City of Jerusalem. The commission had proposed putting the city and nearby holy places under international trusteeship.

"The Soviet delegation considers," he said, "that simultaneously with the termination of the mandate, it is necessary to take a decision on the authority which will govern during the transition period and be responsible to the organization of the United Nations."

All this, and much more in Tsarapkin's statement left many questions unanswered, just as the American statement did on Saturday. The Soviet spokesman said nothing about enforcing a partition plan; the Americans suggested a volunteer force to be recruited by the United Nations.

Johnson Is Gratified

Nevertheless, Hershel V. Johnson, for the United States, later said he was "gratified" to find that on many points the Soviet position was similar to the American.

The chief anxiety of the Americans now is to make sure that this assembly not only agrees on principles but on the pattern by which the changeover to partition will be accomplished.

Accordingly, the Americans followed up the Soviet statement by proposing two resolutions. The first, sponsored jointly with Sweden, called upon the Assembly's Palestine Committee to approve the unanimous recommendations of the commission of inquiry, and also its majority recommendations which included the partition plan.

Secondly, the United States proposed appointing a subcommittee to work out details and report back to the full Palestine committee by November 3. It does not matter greatly to the Americans whether this group is identical with the 11-nation commission that went to Palestine, as Russia proposed today, or whether some new group is chosen.

Of all the questions left unanswered today, the most intriguing was "why did the Russians do it?" Why did they side with the Americans, and why did they forego an opportunity to embarass the Western powers in the Middle East?

Neighbor of Moslems

The Soviet Union is a neighbor of the Moslem world, and some delegates felt tonight that it could not have been easy for the Kremlin to antagonize Moslems from Morocco to Indonesia—especially when there are millions of Moslems on Soviet soil. The Soviet statement today was followed by speeches from Egypt, Afghanistan and Pakistan, all complaining bitterly about the alleged injustice of the partition plan.

On the other hand, the Soviet satellites of eastern Europe contain within their borders hundreds of thousands of Jews who might make themselves sources of political discontent. Some delegates here thought that such political considerations might have influenced the decision today.

Whatever the cause, the result was to give a new lease of life to an assembly that was beginning to despair of its ability to accomplish anything.

The "North Western" States of America

. . . open door to opportunity

When speeding northward on a Chicago and North Western train, some 40 miles out of Chicago one crosses the southern boundary of Wisconsin. It is a state that is world famous for its woods-and-lakes regions, its pleasant summers and stimulating climate.

It is also a state wherein opportunity beckons. For here are vast natural resources, a state wherein industry thrives—and where industry thrives prosperity exists.

How does industrial Wisconsin keep busy? Wisconsin is one of the leading states in the production of paper, ranging from newsprint to the finest bond, as well as a variety of paper products. From its borders also come motor vehicles, farm implements and tractors, as well as wood products, processed foods and aluminum goods. And looming big on the list are plumbing supplies, furniture, footwear and products of tanneries, machine shops and foundries.

And, as all America knows, Wisconsin is America's No. 1 dairyland. Its production of milk, butter and cheese is an enviable one. Besides, it provides the nation with half of its canning peas, ranks second in cranberries, is a major cabbage and cherry producer.

The Chicago and North Western System serves Wisconsin well. Its lines enter from the south, west and north, and criss-cross the state. The transportation it provides assures easy access to such nearby markets as Chicago, St. Paul and Minneapolis; indeed, to all America!

Landon Warns Watch 'Kremlin Gangsters'; Sees No War Soon

Topeka, Kans., Oct. 13 (AP).—Alf M. Landon, 1936 Republican Presidential candidate, declared today that he did not think a third world war was imminent, but urged vigilance against the "Kremlin gangsters."

Landon

Speaking to the 47th reunion of the Twentieth Kansas Infantry which won fame in the Spanish-American war and the Philippine insurrection, Landon said:

"Now a lot of people are running around wringing their hands about Russia as a threat to world peace. Why, I don't know. They do not begin to compare with us in national strength or even national solidarity.

"Here stands America, a stupendous nation—strong like no other before it—unaware of the vastness of its muscle, unsure in its leadership, without which world solutions are impossible."

There is no present need, he stated, to worry about our own national security," but "we should be concerned about the soundness of our own domestic policies—efficient administration of those policies—and adequate national defense."

The former governor cited many figures on amounts of aid supplied to Europe by this country, but he added:

"I don't see how we are going to make both ends meet in regard to the amount of food required for European relief, and the amount the American people consume at home. We just can't do it."

He declared that "we have every indication of an extremely short wheat crop for 1948," citing conditions for wheat seeding in the high plains area as "the poorest since World War I."

Regarding domestic politics, Landon said there would be no third party financed by the CIO Political Action Committee, "but we are seeing a third party formed, financed and sparked by the Russian international."

He added: "Those who are now fostering the third party movement in America are neither Republicans nor Democrats nor loyal Americans."

Police Calm About Bevin Death Threat

London, Oct. 13 (AP).—A reported threat to assassinate Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin alarmed Britain today, but Scotland Yard dismissed it with the terse comment "he is protected."

A spokesman acknowledged there "has been a certain recrudescence of threatening against Mr. Bevin." He offered no details.

Scotland Yard said no "new plot" had been uncovered against Bevin, and no "new" instructions had been issued for guarding him. Emphasis was on the word "new," and a Yard spokesman acknowledged there had been a "very old" threat against Bevin, but refused to reveal details, or the time it was made.

Last June Bevin was among several leaders to whom "letter bombs" were addressed in a "murder-by-mail" plot which Scotland Yard attributed to Jewish extremists.

Bandsman Denies Instrument Theft

Baltimore, Oct. 13 (AP).—Cay A. Rimert, band leader for the Baltimore Colts of the All-America Football Conference, was free on $4000 bail today after pleading innocent to four charges of fraud and theft of musical instruments.

Ribert, who has directed bands and taught music here for about 12 years, was alleged to have taken instruments valued at $490 from St. Brigid's Catholic Church, whose band he formerly directed, and instruments valued at $138 from the C. G. Conn Co., where he formerly gave instructions.

The graud charges specified that he obtained money from insurance companies on instruments which, it was testified, Rimert sold and then reported as stolen.

Play winning gin rummy

with the help of the first and only Complete, Region-by-region roundup of expert instruction, rules, and procedure for America's number one card game.

OSWALD JACOBY'S
GIN RUMMY

One of the country's ace card players—ranked five times as the world's bridge champion—has here set down the simple, complete details of his own winning gin rummy tactics: how he thinks the game and how he plays it. To read this book is to be a privileged kibitzer over the shoulder of a champion who shows you, play-by-play, what he does, why he does it, and how you can do it, too, to win at gin. He gives you, in addition, instruction and rules for Oklahoma Gin, Hollywood Gin, Shutout Games, Spade Hands Double, Simultaneous Games, Cutthroat Gin, Captain and Crew, Battle Royal, Partnership and Alternating Partnership Gin. Furthermore, in this new book Jacoby has drawn up the first set of rules and penalties that can serve as a national standard, and at the same time allow for regional variations in the methods of play.

HOW GIN IS PLAYED IN WASHINGTON
Leroy P. Chittenden
of the National Press Club, in an article especially written for GIN RUMMY, teaches you the Washington variation using Mr. Jacoby's standard rules. Here are the different methods of scoring, playing and counting in the Washington style. Gin Rummy includes nine other articles on regional variations written by local experts. If you have never played gin, the chances are you soon will. Let this book show you how to win from the start. If you do play it, buy this fascinating volume and learn how to change your winning luck to winning skill.

SAFEWAY'S MEAT COUNTERS ARE OPEN ON TUESDAYS AND EVERY DAY BUT SUNDAY

HERE IS WHY:

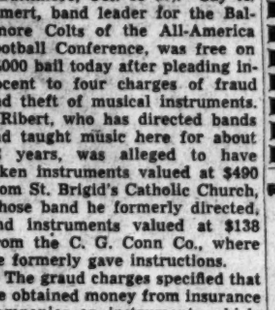

1. Many people need fresh meat in some form every day as prescribed by their physicians for specific health conditions.
2. Certain creeds and religious faiths may observe a day other than Tuesday as their meatless day.
3. Many consumers may find it necessary to buy their meat on Tuesday for use on Wednesday.

In having meat for sale every day, Safeway is simply fulfilling its obligation to serve the needs of all customers.

In addition, Safeway believes that an important contribution will be made to cutting down waste by maintaining an even flow of perishable foods from producer to consumer. For its part, Safeway intends to wholeheartedly cooperate with President Truman's program by doing everything possible to eliminate spoilage and waste in its stores and warehouses. Closing the stores or withholding food from sale on any business day would simply mean an extra storage period for perishable foods, which in turn would increase the amount of waste and spoilage.

AFL Rejects CIO Proposal For Joint Political Action

San Francisco, Oct. 13 (AP).—President William Green today slammed the door of the American Federation of Labor on a CIO proposal for joint political action, and then declared the AFL would go for "an all-out political campaign" of its own in 1948.

From Boston, where the CIO is in convention, its president, Philip Murray, had messaged Green the offer of joint political action, saying the AFL and CIO should combine ranks against "our common enemy."

Green, in declining, restated the AFL stand for a physical merger with the CIO before political cooperation. This is the opposite of the CIO view, which holds for cooperative action first and then actual merger of the two labor bodies.

League Recommended

Over the weekend the AFL executive council had recommended creation of "labor's educational and political league"—similar to the CIO-PAC—and recommended boosting the per capita tax from 2 to 3 cents to finance the program.

After disposing of Murray's plea, Green appeared as a speaker before the Commonwealth Club here to serv notice the AFL intended to take to the hustings in its own cause.

Prefacing his statement with an attack on the Taft-Hartley law and a promise to "fight . . . involuntary servitude," Green said:

"The current convention of the American Federation of Labor will decide how that fight is to be conducted.

"In my judgment, it will authorize a Nation-wide educational campaign to expose the fallacies of the Taft-Hartley Act.

"And at the same time, in my opinion, the convention will vote for an all-out political campaign by organized labor in 1948 to halt the reactionary trend in its tracks and to give the next Congress a progressive mandate."

Stresses First Duty

Green also told the Commonwealth Club that "our first duty is to strengthen and stabilize our domestic economy, to prevent a depression at any cost, and to keep production and employment at high levels."

Pledging the federation to work towar da "more productive and balanced economy" an dto assist in strengthening the national economy, Green added:

"This cannot be accomplished by a short-sighted policy of isolationism in world affairs on contraction in national affairs.

"We must expand, not draw into aturtle shell. We must do more, not less."

Earlier, delegates of the AFL's sixty-sixth annual convention approved recommendations of its organizing committee for intesified organizing efforts in the coming year.

Particular emphasis was given resolutions calling for federation action in the Southern States and territories, especially the sugar-growing areas of Hawaii, Puerto Rico, and the sugarcane States of Louisiana and Florida.

Bridges Activity Seen Target

In referring to the executive council for appropriate action an authorization for creation of a Federal territorial department, observers felt special attention was directed against the recent organizational activity of Harry Bridges' CIO longshore union in the sugar industry of the Hawaiian Islands and Puerto Rico.

Alaska also would come under the territorial department, a move regarded as indicative of AFL interest in the developing Alaskan pulp and paper industry.

The organization committee, likewise, appealed for special interest on the part of international unions in the growth of the American Federation of Teachers, and rapped the "continued close association" of the National Education Association and the National Association of Manufacturers as one which "smacks of company unionism."

Sen. McKellar Says This Is Last Term

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 13 (AP).—Senator Kenneth D. McKellar (D., Tenn.) said today he will not be a candidate for public office again.

"I hope to serve out by term, doing the best I can for my State," the 78-year-old lawmaker told the Memphis Press-Scimitar. "This will be my last term. I will not be a candidate for public office again."

McKellar was elected last year to his sixth term in the United States Senate. His term expires in 1953.

CIO Cheers Pepper's Plea to Elect New Dealer

Boston, Oct. 13 (AP).—The national CIO convention, its bid for a 1948 voting alliance rejected by the AFL, stamped and applauded today as Sen. Claude Pepper (D., Fla.) declared "Republicanism and reaction are dominant in the Nation's capital today."

Gen. Marshall

More than 600 delegates, representing six million members, stood and cheered Pepper's call to "send back to Washington the kind of people who gathered there under Franklin D. Roosevelt."

The CIO invitation for united political action by labor was extended in a message from President Philip Murray to the American Federation of Labor convention in San Francisco. At the same time an invitation went to the railroad brotherhoods.

AFL Rejects Proposal

In Cleveland, Alva F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, accepted Murray's invitation. In San Francisco, AFL President William Green, said Murray's proposal had been rejected.

The ninth annual meeting of the 41-union congress also heard a letter fro mPresident Truman, in which he asserted "prices have advanced to unreasonable heights, and housing is far insufficient for our needs.

"I now, too," the President's letter added "that labor and industry . . . will cooperate to raise the production level still further to help meet the critical conditions which threaten the well-being of the entire world."

Secretary of State Marshall's forthcoming speech Wednesday remained the No. 1 topic in unofficial talk. Some delegates hailed Marshall's acceptance as a CIO slap at Communists, and suggested it could result in raising this Government's prestige among workers in other countries who have heard Marshall denounced in pro-Soviet statements.

President Truman's mention of prices and housing was taken up in turn by Pepper and Murray. Both assailed the last Congress for inadequate handling of the two problems.

"Food Combines" Scored

Murray charged: "The recent skyrocketing of prices in the United States is directly attributable to those practices of extortion which lie at the doorstep of the great industrialists and food combines in the United States of America."

Senator Pepper ignored altogether an earlier prepared text in which he had turned his criticism against "militarists and 'Wall Streeters" whom he described as "reactionary" in both domestic and foreign policy.

that "I meant to say I honor and respect General Marshall, but there is a ten[illegible] among some people in the military class who want to use military methods in foreign policy . . . and some in Wall Street who want to make the flag follow their business.

Loyalty Stressed

Murray was cheered when he said he was reaffirming his statement of last year, that the CIO "owes its allegiance to one country and its loyalty to one flag.

"I might strengthen it by adding . . . that this loyalty is due our form of Government, to our Constitution, and to our basic democratic institutions.

"Let no one," Murray said, ". . . through the use of subleties ,attempt to convey the impression that this organizatoin is anything other than what I said it is."

Other Activities Urged

Murray listed as other activities recommended to the convention, programs to fight injunctions in labor disputes, for the elimination of racial and religious bigotry, and approval of the proposed Jewish state in Paletsine. On the last matter, Murray suggested that the CIO call on the Government of the United States to "take the lead" in securing acceptance in the U. N. committee of the recent resolution offered by a majority of the special committee on Palestine.

Of the political action program, Murray said: "We are undertaking for the first time a real national campaign to organize the vote and get the largest registration in American history for 1948."

Murray criticized Federal Housing Expediter Frank Creedon for "weak, vacciliating administration" in failing to prevent a rent increase at Louisville, Ky., last week.

Opening a convention that is taking on international importance, Murray said the CIO officially supports a drive against hunger, "wherever hunger may be."

Just before that, Archbishop Richard J. Cushing of Boston had asked the CIO to support such parts of American foreign policy as will provide "food, money, coal, clothing, friendship and faith to the needy of the world.

Boy, 16, Killed As Scooter Hits Auto Head-On

A 16-year-old boy was killed last night when a motor scooter he was riding collided head-on with an automobile in Annapolis.

George Samuel Wilson, the son of a civilian Navy employe at Annapolis, was taken to Emergency Hospital in Annapolis, where he was pronounced dead at 7:21 p. m., a little more than an hour after the accident.

Officer C. R. Moreland of Annapolis police, who investigated the accident, said the automobile apparently was on the wrong side of the street. After striking the boy, the car collided with an electric power pole, the policeman said.

The driver, Charles W. Phillips, 42, of Bozman, Md., was held on a charge of manslaughter.

...our costs have gone up, too!

Some examples of increased costs since 1939, affecting railroad operation

SOME PEOPLE get along under higher prices by using less or doing without. Some have more income to help meet higher costs. All can adjust outgo to income, to a large extent.

But a railroad cannot skimp or do without and still provide good, efficient and safe service—adequate to the needs and desires of the public.

The chart at left shows why the Eastern Railroads have had to ask for an increase in freight rates. The simple reason is that the increases allowed since 1939 are nowhere near enough to meet today's costs. The revenue the railroads get for hauling the average ton of freight is only 15% more, whereas the cost of operating the railroads has increased more than 63% in that period.

Only recently, for instance, an arbitration board added another $468,000,000 to our annual bill for wages and wage taxes, of which $187,000,000 is borne by the Eastern Railroads. This brings the increase in these items alone to more than 75% since 1939.

All the railroads ask is what the law says they should be allowed to have. That means just and reasonable rates. The law says there is need in the public interest for adequate and efficient railway transportation service at the lowest cost consistent with furnishing such service.

In other words, all the railroads ask is sufficient revenue to enable them, under honest, economical and efficient management, to provide the kind of service people want.

Increased freight rates since 1939 have increased the revenue from hauling the average ton of freight one mile only 15%

Virginia Victory

The University of Virginia's football team licked something more than a previously unbeaten Harvard eleven at Charlottesville on Saturday. It gave an equally decisive walloping to an antiquated racial prejudice—setting at rest the silly notion that Virginians could not be counted upon to behave as Americans. The Virginia football players, having voted that they wanted to play against Harvard's Negro tackle, Chester Pierce, treated him exactly as they treated the rest of the Harvard team—which is to say, very roughly but with unimpeachable sportsmanship. According to Frank Dennis, who reported the game for The Washington Post, when Pierce went out "there was brisk applause, for he had blocked and tackled well despite the superiority of the Virginia team." Judging from the final score, 47 to 0, however, Pierce's most important role was to represent the United States Constitution. It is said that he is the very first of his race to represent it on a gridiron south of the Mason-Dixon line. But there will be others. The Virginians' respect for the Constitution, and for the fundamentals of fair play, has set the rest of the South a healthy and happy example.

FCC's Loss

Charles R. Denny's resignation from the Federal Communications Commission affords another melancholy illustration of the inadequacy of Government salary scales. While still a young man, he chooses to leave a public post of great importance for private employment which will no doubt multiply his monetary compensation, although it can scarcely afford him comparable influence. Considering the current inflation of living costs, in the face of which even a top administrator's pay permits scant luxury, one can scarcely criticize him for seeking a more comfortable future. We think it is regrettable that he is to join one of the corporations which until now it has been his business to regulate.

As general counsel of the FCC and during his brief term as its chairman, Mr. Denny has earned the respect of the radio industry. He supported with tact yet vigor the admonitions of the FCC's Blue Book—a report on the public service responsibilities of broadcast licensees—and won from the broadcasters a considerable if grudging recognition of the validity of those admonitions, as attested by the code of standards recently proposed at the NAB convention in Atlantic City. The Government's relationship to radio, touching as it does upon freedom of expression, is a delicate one. In choosing a successor to Mr. Denny, the President must seek again an individual sensitive to all the implications of regulation in the communications field yet determined to make radio realize its tremenduos potentialities for public service.

Teamwork

"The situation," Philip Murray told the members of the CIO in his annual report, "demands production, production and more production—and to secure this production it demands capacity and more industrial capacity." By "the situation," Mr. Murray had in mind at once the ruinous inflation which threatens our economy at home and the frustration which threatens recovery abroad and, therefore, the peace of the world. He is indisputably right in his prescription. There is no remedy for soaring prices based on scarcity save by dispelling the scarcity—which means, of course, bringing supply into balance with demand by producing more goods. Equally, there is no remedy for European economic stagnation save through provision of the food, tools and raw materials necessary to set the wheels of industry in motion overseas.

Mr. Murray proposes a new device for increasing production—National Industrial Councils in which labor and management will join "which can serve to develop a pattern of production teamwork for other nations to follow." His report affords little specification as to the nature of these councils. It does not matter. Any mechanism will serve if labor and management leaders are genuinely desirous of working together. They wrought seeming miracles through cooperation during the war. The same sort of cooperation is no less needed now "to strengthen the forces of democracy," as Mr. Murray put it, "throughout the world."

The report to the CIO membership, while sharply critical of industry and of what the labor leader calls "the business-dominated Congress," is a testament of faith in the free enterprise system and in American potentialities. "If American business will have the same faith in our future as has American labor," he declared, "and if government will take its full employment guarantee seriously, there need never be a serious recession or depression again in our country." This is the hope of the world, as well as the hope of the United States. Everywhere men who care for freedom depend upon it. Mr. Murray's challenge deserves an affirmative and sympathetic response from industry.

Flowers From Moscow

Mrs. Roosevelt said the other day that "you cannot understand why the Russians act as they do, even when you project yourself into the position their nation occupies." Difficult as it is, however, the effort will be made in respect of the Soviet stand on Palestine. This is at one with the American stand on Saturday, namely, in favor of partition; and the position was stated, moreover, in such milk and honey language as to astound the other delegates. The Soviet went much beyond unequivocal support of partition. It praised the U. N.'s Commission on Palestine, and proposed that any modification of the boundary lines—as, presumably, in respect of Jaffa—be left to the same commission to work out. Particularly was there a welcome for the suggestion of an economic union between the Arab and Jewish states as an essential step in the direction of a binational state. When the statement had concluded the delegates privately sought to figure out the whys and wherefores of Soviet amiability.

Actually the Soviet position corresponded to the statement made by Mr. Gromyko last May on Soviet policy. The ideal solution from the Soviet's point of view, he said, was a "dual, democratic Arab-Jewish state." If that proved impossible to bring about, then the USSR would back a partition of Palestine between Jew and Arab. This was the solution recommended by a majority of the U. N. Commission. It had been imagined, in view of the growing anti-Americanism of Soviet policy since May, that the Soviet would adopt another line at this Assembly, if only out of sheer cussedness. But the fact remains that, as we said in comment on Mr. Gromyko's statement, the Russians in recent years have felt they had more in common with the Palestinian Jews than with the Arabs. This is natural enough. In the first place, it is obvious now that the Zionists are no longer what the old Bolshevists used to charge, viz, "the lackeys of British imperialists." Secondly, the advanced and progressive Jews of Palestine hold out much more promise to the Soviet government than the backward Arabs controlled by the feudal cliques of kings and effendis. Moscow cannot forget the contribution that Jewish Palestine made to the war effort of the Allies. Palestine was an invaluable workshop, and the Kremlin has a profound respect for the kind of technician that manned it.

We would also hazard that the Soviet is watching with great satisfaction the liquidation of one after another outpost of the British Empire. It has always wanted in particular to extrude Britain from the Middle East. Palestine occupies a position of singular strategic importance. It is the virtual link between the three continents, lying on the Mediterranean within close touch of the Suez Canal, and it serves as the outlet and inlet for the trade of that area, chiefly Arabia's oil. In all these circumstances, therefore, it seemed to us last May that "there is nothing surprising in the Russian gambit."

Nobody could be more surprised over the denouement, we fancy, than the neutral-minded contingent in our State Department. The argument for neutrality was a fear, sedulously fostered, that by injuring the susceptibilities of the Arabs we might thrust them into the arms of Russia. This cautionary advice was echoed in Whitehall. It influenced Mr. Bevin, but was rejected, after long and tortuous cogitation by Secretary Marshall. The case, of course, wasn't very plausible. A united Arab world is more of an invention than a fact, even about Palestine, with the Lebanese stranger to the Saudi Arabians than to New Yorkers. Besides, the territories are run by pashas, landlords and feudalists who would shudder at the thought of leaning on Moscow. Lending themselves to the farce of Arab unity were the correspondents who reported last weekend the "ring of steel" with which the outside Arabs had vested Palestine. Several authorities in a nearby column show the lack of reality back of this fanciful piece of intimidation. There will be no jehad, or holy war, over Palestine, and, if the united stand of the great powers is maintained, there is no reason to doubt the world's acceptance and enforcement (if necessary) of partition in Palestine. The Soviet speech appeared to bring this vexed issue sensibly nearer to solution.

Lobby Probe

We hope that the reports indicating the Department of Justice is undertaking an investigation of lobbyists are true. There has been widespread suspicion, since the Lobbying Act of 1946 came into effect, that many "big shots" in the influence racket have not complied with its terms. The Department of Justice has a clear responsibility to determine whether the law is being evaded, and, if so, to prosecute the evaders.

At the same time it would be unfortunate, in our opinion, if such an investigation were linked to lobbying on any particular piece of legislation. The Lobbying Act is not designed to prevent any group of citizens from bringing influence to bear upon members of Congress. It does not apply at all to persons who confine their lobbying to open and frank appearance before the committees of Congress. Nor does it apply to organizations whose lobbying is incidental to other purposes for which they exist. It does apply, however, to any person or agent who collects money to initiate or influence the course of national legislation, whether or not he operates in Washington, and to paid lobbyists and representatives of professional, business, labor and philanthropic organizations who come here to work for or against legislation. In all these instances the law requires registration of the lobbyist and the filing of information showing the amount of his compensation, the source of funds used and so forth. The basic purpose of the law is to bring out into the open all lobbying activity rather than to suppress any type of lobbying or group of lobbyists.

The right to lobby, like freedom of speech, is one of our basic constitutional liberties. Congress has in no manner impaired that right, but has only insisted that lobbies operate openly. The purpose of any Department of Justice investigation must necessarily be, therefore, to determine whether lobbyists have complied with this requirement. Obviously the test should be applied to all lobbyists concerning themselves with national legislation and not merely to one or two groups interested in legislation which the Administration has opposed.

The investigation ought to be broad enough also to cover lobbying by Federal officials. In spite of congressional efforts to prevent this type of lobbying, the use of public funds to stir up sentiment for or against measures in which administrative agencies may be interested has sometimes reached scandalous proportions. The most common type of such lobbying is for a bureau chief in Washington to alert administrative units throughout the country and have them prod private organizations or individual beneficiaries of legislation under discussion into protesting against proposed changes. Probably it is too much to expect the Department of Justice to expose this type of undercover lobbying, but if it does not Congress certainly should.

Atomic Education

Atomic energy will be brought under democratic control only as ordinary citizens—as distinguished from scientists, statesmen and soldiers—understand the imperatives it poses. No special knowledge of science or engineering is necessary for this sort of understanding; what is needed, as Chairman David E. Lilienthal of the Atomic Energy Commission put it in an address a few weeks ago, is simply a "sense about human relations, about standards of fairness, about principles of self-government and self-education" and the application of these to the tremendous new force that science has unleashed. Well before Mr. Lilienthal had made his plea for this kind of citizen approach to the problem of atomic energy, the people of Prince Georges County, Maryland, had begun the planning of a local atomic energy week to be devoted to exploring and studying the role of the ordinary responsible individual in respect of atomic energy control. The slogan of the Prince Georges program is, "You can do your part." Observance of the week started on Sunday.

Virtually every facet of community life has been given a part in the county program. The week was started significantly by services in the churches—"because the use and control of atomic energy is more than a political problem. It is a moral and spiritual issue." Schools of the county will hold assemblies, have lectures, see movies and special exhibits. From Monday through Saturday, 44 civic organizations will participate jointly in 17 meetings to be addressed by atomic scientists and other authorities. Here, it seems to us, is a splendid example of the democratic process in operation at the grass-roots level. It is through just this sort of self-schooling that free men and women develop the informed public opinion which is the motive force of a democracy.

Distillery Workers

The threat of the distillery workers to sue their employers in the event of a general two-month shutdown must be read with a grain of salt. There is nothing in the Taft-Hartley Act or in any labor contract we know of that compels an employer to provide a job when there is no job. There is also a question about the degree of the joblessness that would be entailed by a two-month holiday in distilling. The personnel in the entire industry is nowhere near the figure of 100,000 that is sometimes given, but is between 4000 and 5000. No distiller, moreover, would let his trained workers go, but would find other work for them to do in the distilleries, such as bottling, rectifying and other work around the plant. At most only about 3000 general laborers would be affected.

There should be no difficulty in finding jobs for the men laid off. A tight labor market prevails in most of the communities in which the distilleries are located, and there are local agencies which could and would handle the problem of placement. In addition, the Luckman committee no doubt is prepared to help. The union's intimidation, along with other samples of propaganda, gives off a smell of disgruntlement on the part of one or two holdouts in the industry, though the industry as a whole seems to have been more than willing to cooperate in the holiday suggested by the President and put up to the industry personally by Mr. Luckman.

IMAGE OF SUMMER

Under the moving veil of leaves
We look out again upon a lost world
Whose shape and color is remembered green.
There is a special song that comes with summer:
Flute of wind; cello-note in the long grasses;
Violin-light on lifted wave;
Indolent joy, harp of memory struck in the mind.

The year revolves to the time of this music—
The snowflake, the flying leaf, the bird that returns
Are part of this singing.
Brief, brief the time of enchantment,
Hills flowing, valley of mystery,
Sand golden and drowsy in the lake
That doubles the image of summer.

Wheat For Europe

Doubts concerning the adequacy of our food conservation program to prevent catastrophe in Europe and a consequent westward expansion of communism raise a pertinent question.

Could not our Government purchase now, without awaiting the outcome of our food conservation program, the total amount of wheat needed to tide western Europe through the winter? This would give the western European peoples confidence now that their minimum needs to avert starvation would be met, a confidence which would be a strong bulwark against any westward spread of communism. As long as fulfillment of these minimum needs depends upon the future success of our conservation program, Europeans cannot have this confidence.

Granted such a step would raise the price of wheat here. It might even leave us short ourselves in the spring, although the price rise would aid the conservation program by making wheat expensive for livestock feed and causing wider public use of other foods in place of bread.

But these adverse results seem relatively unimportant when compared to the consequences of starvation in Europe. Difficulties in buying bread would mean for Americans only inconvenience, for it is not our staple diet and we have many other things to eat. It would surely seem worth a considerable amount of inconvenience to avert starvation in western Europe and its far-reaching consequences for both Europe and the United States.

"Winter Of Decision"

"If," you say in your editorial of October 6, "the American people understand the significance of what is happening in the world, they will embrace this program (food conservation) as the most effective means now at hand of protecting their way of life in the most serious emergency since the end of the war."

You, a few other editors, and a few men in public life are doing your best to make the people understand. I hope you will consider that part of your task is to try to make your readers understand why, i this "most serious emergency since the end of the war," the Administration seems content with the sort of grisly pussy-footing employed the night of October 5 by President Truman, Secretary Marshall, Secretary Anderson, Secretary Harriman, and Mr. Charles Luckman.

You say that awareness of the basic situation was "implicit" in all that was said from the White House. But you had to dig down under a lot of hypocrisy to find it. Are the Adminstration leaders, and the leaders on the Republican side, afraid t speak with candor? Why are they not explicit? Would you have quarreled with either President Truman or Secretary Marshall if either on the night of October 5 had said these words:

"Fellow Americans. This is a critical period in our affairs . . . The Soviet Union will ot permit its own people, or the people in countries it dominates, to establish the kind of government and social system we believe in. Throughout the world, we and the Soviet Union are engaged in a conflict of ideas.

"Europe is d sperately hungry. Just as a man who is a good American will steal bread to feed his starving family, and worry about ethics and justice when his children are fed, so will a starving European turn to the Soviet or any other system which offers him a brighter promise of bread than we do, his professed friends . . .

"We hope that we shall not resort to guns again. But the surest way now to make armed hostilities unnecessary, or, failing that, to postpone the issue of arms until we can have on our side all who in their hearts desir to stand with us, is to send to Europe food and machinery and other aids which will fortify men against choices they do not desire to make."

Foreign Postage

The world at present looks to America for rehabilitation of both persecuted and persecutors. Hundreds of thousands of Americans are direct or indirect descendants of Germans. Some have sent, some are sending, and others would send parcels containing varied living necessities overseas.

They find it difficult to continue such activity because of the postage required to ship packages by parcel post. At 14 cents a pound, frequently the postage alone is greater than the value of the contents. For instance, a pound of flour costing 10 cents is increased by postage to 24 cents, to mention one item.

The CARE organization is doing a wonderful job but it has its limitations. Acknowledgement of receipt of order has taken five to six weeks; delivery, three to four months later; and the packages are standardized. (CARE is not permitted to make deliveries in the Russian zone of occupied Germany.)

Shipments by individuals are made up principally of varied goods and foodstuffs not provided by CARE. Domestic and foreign first-class airmail postage has been greatly reduced. Recipients, however, cannot eat letters. If postage on gift parcels containing bare necessities of life could be substantially reduced, some of the burden of providing commodities overseas would be assumed by more individuals with less strain on our Government.

Food Subsidies

This writer submits that the first task undertaken by Congress, in special or regular session, should be either drastic modification or outright repeal of laws covering food subsidies. Most of these statutes were enacted during the depression to raise disproportionately low farm prices to the level of other goods. They were never designed to support food prices during a period of full employment and peak demand when food prices are out of all proportion to the prices of other goods generally.

So far this year, the Government has bought almost a billion pounds of potatoes, a sizable portion of which were destroyed. Earlier in the year, we were told the Government had on its hands millions of dozens of dried and powdered eggs which it did not know what to do with. In order to punch up prices, we read that any number of other food items are being bought by Government, a good deal of which will be sold at a loss, given away to charitable institutions or deliberately destroyed.

A policy of subsidies, waste and deliberate destruction of edible food not only betrays the American people but it also betrays needy Europeans since these same Government-supported prices will be charged against loans to other countries for food shipped abroad.

American Magnet

Those of us who take American liberty and freedom for granted, and those few who would like to overthrow our present form of everyday life, should give at least some little thought to the reason why a handful of Estonians braved the Atlantic in a tiny craft and navigated to Miami, and why a German girl attempted a suicidal "stowaway" plan on a United States-bound plane.

It seems that to Europe's long-suffering, deeply wounded people the American magnet exerts a greater influence than the inborn human instinct of self-preservation.

Arab Threats On Palestine

The undersigned, the first three of whom were members of the Anglo-American Committee of Inquiry on Palestine, and the others, writers with first-hand knowledge of the Middle East, its peoples, problems and conditions, believe they can speak with authority on the Arab states' threats to settle the Palestine question by force of arms.

We consider it our duty to convey to the American press, and through it to the American people, our evaluation of these threats. Leaving to the United Nations the question of whether the Arab states can be allowed to violate the U. N. Charter by undertaking open aggression against Palestine, we proclaim that there is no substance whatsoever in the threats of the Arab politicians.

Syria, Lebanon and Iraq, whose armies are allegedly being concentrated on the frontiers for an invasion of the Holy Land, are militarily so weak that they cannot defend their own countries and cannot suppress local rebellions of mutinous minority groups. Their armies are extremely small in numbers, weak in morale, ill equipped, badly trained and utterly inexperienced in modern warfare. Furthermore, the Christian majority of the population in Lebanon favors a Jewish state in Palestine and is opposed to its own present unrepresentative government.

The only effective Arab military force is the Arab Legion of Transjordania, which however is maintained, commanded and controlled by Britain. Saudi Arabia wisely keeps quiet at the moment. Should Ibn Saud join in the threats it should be remembered that he and King Abdullah of Transjordania are mortal enemies. For Saudi Arabia to intervene in Palestine would involve the sending of an expeditionary force across Transjordania. Poland would sooner allow an American Army to cross into Russia than Abdullah would tolerate a Saudi Arabian march through his territory.

On the other hand, Palestine Jewry is a factor of considerable strength in modern warfare. The British commander, General D'Arcy, in his testimony before the Anglo-American Committee, stated without hesitation that Palestine Jewry could militarily hold its own. The Arab threats are mere bluff.

When Hitler threatened the world with aggression he had a powerful Wehrmacht to back up his threats. When the Husseinis of Palestine or Azzam Bey of the Arab League, imitate Hitler, they have behind them an utterly disunited group of Arab peoples, with no armies, no air force, no navy, no equipment, no industrial potential and no know-how in modern warfare.

Calling Washington

By Marquis Childs

Administering the Plan

PARIS, FRANCE.—As a result of the journeying of perhaps a fourth of the American Congress through Europe and the Near East, one decision is now fairly clear. Whatever the final form and dimension of the Marshall Plan as it emerges from the Congress, it will not be administered by the Department of State.

Members of Congress of varying shapes of political belief are carrying home the conviction that a new instrument must be found; that anything on the scale envisioned by the Marshall Plan cannot be entrusted to any of the old-line Government departments.

There are several reasons for this conviction. One is the poor impression which our diplomatic representatives abroad made on the traveling Congressmen. They did not, of course, stop to ask themselves how much they were to blame for the weaknesses they found.

The returning Congressmen believe that our diplomats, given their conditioning and background, could not be counted on to see that American resources were used wisely. This comes not merely from chronic grumblers and doubters such as Representative John Taber of New York, who stands guard over the House Appropriations Committee. Democrats on the liberal side—Mike Monroney of Oklahoma for example— are of the same opinion.

Along with this basic conviction the returning travelers are taking home a number of ideas about how the plan can be carried out. In fact, when the debate begins, a multiplicity of ideas will be brought forward and the danger is likely to be a bill that in final passage is so complicated as to be all but unworkable.

MOST OF the constructive ideas center around a Government corporation to administer and supervise the spending of Marshall Plan funds and the allocation of resources. This instrumentality might bear a family resemblance to the Reconstruction Finance Corp.

At the top would be a non-political board of directors. They would have over-all supervisory powers. Subsidiary corporations might be formed in partnership with each nation participating in the plan.

The top corporation might be given an initial grant of, say four billion dollars. It would be empowered to issue noninterest-bearing bonds up to a fixed amount. Thus the blow to the American taxpayer would be softened.

Returning Congressmen are also talking in terms of repayment not in dollars, which is generally conceded to be impossible, but in raw materials. Belgium, for example, would repay us in uranium for dollars. The repayment would not come until after European rehabilitation was well advanced.

It is possible to foresee the structure of a Government corporation to administer the Marshall Plan. When it comes down to naming specific men to run the corporation, the difficulties begin. But this is not the chief question mark.

The real question is where, in such a picture, our ambassadors and ministers, with their staffs, would fit in. A Government corporation with billions to spend and allocate would certainly become the major instrument of foreign policy in Europe. It is an ancient rule of politics that power attracts power.

WE CAN already see in Greece the kind of conflicts that grow out of divided authority. In some respects Greece is a sort of proving ground which the Marshall Planners would do well to study with care.

In Athens the American aid mission is doing the spending and allocating. Quite understandably, the Greeks are looking to the mission rather than to the Embassy. This has made for cross-purpose and confusion, thereby impeding a program already far too long delayed.

One suggestion is being considered to get around such a conflict. That is to make the Ambassador a member of the board of directors of the subsidiary corporation in the country to which he is accredited.

All this is, of course, tentative. But such a concept is being developed. It will be offered when the Marshall Plan is introduced and it will have wide support certainly in the House and perhaps in the Senate, too.

Some of the ideas being discussed go far beyond this. They foresee an extraordinary degree of American supervision over how American funds shall be used within the individual country. These ideas show imagination and boldness. They are of Republican rather than Democratic origin.

On the one hand, Americans may feel that these bold concepts push the United States too far in the direction of superintendent over Europe's fortunes. On the other hand, Europeans may feel that such powers tread too heavily on the delicate ground of sovereignty. That will be known in the future. But one thing is certain, and that is that America is embarked on an extraordinary adventure.

"Common Cause"

I note in a letter of October 6 entitled "Common Cause," a statement that Common Cause is "headed by Mr. Naler Latham," who originated Bundles for Britain nine years ago . . ."

The national chairman of Common Cause, Inc., is Mrs. Edward B. Paine, who did originate Bundles for Britain and was decorated by the King for that sometime back. Mrs. Paine was Natalie Wales Latham before her recent marriage.

Vandenberg's Work

By Sumner Welles

Senate's Strong Role In Policy

THE CHARACTER and caliber of those who shape our foreign policy are more than ever matters of national concern in this period of growing crisis.

The extent to which the Senate has influenced policy in the past has varied greatly. During the administrations of strong and popular Presidents the role of the Senate has often been nominal. With a weak President, or with a President confronted, as in 1919, with a hostile Congress, the Senate has frequently determined our foreign policy. Yet as we look back, except in one tragic instance, our constitutional system of checks and balances has in the long run served the best interests of the American people.

The participation of the Senate in the formulation of American policy today is larger than at any time since the close of the first World War. The adverse majority in that body inevitably makes for a greater assertion of the Senate's prerogatives.

Under such conditions the country is fortunate in having as chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee a man of the ability and constructive vision of Arthur Vandenberg. He possesses a quality which is all too rare in modern statesmen: the capacity for growth.

His influence upon the development of the United Nations, and upon the course of our foreign relations, particularly since he became chairman, is far too little appreciated.

PROVISIONS IN the Charter of the United Nations which are today recognized as saving would never have been adopted had it not been for Senator Vandenberg's insistence. At the San Francisco conference it was he who urged that the General Assembly should at all times possess the right to discuss any questions relating to the maintenance of international peace and security brought before it by a member nation. It was he who was responsible for the inclusion in the Charter of the all-important principle contained in Article 51, that nothing "shall impair the inherent right of individual or collective self-defense if an armed attack occurs against a member of the United Nations" until such time as the Security Council has taken the steps required to maintain international peace and security.

It is precisely to those two provisions that recourse has now been had in order to circumvent a stalemated Security Council.

It is due to Senator Vandenberg that the inter-American system was recently saved from destruction. He persistently opposed the policies of coercion and intervention on which the Department of State was bent during the Byrnes regime. It was Senator Vandenberg, at the Council on World Affairs in Cleveland last winter, who demanded the prompt convocation of the inter-American Conference on Hemispheric Defense. When the conference was finally held in Rio de Janeiro last August, it was he who played the leading part in making possible the conclusion of a treaty which is of vital importance to the New World.

IT WAS Senator Vandenberg's great speech in the Senate in January, 1945, which first advanced the proposal for a four-power alliance to prevent any future German aggression. It was he who fought for free commerce and navigation of the Danube, and for justice to Italy and Greece, throughout the Paris negotiations a year ago.

But invaluable as these acts of true statesmanship have been, no greater service could have been rendered the American people than Senator Vandenberg's consistent demonstration of his conviction that partisan considerations should have no part in the conduct of American foreign policy. He has made it clear that a bipartisan foreign policy does not mean that the leaders of the opposition need blindly acquiesce in the measures recommended by the Executive, nor reach decisions without possessing full knowledge of all pertinent facts. But he has made it equally clear that, insofar as he is concerned, when the national interest is involved party politics stops at the proverbial water's edge.

No American official has been subjected to grosser vilification. The extreme left delights in calling him a "warmonger." The Soviet propaganda machine denounces him as a "Fascist." Yet to the vast majority of his own fellow citizens he is merely an American statesman striving patiently and ably for the establishment of a world order through which peace, freedom and security may ultimately be guaranteed to all peoples, and who is determined that the influence and the power of the United States shall be utilized effectively so that that ideal may be attained.

It is not surprising that popular confidence in Senator Vandenberg should have grown immeasurably in recent months. His participation in the determination of American foreign policy is an outstanding asset to the people of the United States during one of the gravest emergencies in their national history.

Matter Of Fact

By Stewart Alsop

The Bidault Request

WHEN FRENCH Foreign Minister Georges Bidault visited Washington some days ago, he expressed a curious optimism. He acknowledged that the results will be disastrous if France fails to get some dollar aid within the next few weeks. Yet, after conferences with President Harry S. Truman and Undersecretary of State Robert Lovett, he remarked to the press that he felt "confident and encouraged." The source of this optimism has been puzzling observers here ever since.

The fact is that Bidault repeated in Washington a request which had already been made in Paris, where French officials have approached Undersecretary of State Will Clayton and Secretary of the Treasury John Snyder. Bidault's request was sympathetically received, although no commitments were made. Bidault and his government have asked that the names and balances of French citizens with dollar holdings in the United States be made known to the French government.

This French request has served to focus attention on a curious situation. American technicians who have been studying the matter are not yet ready to shout "Eureka!" But the more daring are inclined to believe that this situation may hold a key to a way out of the terrible impasse on the timing of foreign aid which confronts the Administration. For the American Government either holds or controls sums running into billions of dollars which were or still are the property of Europeans. And what more logical than to use this European money to save Europe?

THE MONEY falls into three categories. First, there is cash seized from enemy aliens. This sum is held by the Alien Property Custodian, and amounts to about 125 million dollars. Next there are assets not in the form of cash, such as the General Aniline & Film Corp., also seized as enemy property and held by the Alien Property Custodian. No one knows how much this sort of property might bring, but there are guesses that it might be worth as much as a half billion dollars.

The property in these two categories is actually owned by the United States. That in a third category is not. It consists of the assets of foreign nationals. These assets were blocked during the war. The great majority of the foreigners whose dollar holdings were frozen have not asked for their release. This is largely because the dollars would then be exchanged by their governments for comparatively worthless European currency, and in these days a European prefers frozen dollars to liquid francs or liras.

No one in Washington seems to know just how much such blocked European money there is in the United States, but there are probably inflated estimates that it amounts to more than three billion dollars. Thus it is not unnatural that these blocked balances, controlled by the United States Treasury, have attracted the interest of M. Bidault and his colleagues, as well as the officials of other European governments.

Inevitably, each of these three categories of European money has its own special legal bug, as a potential source of immediate aid to western Europe. First, although the 125 million dollars of seized cash is owned by the Government, there will certainly be legal claims against it. Second, there is now a case before the Supreme Court, brought by Swiss interests as to whether the seized noncash assets can be used before the determination of each case on its merits—which would take years.

Finally, the biggest legal bug concerns the frozen holdings of foreign nationals. For if the timid Snyder were to comply with the French request, he would almost certainly soon have a number of law suits on his hands. The banks in which the balances were held would claim, with some justice, that the Government had illegally ruptured the confidential relationship between American banks and their depositors.

IN THESE circumstances, a bold step is receiving serious consideration here. It has been proposed that the frozen balances be seized in entirety and turned over to the Alien Property Custodian as United States property. It is believed that the legal authority for this action exists. A kitty, perhaps of several billion dollars, would thus be created. The President is authorized to use such money "in the national interest." Under the presidential authority a part of this kitty could thus be used for the essential immediate aid which France and Italy must have if their economies are not to explode, well before Congress can reasonably be expected to act.

Such a step would be daring. It would certainly cause trouble, and trouble is something which certain Administration officials seem determined to avoid, quite literally at any cost. Certain banks, in self-protection, would sue to enjoin the Government from acting. Europeans whose toes had been stepped on would howl blue murder. All sorts of unpleasant risks would have to be taken. Yet far greater risks were taken when, for example, the destroyer deal was pushed through, and the need now is at least as great as it was then. Moreover, it would certainly strike most Americans as plain common sense that dollar-rich Europeans, however reluctantly, should shoulder part of the initial burden of European reconstruction.

Board Approves Express Agency Workers' Raise

A presidential emergency board yesterday recommended a 15½-cents-an-hour wage increase for members of the AFL teamsters union employed by the Railway Express Agency, Inc., in seven large cities.

The teamsters had demanded a 40-cent increase for the 3500 drivers in Cincinnati, Cleveland, Newark, Philadelphia, St. Louis, San Francisco and Chicago.

The emergency board, headed by Leverett Edwards of Oklahoma City, also recommended denial of the teamsters' request for a 20 per cent differential for night shift work.

Socialists And The New Comintern

IN THE WARSAW manifesto setting up the new Comintern, violent denunciation of the United States is matched by an equally vitrolic assault on the right-wing Socialists of western Europe.

NOVER

Cited by name as "traitors" are Leon Blum and Premier Paul Ramadier of France, Prime Minister Clement Attlee and Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin of Great Britain, Dr. Kurt Schumacher of Germany, President Karl Renner and Vice Premier Adolf Schaerl of Austria and Giuseppe Saragat of Italy.

These men, says the Warsaw manifesto, "aim at hiding the true face of imperialism behind the mask of democracy and Socialist phraseology." They are "faithful toadies of the imperialists" and are "pushing their own countries on the road to vassal-like dependence on the United States of America."

THIS COMMUNIST denunciation of Socialists is neither new nor surprising. But it happens to have a very special significance at this time. It means that the Communists have burned the bridges that, until recently, linked them with their non-revolutionary fellow-Marxists. It is the equivalent of a warning to the world that they, the Communists, are out to achieve power on their own.

Nobody denounced the right-wing Socialists more violently than did Nikolai Lenin, the founding father of the Soviet regime.

For years all cooperation between Communists and Socialists was ruled out. In Germany, during the critical period leading up to the establishment of the Hitler regime, the Communists preferred from time to time to make common cause with the Nazis against the Socialists, rather than become part of an anti-Fascist front.

It was not until the Soviet leaders suddenly came around to the realization that the Third Reich was a menace to Russia that the ban against Communist-Socialist cooperation was dropped. Then the Communists, blandly ignoring their former attitude, became the most ardent advocates of the united-front program.

WHEN THE WAR ENDED, the Communists became part of the government coalitions in nearly all the liberated countries of Europe.

Nowhere were they in a majority. Nowhere was it possible for them to secure a majority in any free, fair and unintimidated election.

Throughout eastern Europe and the Balkans they managed to take over, as their share of the apparatus of government, those governmental functions which enabled them to manipulate election returns.

The Communists are now completely dominant in Bulgaria, Romania, Yugoslavia, Poland and Hungary and in those countries the embittered and disillusioned Socialists find themselves tied to the Communist chariot.

IT WAS THIS repeated demonstration of Communist bad faith that the Socialists of western Europe, notably those of Belgium, France and, to a lesser extent, Italy, broke with their erstwhile Communist allies.

In France this split was deliberately provoked by the Communists themselves, at a signal from Moscow. Moscow apparently believed that the time had come for the Reds to be relieved of the responsibility of government so that the blame for the anticipated economic breakdown and political chaos that would follow would fall on the Socialists and the other moderate groups.

It has not worked out that way in France. In Italy, the Communists, having been instructed by what happened in France, fought tooth and nail against Premier de Gasperi's plan to kick them out of the cabinet. Together with Pietro Nenni's left-wing Socialists who have made common cause with the Reds, the left-wing coalition has 40 per cent of the seats in the Assembly.

UNTIL NOW Communist strategy both in France and Italy has centered around the plan to bring the Reds back into the government. This idea appears now to have been abandoned.

It is open to question whether, had they been given a free choice, Maurice Thorez in France and Palmiro Togliatti in Italy would have done what, under orders from Moscow, they have now been forced to do.

The creation of the Belgrade Internationale pins the label of foreign agent on the French and Italian Communists, a label which they have so ardently sought to repudiate.

In their desperate attempt to smash the Marshall Plan which, they fully realize, represents the greatest potential threat to the spread of communism in western Europe, the men of the Kremlin are prepared to sacrifice immediate advantages for long-range gains.

Realizing that neither the French nor the Italian Communists are in a position, at this moment, to take over power in their countries, Moscow has apparently decided to use the Communist movement in western Europe as the instrument with which to produce chaos. Whether they succeed or fail will depend, in large measure, on this country. But we must move fast.

Truman, Cabinet Honor Patterson

A silver platter was presented yesterday to Robert P. Patterson, former Secretary of War, on behalf of President Truman and the Cabinet members who served with Patterson.

President Truman made the presentation at a White House Cabinet luncheon.

The 18-inch platter was inscribed with a tribute to Patterson as a "soldier and able servant of his country" and bore facsimile signatures of the President and hte Cabinet members serving at the time of Patterson's resignation.

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

Life Ends at 55 for FTC Jobseekers

A displaced Government career worker recently made application for a job in the Federal Trade Commission. The interviewer asked him this question:

Kluttz

"How old are you?"

The career man, who had 24 years of Federal service, said he was 58.

The interviewer bluntly told him: "You're too OLD to be of any use to our organization. Sorry."

The above, I'll admit is difficult to believe. But it's true. Life ends at 55 for all jobseekers at FTC despite all the rules, regulations, laws and so forth regarding age to the contrary.

The five-man commission has adopted a flat policy against hiring any new employe, either by transfer or by new appointment, who is 55 or more years of age. This little-known policy was adopted on September 16.

A second and more logical provision provides for the prompt retirement of all employes who reach 70, and to retire before the end of this year all workers who reach 70, and to retire before the end of this year all workers who are beyond that age William H. England, its chief economist, was forced to retire recently under this latter provision, and seven other employes will be retired under its before the end of this year.

In other words, the five-man commission believes no new employe who is 55 or more and no present employe who is 70 can be of service to FTC.

But just look who are doing the talking: Chairman Garland S. Ferguson is 69; Commissioner William A. Ayres is 80; Commissioner Edwin L. Davis is 71; Commissioner Lowell B. Mason is 54, and Commissioner Rober E. Freer is 51.

It's a safe bet that the average age of the commissioners—certainly the first three named above—is higher than that of any other Federal commissioner or board.

Incidentally, FTC recently was overruled by Civil Service when it tried to fire several of its Negro employes. The displaced career people who are 55 or more also should appeal to Civil Service.

Clerical Test: Civil Service yesterday revealed it will send out grades in about two weeks to the 42,000 people in the Washington area who took the general clerical exam last spring.

The grades will bring bad news for about half of these competitors—they failed. Also, a sizable bloc of people who hold CAF-3 and 4 jobs will be certified only for CAF-1 and CAF-2 jobs.

The results of the test seem sure to bring about widespread firings, demotions and promotions in the clerical field.

Presumably, all war service and temporary employes who now hold clerical jobs in grades CAF-1 through CAF-4 and who failed the test will be fired and replaced by people who did pass the exam in a matter of weeks. That's the plan. But a top Civil Service official explained yesterday:

"On paper, we'll have enough eligibles to fill all clerical jobs in this area now held by war service and temporaries by people who passed the test. But it may not work out that way. Our eligible registers have a habit of literally melting away and we may be compelled to extend the appointments of some war service employes who failed the test until such time as we can give a new test."

The official revealed that the commission was ready last week to stop Federal agencies from hiring typists temporarily. "We had several hundred CAF-2 and CAF-3 typists on our register," he explained, "but when Federal agencies tried to hire them only a handful were available and we were forced to call off our plans to control the hiring of typists. We may be faced with a similar problem on the clerical register," he added.

More and more people, the official explained, are refusing to take low-grade Government jobs even after they have qualified.

Clerks who now hold grade 2 and 3 jobs and who qualified for CAF-4 positions on the test will be ordered promoted. And demotions will be ordered for the 4's who qualified on the exam for 2's and 3's.

FCC: Telford Taylor, former general counsel of Federal Communications, is slated to be named chairman to replace Charles Denny, He's now prescuting the Nazis at Nurenberg.

JOBS: Civil Service today will announce a competitive test for junior professional assistant with these options:

Administrative technician, archeologist, astronomer, chemist, bacteriologist, economist, engineer, geographer, legal assistant, librarian, mathematician, metallurgist, patent examiner, physicist, psychologist, social science analyst, and statistician. The jobs, attractive to college graduates and college seniors, pay $2644 to start.

Also announced by the commission is an exam for junior agricultural assistant with these options: Engineer, bacteriologist, economist, agronomist, animal husbandman, biologist, botanist, dairy husbandman, dairy manufacturing specialist, soil conservation engineer, entomologist, farm management supervisor, forester, geneticist, home economist, horticulturist, plant pathologist.

GE Orders Reach New High for Year

Schenectady, N. Y., Oct. 13 (AP).—Orders received by General Electric Co. in the third quarter totaled $330,493,000, the largest of any quarter this year, and 27 per cent higher than $266,867,000 of orders received in the third period last year.

Orders in the latest quarter brought the cumulative total for the first nine months to $912,090,000, up 39 per cent over $656,563,000 last year.

FALSE TEETH
Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wabbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Holds false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug store.

New Municipal Bond Section Opened Here

By S. Oliver Goodman

Folger, Nolan Inc. yesterday announced opening of a municipal department and will emphasize this field of investment.

Friend

The new department, claimed to be the first of its kind in Washington for any investment house or bank, will be headed by Arthur S. Friend, formerly of New York City.

Opening of the new section, said J. Clifford Folger, head of the investment banking firm, "reflects increasing interest in tax-free issues. With the ending of the war, States and municipalities are making needed improvements held up during the war period." He added that Folger, Nolan Inc. will participate in national syndicates on municipal bonds.

Friend, head of the new department, had his early investment experience with Harris, Forbes & Co., New York. Since 1921 he has been associated with the New York firm of Hannahs, Ballin & Lee, specialists in the municipal field.

MARKET HOLIDAY: The Washington Stock Exchange as well as major securities and commodity markets in the United States were closed yesterday in observance of Columbus Day. Banks and building and loan associations were open as usual.

PROMOTION: Don T. Campbell of Parkfairfax, Va., has been appointed Washington district sales supervisor for American Airlines. Campbell had been sales representative for the airline in Washington from 1941 until 1945, at which time he became American's first personnel representative here. Since April, 1946, he has been the airline's sales manager in Indianapolis.

Campbell

NEW QUARTERS: The Washington Clearing House Association, which has been in its present offices for 40 years, will move tomorrow but not too far away. It will transfer from the third floor of the National Metropolitan Bank Building to newly remodeled basement quarters according to George H. Bright, manager of the association. The bank will take over the entire third floor for expansion of its trust department. Established April 15, 1887, the clearing house has been in the same location ever since. The only other move was made 40 years ago, when the present bank building was erected.

THE BRIGHT SIDE: William A. Irwin, American Bankers Association economist, declared yesterday "industry is busy and well-heeled to face the future" and in the United States "people are earning money at a prodigious rate." Addressing the fifty-first annual convention of the National Association of Insurance Agents in Atlantic City, Irwin said indexes of business activity "seem to justify the claim generally made that we are in the midst of an almost unprecedented period of prosperity." High prices, however, have cut American purchasing power by 50 per cent of prewar levels, Irwin said, adding "there are thrifty people in this country who are feeling the pinch of the rising cost of living."

ODD LOTS: Higher commission rates on the New York Stock Exchange are expected to go into effect about November 3. Now that the commission issue seems settled, the cry is for a 50 per cent margin rule to save Wall Street firms from further reducing their staffs and possibly their efficiency. . . . Harry Coleman & Co., Chicago public relations firm, has established a Washington branch office. . . . China's skyrocketing dollar hit a new high yesterday as the black market price jumped to 88,000 to $1 United States . . . This week's steel operations are scheduled at 96.8 per cent of rated capacity, compared with 96.1 per cent in preceding week and 90.5 per cent in same 1946 period . . . Standard Oil Co. of Indiana announced increases, effective immediately, in tank wagon prices on gasoline, naphtha, refined oil, tractor fuel and distillates to dealers and consumers to "offset increases in freight rates "that became effective yesterday . . .Paul E. Richter, newly-elected president of Taca Airways, declared it was "practicable and inevitable" that American lines go into integrated sea-air carrier service in foreign commerce .

Business Outlook

Another Sign of Inflation: The Cost of Money's Up Too

By J. A. Livingston

MONEY'S LIKE everything else. It's going up in price. Corporations and businessmen are discovering that they no longer have things their own way when it comes to borrowing.

Pacific Gas & Electric Co. is a case in point. Blyth & Co. and other underwriters bid 99.55 for a 75-million-dollar block of the company's 2⅞ per cent of bonds, due in 1980. That was a nice price. But when the bonds were offered at par, the large investors, especially insurance companies, shied away. They wanted more than a 2⅞ per cent return. And now the bonds are 98½ bid, off a point and a half.

Livingston

Moral: The underwriters overpriced the market.

That has been happening too often of late. Here are a half dozen examples of top-grade securities which have dropped below the original offering prices:

Company.	Interest rate.	Offering price.	Recent bid.
Detroit Edison	2¾	101⅛	100½
Duquesne Light	2¾	101.229	100⅝
Firestone T. & R.	2¾	100	98½
Illinois Power	2¾	102.84	99½
Phila. E. Power	2¾	102.56	98
Toledo Edison	2¾	103.164	101

THIS DOWNTREND in bond prices and uptrend in interest rates is no sudden development. Money rates have been hardening since March, 1946. Then high-grade corporations could borrow almost as cheaply as the United States Treasury. Top-grade issues sold to yield 2.35 per cent. But that's no longer. Today the interest rate has advanced to 2.69 per cent. That's a rise of 34 points, 14 per cent in the last 18 months. And more than half of the rise has occurred since August. That's a fast change in the price of high-grade bond money.

Wall Street explains the setback in corporate bond prices as excess supply relative to demand: Too many new issues coming to market. But that emphasizes the symptom rather than the cause. The blunt fact is that corporate issues have been overpriced, that they were due for a comedown.

Back in 1945, insurance companies and other investors bid up the market price of high-grade corporation issues until the difference in yield between corporates and Treasurys was negligible: 2.49 per cent for corporates, 2.39 per cent for taxable Treasury bonds. Some insurance men even argued that they needed corporation bonds for diversification, that they did not want to be top-heavy with Governments.

BUT GRADUALLY big investors realized that this was rationale rather than reason. After all, if a United States Treasury bond isn't a safe, sure investment, then what corporation security is? Large investors began buying more Treasurys. Result: Treasury interest rates went down, corporate rates up. Today the yield on top-grade corporates is 2.69 per cent, on Treasurys 2.25 per cent.

There's another reason for the rising price for bond money: The stock market. Many a large investor has turned to stocks for a "decent return." It's not hard to argue yourself into blue chips like General Motors, Standard Oil of New Jersey, or General Electric when they yield around 4 per cent to 5 per cent and high grade bonds return only 3 per cent or so.

That's what college and university endowment funds have been doing in the past 15 years. According to a study by Scudder, Stevens & Clark, investment counsel, colleges have tripled the proportion of common stocks in their portfolios. In so doing they've succeeded in "maintaining a rate of return in excess of 4 per cent." During those same years the rate of return earned by life insurance companies and mutual savings banks "dropped from about 5 per cent to 2.93 per cent."

ONE CONCLUSION seems reasonably safe: Corporations that didn't raise new money during 1945, 1946, and the first half of 1947 missed the market. It now looks as if the price of money has taken a major turn up. That was indicated in July when the Treasury permitted the three-months bill rate to advance from ⅜ per cent to ¾ per cent and again in September when it raised the rate on one-year certificates from ⅞ per cent to 1 per cent.

Still money's far from dear. Back in the late 1920s, top-grade bond money cost 5 per cent, now it's only 3 per cent. Blue chip stocks then sold to yield around 3 per cent, now the return is 4 per cent to 5 per cent. Maybe the stock and bond markets are beginning to reflect that by moving in reverse. Maybe that's why corporate bond prices have been soft and stock prices firm in recent markets.

Most Chrysler Lines Closed

Detroit Oct. 13 (AP).—The Nation's automobile industry, which for many months has been trying to achieve and maintain a high level of passenger car output, was back in low gear again today, as Chrysler Corp. kept virtually all its Detroit area final assembly lines closed.

In announcing that its Plymouth, Dodge and De Sota lines will remain idle and its Chrysler division output cut back 70 per cent this week, the corporation attributed the move to inadequate stocks of sheet steel. All plants will return to production next Monday—if a stockpile of required sheet steel can be built up this week.

Cadillac division of General Motors, closed down September 26 because of short stocks of car frames, reopened its final assembly lines today.

As car assemblies got under way today indications were that the week's total output would be about 55,000 passenger vehicles and perhaps 25,000 trucks. Last week, according to the trade paper Automotive News, United States plants turned out 63,884 cars and 26,197 trucks, compared with 69,705 cars and 27,501 trucks in the preceding week

The First Installment of
"Speaking Frankly"
by former Secretary of State
JAMES F. BYRNES
in
The Washington Post

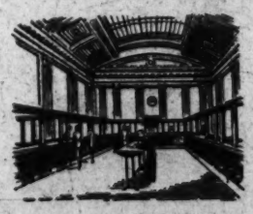

At last you can read the INSIDE STORY of what went on at those big-power conferences from which reporters were barred: The Roosevelt-Churchill-Stalin meetings at Yalta. The Truman-Churchill-Stalin and the later Stalin-Truman-Attlee talks at Potsdam. The fateful meetings at Paris, Moscow, New York, London.

The shape of today's world was decided at these meetings. Now you can learn—at first hand, from a man who was actually there—what Stalin demanded, what Churchill said, what Roosevelt proposed. You can read President Truman's reaction when he first discovered how Roosevelt replied to Stalin. You will find out exactly what Byrnes said to Truman that forced Henry Wallace to resign.

You'll learn all this, and more, from James F. Byrnes himself. He attended the Yalta conversations and took them down in shorthand. He was our representative, as Secretary of State, at the other meetings and made immediate notes of what went on. He has been in every part of our three-part government: Representative and Senator, Supreme Court Justice, "Assistant President" and later Secretary of State. You will be fascinated by these articles. There will be 20 in all. They start tomorrow in The Post.

Michigan Vaults to Top Spot in Nation

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

THE PICTURE is a bit clearer in the National Football League after three weeks of play, and apparently there isn't a good team in the Eastern Division. For the Redskins and Philadelphia Eagles, it's faint praise to point out the fact they are tied for the lead in the Eastern group.

Of the Eagles and Redskins, it can be said they are the least worst clubs in the East. The Redskins didn't have much to beat last Sunday, and they didn't beat 'em by much. It was the most futile New York Giant team that ever answered the opening whistle, yet there they were threatening to tie it up in the fourth quarter.

POVICH

Thus far, Eastern and Western teams have clashed in three games this season and it's a sorry record for the East. Pittsburgh did lick Detroit, 10-to-7, but the Lions are admittedly the poor relations of the Western group. When Pittsburgh hooked up with one of the West's better clubs, the Los Angeles Rams, they took a 48-7 beating. And when the Eagles met up with the Chicago Bears Sunday, it was 40-7, Bears.

THE REDSKINS will be getting a taste of Western opposition next Sunday, when they play the Green Bay Packers at Milwaukee. Thanks to the trade the Redskins made with the Packers last winter, Green Bay has a top quarterback in Indian Jack Jacobs. The Packers didn't win last Sunday, but they played the Chicago Cardinals to a 10-7 game and the unbeaten Cardinals with Charley Trippi are the hottest articles of the year.

When the Bears beat the Eagles the other day they were winning their first game of the year in three attempts and obviously aren't the best club in the West. But it was no consolation for the Redskins that the Bears ran over the Eagles, 40-7. The Bears were slapping down with ease a club that had already beaten the Redskins.

At that the Redskins were an improved team on Sunday. Despite their mistakes, they looked seven touchdowns better than the Giants. The improvement will have to be accelerated, though, if they don't want to be run out of the park by the Packers next week. When they met at Baltimore in last month's exhibition, the Packers ran up a 31-0 lead before the Redskins woke up with three last-period touchdowns.

AS USUAL, the Redskins go only as far as Sammy Baugh takes 'em. After 11 years he's still the best one-man gang in pro football. He can't win 'em all for the Redskins as was evidenced when he pitched five touchdown passes for 'em against Philadelphia, and they lost 45-42. His passes set up three of the four touchdowns against the Giants.

It wasn't any great feat to beat the Giants, though. Steve Owen didn't have any kind of a backfield threat, and his passers smacked of the corner lot. Perhaps one shouldn't be too harsh with Owen's kind of passers, though. The whole run of forward passers, including Sid Luckman and Tommy Thompson, can look ragged in contrast with Baugh.

It must have been a dismaying thing for the Giant line—that utter lack of a backfield threat. When the Giants did get the ball, they couldn't hold it. The futility of it all was apparent in the defensive play of the Giants. If the Redskins were a good club, the score would have been somewhere in the forties.

THE REDSKINS have produced another favorite with this Washington customers, however. He's Dick Poillon, the 195-pound halfback whose zestful play smacks of the feats of Ernie Pinckert and Wilbur Moore when they were prime favorites with Griffith Stadium fans. Poillon hurls himself into the battle with an effective enthusiasm that is a separate show.

Poillon is a Redskin of distinction, if only for the fact that he is in the lineup on both offense and defense, in this day of specialization. Redskin fans have been getting a longand pleasant look at "No. 25."

As Green Bay, though, the Redskins will be meeting up with a team that last year apparently needed only a quarterback to be one of the top teams of the league. The Redskins supplied 'em that gent in Jack Jacobs. It was a nice swap that brought Bob Nussbaumer to Washington, but next Sunday the Redskins must look to their pass defenses—which wasn't one of their worries against the Giants.

Pick the Grid Winners

WIN A FREE TRIP TO THE ARMY-NAVY GAME

FOUR TICKETS to the Washington Redskins-Chicago Bears National League football game at Griffith Stadium, October 26, will be awarded to this week's winner of the Pick-the-Winner contest conducted by The Washington Post.

One winner will be determined each week with the Pick-the-Winner contest continuing through the week of November 16-22.

There will be six winners in all. At the end of the series of contests, each winner will receive two (2) tickets to the Army-Navy game in Philadelphia, November 29. The entire party of twelve (12) persons will be guests of The Washington Post on an all-expenses-paid trip to Philadelphia for the big game.

Send in your entries as early as possible each week.

Be sure to read closely the contest rules explained blow.

Baugh Clarifies Confusion Over Giants' 'Mystery' Score

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

The "confusion play" on which the Redskins and Giants cooperated for a Giant touchdown in Sunday's game at Griffith Stadium was fully explained yesterday.

Sammy Baugh, who paced a 28-20 Redskin victory and started the business which left 36,533 fans and a pressbox full of reporters asking "What happened?" said it went like this:

On second down, the first time Washington had the ball in the fourth quarter, Baugh decided to send Ralph Ruthstrom (not Bob Nussbaumer) off tackle from the Redskin 20. Ruthstrom was the first confused, getting into motion too soon. The ball bounced off his knee as Baugh spun to the right. Then everybody got confused.

Center Ki Aldrich made a grab for the ball through milling arms. Others grabbed but it came down in the confused arms of Tackle Jim White of the Giants. White started running automatically and fortunately ran in the right direction for 26 yards and a touchdown.

New York declined the man-in-motion penalty against the Skins, one of their finest decisions of the game . . . Others were Ray Poole's decision to fall on a free ball in the first quarter and George Franck's decision to grab Frank Reagan's wobbly toss in the fourth period . . . Both led to touchdowns . . . Hugh Taylor, hungry-handed end of the Skins, was admitted to Doctors Hospital Sunday night with a case of flu . . . The move was called "precautionary" . . . Out of a cast came Johnny (Tree) Adams' foot, making it possible for the veteran tackle to take part in this week's invasion against the Green Bay Packers . . . "Bronko" Baugh's two touchdown plunges Sunday were estimated as variously as the distance up . . . Let it stand that both were under a yard . . . The only thing keeping Sal Rosato from robbing Baugh of his second score was a goal post . . . It waved wildly as the big fullback plowed into it on his third buck from the four . . . Some of the Giants' best blocking was done by an official in the fourth pe-

Civilian Larkin Wins Navy Golf

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 13 (AP).—The Naval Academy had a new golf champion today, after a 36-hole final in which the Navy itself was conspicuously absent.

William J. Larkin of Boy Ridge defeated Jack Dobson, 3 and 1, for the title in a match. Larkin is a civilian employe. Dobson is an Army colonel, on duty here as an instructor.

Walter Haight Bad Actor, Used to Run Around at Post

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

I WAS WADDLING through the clubhouse at Laurel yesterday, minding my own fat business, when I heard my name mentioned. I turned and observed a group of men talking.

Here was a chance to find out, first hand, how my "For Men Only" diet pieces were going. So I hid behind a big potted plant and listened.

"Pounds" Haight

"Yes, I saw Walter Haight the other day," said one stranger, "and he certainly looks fine . . . seems to me he's a little thinner than last spring.

"I smiled at those encouraging words, but I was hot under my 17½ collar, a moment later when another guy spoke up with: "Looks as if old age is quieting him down. I remember when he was a considered a bad actor at the post—running around and so forth, I understand."

I stepped up and snapped, "That's a lie. I've been at the paper a long time and never have been in trouble and I don't like that running around stuff, either.

"You must be Nuts," he replied. "And listen, if you are going to try to tout us, you're wasting your time."

He turned to his friends and continued, "as I was saying—he is better now than he used to be, but darned if I thought he would win—and he was the favorite too."

That's what I get for being named after a race horse.

P. S.—How many calories are in a quart of oats?

Justice Signed Pro Contract, Bell Says

Philadelphia, Oct. 13 (AP).—Disclosure that Charlie Justice once signed a contract with a professional football club today jeopardized the eligibility of the University of North Carolina's star halfback.

Commissioner Bert Bell of the National Football League said that Justice signed a contract with the Philadelphia Eagles while he was playing for the Bainbridge (Md.) Naval Training Station, but added that the commissioner's office did not approve the contract.

Bell emphasized that under NFL rules, the commissioner's office must approve a contract before it is valid.

The commissioner reported he wrote Carl Snavely, coach of the North Carolina Tarheels, that "according to league records" Justice had signed a contract with the Eagles but that the pact "was made void by Commissioner Elmer Layden."

Schoolboy Pacts "Out"

Layden, now affiliated with a box-car manufacturing concern in Chicago, said that as he recalled the case he voided the agreement because at the time Justice was "a high school kid, too young to be signed."

He added: "I think there is a league bulletin, issued in 1942 after the outbreak of the war, which covers that situation."

Stating that he did not recall that a specific bulletin was issued in Justice's case, Bell declared the league does not sanction pacts with high school players.

In his letter to Snavely, Bell listed the reason for the rejection of the contract as "due to the fact that this boy was not eligible to play in the National Football League according to our eligibility rules."

There was no immediate comment from the Eagles. Snavely and Justic declined to comment, but Dean A. W. Hobbs, chairman of the North Carolina athletic committee, said he might make a statement later.

Similar Case Cited

Only last week, John J. Wicker, jr., Richmond, Va., attorney, questioned Justice's eligibility on the same grounds on which Vernon Morgan, University of Richmond candidate, was declared ineligible because he signed a baseball contract when he was 15 years old.

Wicker contended that if Justice was permitted to compete in the Southern Conference, by the same token Morgan's eligibility should be reinstated, or "otherwise it will convict them (the Southern Conference executive committee) of the rankest discrimination in the history of the conference."

PLAYING DAYS OVER?—Steve Bagarus, former darling of Washington Redskin fans, is put aboard a plane at Milwaukee, Wisc., for a flight to California. Now a member of the Los Angeles Rams, Bagarus suffered a broken leg in the Rams-Green Bay game, October 5 and may never play football again

Augusterfer Proud Over C.U.'s Showing

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

RARE IS the coach who sounds off optimistically after his team has lost its opening game of the season by two touchdowns. Especially a perfectionist like Catholic University's Gene Augusterfer.

But there was no mistaking a note of pride in the voice of tough-talking Augusterfer yesterday when, discussing C. U.'s 21-7 loss to Western Maryland, he said, "Sure we lost, but we half expected to. From here on in though, we'll be tough."

He reminded us that last Saturday's game was C. U.'s first in seven years, and none of the C. U. players even had played college freshman football before.

Terrors Well Seasoned

"We did remarkably well, considering that Western Maryland played all last season with practically the same time that faced us, and that the Terrors already had played two games this season.

"But that game made veterans of our team. I was afraid that our boys would get stage fright out there, but they didn't. In fact, they fought Western Maryland to a standstill in the first half.

"And but for a few tough breaks and boderline decisions by the officials against us, Catholic U. would have won.

Those who saw last Saturday's game are still commenting on the fine punting of C. U.'s Joe Mauiri. The West Virginia boy punted eight times against a heavy line that outcharged his own. Yet, he averaged 50 yards, his shortest kick going 42 yards and his longest 60.

Also Tossed Scoring Pass

He conducted himself, in general, like a veteran. It was his last period screen pass to Billy Frank that gave C. U. its 30-yard touchdown.

Catholic U.'s opposition this Saturday is furnished by Randolph-Macon College, which has won two of its three games this season. R-M's lone setback was inflicted by the University of Richmond, 27-7, after the losers had led, 7-6, at halftime.

It's a Tough Weekend for Area Teams

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

If Navy's mission against Cornell in Ithaca, N. Y., Saturday ends in defeat, the coming weekend will be a dark one, indeed, for area football teams.

After snapping a 10-game losing streak with a thrilling tie against Duke Saturday, the Sailors are favored to break into the victory column for the first time in 12 games against the Big Red.

Coach Tom Hamilton came up with an unsung hero, Quarterback Bob Horne, against Duke, and Hamilton is counting on the lad, an understudy to Reaves Baysinger until the Duke game, to lead the attack against twice-victorious and once-beaten Cornell.

Locals Get Tough Tests

Optimism is not the theme at Maryland, Georgetown and George Washington. If either of this trio turns up with a victory, it'll have to scored as an upset of mountainous proportions.

Maryland, unbeaten and untied in three games and boasting one of the Nation's top touchdown-makers in Halfback Tony (Bambino) Gambino, will learn whether it has a football team of big league caliber in Durham Saturday when it faces unbeaten, but tied, Duke.

The Blue Devils knocked off N. C. State and Tennessee and had Navy whipped, 14-7, until the last 9 second Saturday when the Middies salvaged a 14-14 deadlock.

Coach Jim Tatum of the Terps feels sure that his Old Liners can score against Duke, but what worries him is how many times Duke will score against Maryland.

Gambino, Werner Threats

Gambino, with 48 points in three games, leads the Southern Conference scoring parade by 30 points and his eight touchdowns also make him one of the Nation's high point men.

He and Hubie Werner, his backfield playmate who scintillated against Richmond, will be Maryland's one-two threat against the Blue Devils.

Georgetown's hopes to get back on the victory road after a surprise 16-0 shutout by St. Louis are dim. It faces a potentially strong team in Tulsa which was upset, 14-7, by Texas Tech Saturday after winning its first two games.

Quarterback Babe Baranowski, injured against St. Louis, will be

Irish Second, Texas Third; Army Drops To Seventh

New York, Oct. 13 (AP).—For the first time in more than three years, a college eleven other than Army, Notre Dame or Texas was given top rating when Michigan today was voted the Nation's No. 1 football team, in the Associated Press weekly poll.

The mighty Wolverines, who practically pulverized Pittsburgh, 69-0, Saturday to increase their point total for three winning games to 173, received tremendous support with 93 first-place votes, 29 seconds and a total of 1258 points from 131 sports writers from coast to coast.

Notre Dame, which held the No. 1 position in the final poll of 1946 and was installed in the top slot again in this season's first poll last week just ahead of Michigan, slipped a notch into second place with 11103 points.

How They Rank:

Standings of the first 10 (first place votes in parentheses; points on 10, 9, 8, 7, 6, 5, 4, 4, 3, 2, 1 system):

Team	Points
1—Michigan (93)	1258
2—Notre Dame (23)	1103
3—Texas (10)	996
4—California	674
5—Georgia Tech (1)	623
6—Illinois (1)	539
7—Army	476
8—Pennsylvania	395
9—Penn State	238
10—Vanderbilt	216

The second 10—11, Southern California, 197; 12, Yale, 104; 13, Minnesota (1), 96; 14, Wake Forest (2), 69; 15, Rice, 66; 16, Virginia, 57; 17, Duke, 42; 18, North Carolina State, 27; 19, UCLA, 22; 20, Kentucky, 19.

Irish Drop in Voting

The Fighting Irish, despite their 22-7 triumph over Purdue, their second straight win this season, received only 23 first-place votes with 55 writers picking them second.

Texas, a power in the Southwest, was third with 996 points, on the strength of 10 first-place votes, 35 seconds and 48 thirds. The undefeated Longhorns, with four victories including a convincing 34-14 triumph over Oklahoma Saturday, was the only other team to get more than two first-place votes. The remaining five first-place picks were divided thusly: Wake Forest two, Georgia Tech, Illinois and Minnesota one each.

Although receiving no better than a second place vote, of which they got but four, California's Golden Bears picked up enough thirds, fourths and fifths to nose out unbeaten and unscored upon Georgia Tech for fourth place, 674 points to 623.

Bears Have Their Wins

The Bears, under the helm of Coach Lyn Waldorf, former Northwestern coach, trampled Wisconsin 48-7 for their fourth straight victor. Georgia Tech handed Virginia Military Institute its first defeat 20-0.

Although held to a scoreless draw by Army, Illinois, 1946 big nine champions, was installed in sixth place over the Cadets 529 points to 476. It is the lowest rating of an Army team in four years.

Powerful Pennslyvania, with two lop-sided victories to its credit this season, was named for eighth place with 395 points.

Angry Leahy Says Irish Would Play Michigan Anytime

Chicago, Oct. 13 (AP).—Frank Leahy of Notre Dame, obviously irked at [illegible] Fighting Irish aren't what they were cracked up to be, today declared the team was headed for improvement and even tossed a challenge at high-riding Michigan.

Plainly stung by a floor question at the Herald-American Quarterback Club luncheon which jibed: "By what score would Michigan defeat Notre Dame," Leahy replied:

"Notre Dame would welcome the opportunity to play Michigan any time, on any Saturday, during any fall."

Out Hunting

By Jack Bell

OUR FIRST REPORT of wild waterfowl hunting comes from Maine.

Our correspondent, Bob Elliot of Augusta, Me., reports that shooting on Merrymeeting Bay, Bowdoninham and nearby towns was "a pleasant surprise to duck hunters.

Although the season did not begin until noon the first day, within a few hours hunters who shot from blinds or floats got their limit of four ducks. Pass shooting, however, was poor.

Elliot said: "Although the birds have been scattered after heavy shooting on opening days, the outlook for the remainder of the season is fairly good," he continued, "the prospects for December waterfowl shooting also are excellent."

MARYLAND ALSO is going to have a split waterfowl hunting season. Hunting is permitted from November 1 through the November 15 and from December 23 to January 3. Virginia's season is from December 8 to January 6.

PRESEASON predictions by many sportsmen that Virginia's ban on hunting or trespassing on posted property without the owner's written permission would run into some snags are being borne out.

Deer in Sussex County were declared "pests" by the Fish and Game Commission because the increased herds have become destructive to farm crops.

It is reported many sportsmen from various parts of the State called the commission's offices at Richmond to learn if deer hunting in the county was open to the public, and were told it was.

TRAVELING LONG distances, at great expense, hunters learned that most of the best deer hunting grounds was on posted club land, and on private land.

Permission to hunt was denied them and, the only satisfaction the sportsmen received from wardens was "that it was all a mistake."

The Benning Road Tackle Shop has announced oa weakfish fishing contest to run through to November 16.

Valuable prizes are offered to anglers "catching the largest of Tide-Runners, sea trout, squeteague or weakfish.

The fish are to be registered and weighed at 1515 Benning rd. ne. on the way back from the bay.

Six of One Wins, Costs Track $3151

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Laurel, Md., Oct. 13.—Sprinters had their innings on the Monday program here.

The featured Montgomery was split. Car Hatch's Ocean Brief won the first division of the 6-furlong test, while the second half went to O. L. Nyberg's Irisen.

Both were well played with Ocean Brief returning $4.20 as the favorite, while Irisen produced a $6.80 win mutuel.

Ocean Brief, not out of the money this year, won his seventh race and registered the faster time, 1:11 4/5. Irisen was clocked in 1:12 2/5.

Both Win Easily

Both were easy winners. Ocean Brief led the Bobanet Stables' Glen Heather and L. J. Lepper's Off-Islander to the wire under the handling of Jockey Sterling Young.

Closest to Irisen, winning his second race of the meeting here, were D. LaMorte's El Mono and C. V. Whitney's Bright Son.

Both had to shake off early challengers. Ocean Brief had some trouble with Glen Heather before drawing out through the stretch while Irisen had to dispose of With Honor before gaining a commanding lead.

The shortest win price of the meeting developed in the third race with Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Six of One, out of the mare Equivalent, won by a half city block at a $2.60 mutuel.

Track Pays Deficit

The crowd piled in the money on the filly and a "minus pool" developed in the show betting. Of a total of $35,929 bet on the race to show, $29,879 was on Six of One. Maryland law will not allow less than 10-cents-on-the-dollar payoff. The deficit the track paid was $3151.

The Cedar Farm's George Case failed the favorite players in the fourth race. The fleet 6-year-old was the medium of heavy betting but could do no better than third. The winner was H. B. Cohen's Stanley, while Mrs. W. W. Vaughan's Lanlast was third. Stanley paid $9.60.

Two horses breaking from the outside of their fields were the keys to the winning daily double combination of 12 and 12, paying $19.80.

Top Foot's First Win

L. A. Hancock's Swift Boby, with Jockey M. N. Gonealez aboard, won the first race from W. Zakoor's Gallantry and J. H. Van Wert's Bit of Nerve. The aptly-named 4-year-old was the favorite at a $4.60 mutual.

P. A. Rothfus' Top Foot was fleet of foot in the second and stuck to his speedguns to win for the first time in his career.

The 2-year-old son of Sky Raider led William McIntosh's Abbe's First and G. A. Garrett's Comic Dancer to the wire. Top Foot, well handled by Apprentice Ray Drury, paid $8.40.

Cerdan, Raadik Matched

Chicago, Oct. 13 (AP).—Marcel Cerdan, Frenchy middleweight, and Anton Raadik, from Estonia, have signed for a 10-round bout at the Chicago Stadium October 31, Matchmaker Jack Hurley announced today. The bout replaces a fight between Lightweight Champion Ike Williams and Gene Burton of Chicago. Hurley said Williams hurt his hand.

Metro Boxing Card To Be Planned Tonight

Ten bouts will be screened from more than 40 aspirants for the second amateur boxing show arranged by the Metropolitan Amateur Athletic Association, at Turner's Arena Friday night, October 24.

Matchmaker Billy Banks said preliminary weighing-in and tentative matches will be set tonight at Billy Edward's gym. Most entrants are high school students who have had at least three or more fights, Banks said.

DEAR FOLKS:

Looks as if the efforts of the new management here to make this a Washington track are bearing fruit. At least the train and bus figures show an increase over last year. The count on District licenses on cars also is up. Outrider Joe Day, who teams with Eddie Benham is doing a swell job of taking the horses to the post, is a Washington boy. He rode his last race at Arlington, Tex., in 1936. Increased weight forced him out of the jockey ranks. There wasn't any "For Men Only" diet in those days. The James boys—Father Ben and Son Jimmy—are here. All the Calumet Farm horses are either at Pimlico or Laurel. Ben says Armed, barring accident or sickness, will run in the Pimlico Special. The half-mile track horses which usually do well in the earlier stages of Laurel meetings, haven't been winning with the regularity of other years. Little Ray Drury, Annapolis boy, put up a swell ride on Top Foot in winning the first race. He shows a lot of promise and Trainer William Irvine, jr., who has his contract, is bringing him along nicely. A groom was ruled off the track for mistreating a horse. Nice going. See you on the rail.—BILL.

Lions Sign 5 New Players for Opening With Rockets Tonight

Ingram Probes Colts' Protest In Loss to Bills

New York, Oct. 13 (AP).—Commissioner Jonas H. Ingram of the All-America Football Conference, said today he would conduct a thorough investigatoin of Baltimore's protest of yesterday's 20-15 Buffalo victory over the Colts.

The commissioner indicated he would confer with game officials and view the movies of the game before making any decision. He will not make a ruling for at least two days.

Baltimore's protest resulted from the last play of the game, a forward pass from Bud Schwenk to Lamar Davis that almost resulted in a touchdown. It was ruled that Davis had stepped out of bounds on the Buffalo 2-foot line.

While the discussion was at its height, Field Judge Eddie Tryon, who made the original ruling, shot off the gun ending the game.

Gordon Bell Takes Over As Goalie

The Washington Lions have signed five new men, including Goalie Gordon Bell of the Toronto Maple Leafs, for their opener tonight against the Philadelphia Rockets at Uline Arena.

Major Robert J. Barrett, Superintendent of Police, will throw out the first puck and at 8:30 p. m. the Lions will start their first American Professional Hockey League contest—a major jump from the Eastern League in which the Lions played last season.

Other new players include twin brothers, Dan and Frank Porteous, defenseman and forward respectively, along with Harvey (Red) Raney, a center, from the Indianapolis Capitols and Win Mousseau, a defenseman, from the Detroit Red Wngs.

Bell originally was a 19-year old wonder with the Buffalo Misons where he turned in fine performances against the old American League Lions in the early 1940's. He is 24 years of age.

Other Lions who will see action are Walter Babey, Joe Cluman and John Carr-Harris, popular wingmen from last year's Eastern League Lions, who set a hot pace as pros in fall training.

The Lions otherwise will spotlight such players as Bob Walton, high scoring winger obtained from the Cleveland Barons; Kenny Schultz, center, and Larry Archambault, defenseman, Pittsburgh Hornets; Scotty Mair, winger, Tulsa Oilers and Toronto Maple Leafs, and John Muretick, center, Philadelphia.

Three former Lions skating with the Rockets tonight are Charlie Kraiger, big winger who played on the Eastern League team two years ago, and Leo Richard nad Jimmy Jamieson, who performed with the old American League Lions in 1942-43.

Kampfer Returns To Turner's Arena

Hans Kampfer makes his first appearance at Turner's Arena in several years on tomorrow night's show featuring four feminine grapplers in a two-girl match. Kampfer opposes Farro Rinaldo of Milwaukee in a 30-minute bout.

Virginia Kept Harvard From Getting Ball

Some notes on the Virginia-Harvard football game, which Virginia won 47 to 0:

ONE WAY TO KEEP the enemy from winning is to keep him from getting the ball. Virginia worked that system to perfection, allowing Harvard possession for onl ynine plays in the first quarter, and two of those were punts . . . Virginia had 29 plays in the same quarter, scoring two touchdowns . . . An especially effective back for Virginia is Grover Jones, who is built like an oak stump and runs like a rock crusher. Jones, who holds the ball for placekicking, is a sort of junior Doc Blanchard.

The Virginia version of the T is Art Guepe's application of Don Faurot's Missouri model. He and Jim Tatum, now of Maryland, spent a lot of time studying it when they were in naval service together.

In the Virginia attack, the quarterback runs laterally several steps before giving the ball to another back, if he gives it to anyone at all . . . Unless the defending linemen can get through to hit the quarterback before he rids himself of the ball, the secandary is almost certain to be spread very thin by the time the play develops to its ultimate form: short or long pass, end sweep, or tackle smash . . . thus Saturday on the few occasions when the quarterback simply handed off the ball to a back for a drive through the line, which is the usual use of the T hereabout, the Harvards were taken by surprise.

Te Harlow single wing, used most of the time by Harvard, generated very little deception . . . the quarterback squatted behind the center, but rarely handled the ball . . . this seemed to add up to nothing more than having a wasted backfield man . . . about the only gaining Harvard did for a while was to pass on fourth down with up to 10 yards to go . . . a great many of Virginia's fine players come from West Virginia. F. L. D.

Baugh Clarifies Confusing Score

riod, helping in an 11-yard pass from Reagan to Paschal . . . Have you noticed the lack of liquor ads in Redskin programs? . . . Speaking of up-and-down performances, Dick Poillon had the champ Sunday . . . It ranged from setting up the Giants' first score, through kicking four straight extra points and intercepting an important pass, to missing the tackle which could have stopped New York's final touchdown . . . Rookie George Wilde got in only three plays, lost a yard on each of two running efforts and dropped Baugh's pass on the third play.

Capital Classic Lists 2 Bands

Officials of the Sixth Annual Capital Classic featuring the undefeated football teams from Tennessee State College, 1946 national intercollegiate colored champions, and West Virginia State College, Saturday night at Griffith Stadium yesterday announced that special half-time entertainment would be provided by two rival bands of 65 pieces.

The bands will be headed by 15 high-tsepping majortettes with lighted batons.

Gustine Under Knife

Pittsburgh, Oct. 13 (AP).—Frank Gustine, Pittsburgh Pirate third baseman, will enter Presbyterian Hospital here tomorrow for an operation designed to correct a hernia the player has had since birth.

Area Teams Get Big Tests

lost for at least 10 days, leaving the play-calling and passing duties to Elmer Raba. To help Raba, Coach Jack Hagerty has moved Johnny Hughes, a freshman from Gonzaga, up as No. 1 understudy to Raba.

In reviewing the Hoyas' mistakes against St. Louis, Hagerty yesterday took the onus off Centers Vince Banonis and Bob Kelley for bobbles which led to a pair of Billiken scores.

It was generally believed that bad passes from centers set up the tallies, but Hagerty said the fault was in the backfield where the Hoya runners missed their signals.

Colonials Host to Deacs

George Washington faces the roughest day of all. In Wake Forest, 19-7 conqueror of North Carolina, the Colonials meet the team that is regarded today as the best in the Southern Conference.

The Demon Deacs are just coming into their own and if the Colonials, without a win in three starts, can hold the score to a respectable margin it will be quite an achievement.

The Colonials will be playing their first game at home this season and a good Griffith Stadium turnout is expected for the only college or pro game here this weekend.

Filchock Gets OK in Canada

Toronto, Oct. 13 (AP). — Frank Filchock, playing coach of the Hamilton Tigers, of the Inter-Provincial Rugby Football Union, today was given official permission to play the rest of the season with his club.

Touchdown Club Honors 5 Stars

Five local athletes today were honored by the Touchdown Club as the outstanding high school, prep and college football players of the past week.

The quintet comprises Ross Keith and Bob Petrillo, Central High School, as the outstanding high school players; Gene Kinney and Tony (Bambino) Gambino, Maryland's center and righ halfback, were selected as the collegiate stars, and Tom Dean, Friends School fullback, was chosen as the best prep school player at the club's weekly luncheon.

Injured Harvard Captain May Never Play Again

Boston, Oct. 13 (AP).— Vincent Moravec, Harvard football captain, never will play the game again, a high authority at the university said today.

"He's through," was the response to a question as to the 24-year-old fullback's future as an athlete. The source asked that his name be not used.

Moravec was injured in Saturday's clash with Virginia at Charlottsville, Va., when the southerners mowed down the Crimson 47-0.

The ligaments of his knee were torn badly when he was blocked from the side in the first period, but his knee cap was not broken.

"He should be able to attend classes in two or three weeks but it will affect him, and how much," the spokesman added.

Today Moravec was at Harvard's Stillman infirmary, to which he was removed after the accident.

His wife, Janice, is studying for a master's degree at Simmons College.

What a billion dollar steel expansion program means to you

THE steel companies of America are spending one billion dollars to add 2,500,000 tons of new steelmaking capacity for your benefit. Parts of this program were started two years ago.

Further expenditures of many more hundreds of millions are planned for additional plants and equipment.

This means that more and more steel will be available to make the things you need—houses, farm implements, automobiles, freight cars and thousands of other products of everyday use.

Steelmakers Have Faith in our Nation's Future.

This year's production of steel is the greatest in peacetime history, far greater than all the rest of the world combined.

But demand is great, too—greater than supply for some kinds of steel. If 18,000,000 tons of steel had not been lost in the last two years because of strikes in steel, coal and other industries there would be few complaints about the steel shortages today.

The huge expansion programs were planned to enable the industry to catch up with demand in all kinds of steel as quickly as possible.

In 1929 the steel industry could make 1,173 pounds of steel for each man, woman and child. Today it can make 1,499 pounds. With the expansion in prospect it will make 1,540 pounds.

As always throughout its history, steel is expanding its capacity to meet the growing needs of the country.

Oil Council Hits U. S. Policy As Favoring Foreign Firms

The National Petroleum Council protested yesterday that foreign oil operations are being favored "at the expense and to the detriment" of the industry in this country.

Specifically, the council complained that despite steel shortages that limit oil output at home, 45,000 tons of steel casing and pipeline were shipped in the first half of 1947 to countries "in which Americans have little if any petroleum intrests." This is about one fourth of shipments for the period.

Responsibility for the action was laid to "some in the petroleum industry, supported by certain agencies of the Federal Government." The countries involved wre not identified.

The council is the industry advisory group of the Interior Department. Its views were set forth in a report prepared by the organization headed by Claude P. Parsons of Houston, Tex.

The report said that for the first six months of 1947 shipments of casing and oil line pipe abroad were at the annual rate of 332,386 tons, an increase of 85 per cent over 1946 and about five times the prewar 1935-39 export rate.

The exports, the report said, included:

Venezuela, 68,425 tons; Mexico, 19,074; Middle East, including Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Bahrein Island, Iran, Iraq and Palestine, 13,909 tons; Colombia, 13,063; Netherlands East Indies, 8194; USSR, 7563; Canada, 5487; Argentina, 3656; Peru, 3577; British Malaya, 2786; Trinidad and Tobago, 2785; India, 914; other countries, 14,860.

U. S. Launches Research Into Peanut Butter

By the United Press

The Agriculture Department revealed today that its experts are looking around for a way to take the "mouth stickiness" out of peanut butter.

Launching a new research project to improve the quality of peanut products, the department said peanut butter's "oil separation," and "failure to keep well" would also be given "special attention."

Grand Jury To Get Data On Gambling In Few Days

State's Attorney Of Prince Georges Wants Weekend Raid Evidence Now

Evidence in four gambling raids by Prince Georges County and various town policemen last weekend will be presented to the Grand Jury at Upper Marlboro, Md., immediately, State's Attorney A. Gwynn Bowie indicated yesterday.

Bowie directed Police Supt. Ralph W. Brown to bring all evidence gathered to his office at once so the Grand Jury investigation can start without awaiting the usual preliminary hearings.

Four slot machines, numbers slips and money are included in the evidence seized.

The slot machines were taken in a tavern at Queensbury rd. and Rhode Island ave., Riverdale, by County Detectives Richard Pearson and Earl Huber. John W. Heinicke, 39, 4719 Rittenhouse st., Riverdale, alleged operator of the tavern, and two bartenders, Ann L. Callister, 40, 4719 Queensburg rd., and Nelson Purdham, 37, 4705 Riverdale rd., both of Riverdale, were charged with setting up and maintaining gambling.

All three were released under bonds of $500 each. A hearing was set for October 23 in Hyattsville Police Court.

Brentwood police arrested five persons Saturday afternoon in an automobile parked on Perry st., near 38th st., in Brentwood. Police said the five had numbers slips and some cash in their possession. A hearing was set for Monday at 7:30 p. m. in Hyattsville.

Town Police Chief James C. Brown and Sergt. James Hawkins of Fairmount Heights, Md., raided the home of Mrs. Mary Owen, 37, 715 61st ave., in Fairmont Heights, about 2 a. m. Sunday. They reported a card game in progress and arrested Mrs. Owen on a charge of operating a disorderly house. She was released under $300 bond. Nine other persons were charged after the raid with disorderly conduct and released on $10 collateral each.

Twenty persons also were arrested in a raid during the weekend on a private club at 48th and Upshur sts., in Bladensburg. Seven policemen conducted the raid. Nathan Davis, 42, 4303 48th st., Bladensburg, posted $500 bond on charges of setting up and maintaining gambling equipment and nine men and eight women, who were inside the club, posted $7.50 collateral each on charges of disorderly conduct.

Soviet Ousts 4 Officials In Austria

By Seymour Freidin

Copyright, 1947, N. Y. Herald Tribune

Vienna, Oct. 13.—The Soviet high command has removed "four high-ranking Austrian police and public safety officials in the last 24 hours and replaced them with Communists, it was disclosed tonight.

Following the expulsions the cabinet was convene din extraordinary session. A communique tonight asserted that "all possible means will be taken to overcome this infringement of Austrian sovereignty."

In western allied quarters the Russian action was regarded as a "deliberately provocative gesture." An American source called it a direct violation of the Allied Control Council agreement. He said America will protest. He said it was "a move to determine just how far the Soviets can go in Austria."

The officials expelled were the directors of public safety in the Russian zone of occupation—Weiner Neustadt, Baden and St. Polten—as da deputy director for public safety for the Province of Lower Austria.

It was said the Russians told them, "You are Fascists and you have not carried out Soviet orders."

The Russian high command also took over the municipal jail at Baden, seat of Soviet headquarters, but gave no reason for the new supervision.

Austrian officials nervously wondered tonight if the Soviet action was a prelude for Communist demands for additional representation, especially in the Ministry of Interior.

A high government official asserted tonight that "we will boycott these orders by not recognizing the Soviet-appointed officials and by demanding from the Allied Control Commission that these flagrant violations of the control agreement be nullified.

Expulsions of the police officials also was construed as reprisal for recent reorganization of the police which removed Communists from administrative posts.

Mystery Woman Being Sought In Murder of Ohio Minister

Body Discovered In Tourist Cabin Near Baltimore

A mystery woman was being sought last night as a key figure in the slaying of the Rev. Carl Raymond Vaughn, 54, of Pataskala, Ohio, in a tourist camp cabin at Halethorpe, Md., 2 miles south of Baltimore.

The Ohio minister, who has two brothers living in the Greater Washington Area, was found beaten and stabbed to death late Sunday. His nude body lay on a blood-drenched bed in the tourist cabin. He had been stabbed 17 times in the head, neck and shoulders and beaten about the head with a blunt instrument.

Identification of the body was made yesterday at the Baltimore morgue by two brothers, Earl Leslie Vaughn, a building contractor, of 712 S. Wayne st. Arlington, and Heubert F. Vaughn, a gasoline station operation, of Landover, Md.

Baltimore County police were anxious to question a woman who reportedly visited a restaurant on the Baltimore-Washington blvd. late Saturday night with the murdered man.

A waitress who served the couple at about 11 p. m. Saturday gave police a description which was flashed over a 17-state area.

The woman was described as between 45 and 50 years, of stocky build, weighing between 180 and 190 pounds. She had a fair complexion, a faded brown blemish on the lower right jaw, an oval shaped face, high cheek bones, black wavy hair streaked with gray, deep-set eyes (possibly light brown).

She wore rimless glasses and had bushy eyebrows. She had a medium spread nose, slightly upturned. She had a wide loose-lipped mouth with her lower lip extending slightly. She appeared to have false upper teeth.

She was wearing a full length dark cloth coat but no hat. On her left hand was a white gold diamond ring and a wedding band. She carried a black calfskin leather medium-sized purse with a short strap.

Police said Vaughn, who in addition to being a minister has been a writer, lecturer and organizer of a boys' club in Columbus, Ohio, known as Boyland and patterned after the famous Boys Town in Nebraska, was apparently slain "in a frenzy."

DR. CHARLES R. VAUGHN

The remnants of a wooden revolver butt were found in the cabin and may have been used to club the minister, police said. Although stabbed 17 times, the minister's death was due to a fractured skull resulting from the bludgeoning.

Lieut. Earl Smith of the Baltimore County police said a naked footprint was found in the cabin. He said it could have been either a print left by a boy or a woman.

From first investigation it appeared that the minister had been robbed by his slayer. He had flashed a wallet containing money in the restaurant Saturday night. It could not be found by police. They did find a crumpled $5 bill in a shirt pocket and a $1 bill in his trousers.

According to Charles F. Harris, proprietor of the tourist camp, Vaughn registered Saturday night. He signed the book for two people, using his literary pseudonym of "C. Pat McGuire."

Harris told police he believed he had seen another person in Vaughn's car when the minister signed the register. Police were checking yesterday with Ohio authorities to determine if Vaughn had brought one of the boys from Boy Land with him on his trip east.

Many Groups Take Part in Atom Session

Talks, Films, Forums Mark Week's 2d Day In Prince Georges

Speeches, public discussions, question-and-answer forums and movies marked the second day yesterday of the Prince Georges County Atomic Energy Week.

Civic organizations, Parent-Teacher associations, community clubs and veterans' groups met in Berwyn, Riverdale and Landover to consider problems brought about by the advent of atomic energy.

Alfred Friendly, reporter for The Washington Post, who has written a number of articles on atomic developments, told a citizens' meeting in Berwyn that "there is no hiding place from the atom bomb."

Friendly spoke before an estimated 150 citizens representing the Berwyn Civic Association, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the P-TA, and the Community Club.

Call for Decisions

The atom bomb, Friendly asserted, and atomic energy call for decisions by the people of America. He pointed out that "such decisions can be made on the basis of panic and ignorance" and urged that "they be made upon the facts."

At other program events, the West Hyattsville Citizens Association, meeting at the Lutheran Church, 38th and Legation sts., saw the film "Operation Crossroads," and heard Dr. Charles P. Saylor of the Washington Association of Scientists.

Divorce Suit Lays Trouble To In-Laws

Edgar P. Carroll, 4240 Reno rd. nw., just couldn't get away from his in-laws, according to a suit for divorce filed in his behalf in District Court yesterday.

The newlyweds lived with the bride's parents in Philadelphia, until April, 1941, the suit said, with the "marital relationship dominated by the defendants parents."

At that time Carroll took a job in Washington. He charges his wife refused to leave her parents and go with him. Finally, a reconciliation was effected, Carroll said, and the couple purchased a home of their own in Lansdowne, Pa.

No sooner than Carroll had made the down payment of $1300 on the $5300 house and they had become settled, the in-laws, Frank and Constance Rumunanes moved in and made themselves comfortable.

Carroll also charged his wife's parents with influencing her to demand "large sums of money for purchasing furs, perfume and other luxuries." Carroll moved out in 1945, he said.

In addition to absolute divorce on grounds of desertion, Carroll asks an accounting from his in-laws of "all rents due" him and an accounting from his wife for "all rents collected by her."

Voteless League To Give Course In Government

The Voteless District of Columbia League of Women Voters will present a "preparatory course" in District government beginning October 21 at Pierce Hall, 16th and Harvard sts. nw.

The project, "Know Your Washington," will consist of a series of four lectures, all open to the public. Registration can be made by calling DEcatur 7408 or REpublic 5778.

Purpose of the lectures, according to league spokesmen, is to acquaint residents with the "limitations of the present system of government" in order to prepare them for a sound evalution of the "Auchincloss report." The report referred to will be drawn up by the House District Subcommittee on Reorganization and Home Rule, headed by Representative James C. Auchincloss (R., N. J.).

New Jury Will Renew Rail Probe

Justice Authorizes Panel to Resume U. S. Inquiry Into Lack of Freight Cars

Investigation of the freight car building industry involving possible anti-trus law violations will be resumed by a special Federal grand jury October 28.

An order for a special grand jury to probe the industry was signed yesterday by Bolitha J. Laws, Chief Justice of District Court in response to a request from George Morris Fay, United States attorney for the District. Fay acted at the behest of the Attorney General.

The industry had been under investigation by the April grand jury which was dismissed last month.

Last July Ralph E. Clark, manager of the closed car section of the American Association of Railroads estimated that half a million bushels of wheat were threatened with spoilage in Kansas because of the shortage of cars to move the crop.

Another threat—this time to the steel industry—was seen by Col. J. Monroe Johnson, director of transportation, last month, because raw materials were not being moved fast enough.

According to Johnson, the railroads operated last year with a 14,000-car shortage, but this year the deficit is 18,000.

A three-judge tribunal sitting in District Court has under advisement a motion by 180 railroads to set aside an Interstate Commerce Commission order increasing the per diem rate for freight car hire from $1.50 to $2.

The order was issued, the ICC said, to increase the movement of available cars.

Realtors Urge Rent Control Finis Feb. 29

By The Associated Press

A wiping-out of rent controls next spring "is the next imperative step to lick completely the housing shortage," a committee of the National Association of Real Estate Boards said yesterday.

In another housing development, Senator Wagner (D., N. Y.) disclosed that a Nation-wide survey of city slums—with a view to replacing them with tidy homes—is under way.

Alexander Summer of Teaneck, N. J., chairman of "the Realtors' Washington Committee" will recommend to the national association that efforts be continued as necessary to see to it that rent controls end February 29 as provided in the present, modified rent control law.

Summer indicated that the real estate people made their decision primarily because of recent statements "of a few Congressmen that Congress might consider extending control beyond that date."

McCarthy Praises Creedon

Senator McCarthy (R., Wis.) said Friday that "I would have no objection to extending rent controls" beyond February if Housing Expediter Frank Creedon continues to be guided by local rent advisory boards.

McCarthy praised Creedon's action in approving a local board's recommendation for a 5 per-cent blanket rent increase in the Louisville, Ky., area.

The American Labor Party said in a statement distributed here that it would challenge in the courts any recommendations for rent increases by New York boards.

Summer's statement on ending rent controls said:

"The present building boom began immediately with the lifting of most Federal restrictions.

"The next logical step to complete the wiping away of the housing shortage is rent decontrol. Extension of control would continue the artificial market in which housing, the only commodity obtainable at prewar prices, is overconsumed to the extent that it has thrown our whole economy awry."

Asks Mayors for Data

As for the slum survey, Wagner said he had asked the mayors of all cities of 50,000 population or larger, all governors and other persons concerned for data on two major problems of slum clearance:

"1. Provision of decent housing at prices and rents which low-income families now living in slums and substandard housing can afford to pay.

"2. Clearance of slums and blighted areas for private and public redevelopment.

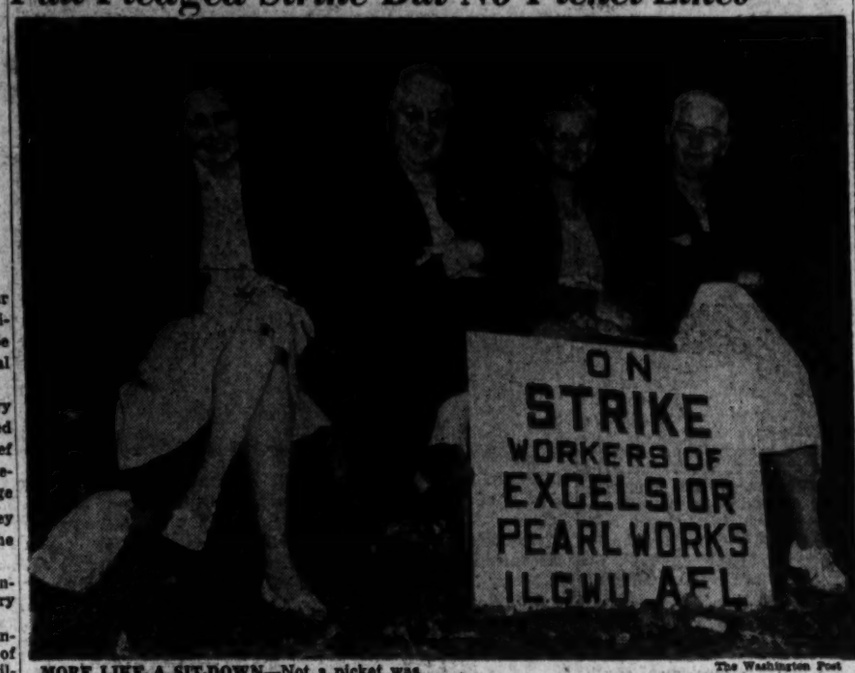

Wagner said he had undertaken the slum survey as his assigned part of the joint Senate-House inquiry and had mailed out 750 questionnaires seeking data.

The Senator is one of the sponsors of the Taft-Ellender-Wagner housing bill which proposes that the Federal Government bear two thirds and local communities one third of the cost of urban redevelopment.

Robber Makes Haul of $18 At Cleaners

Just Amateur But Scared Her to Death, Girl Employe Says

A robber made off with about $18 yesterday afternoon from another District cleaning store.

Miss Vashti V. Colvin, 17, of 646 G st. ne., part-time employe at the Aristo Cleaners, 1323 11th st. nw., described the intruder as "just as amateur," but admitted being "scared to death."

Miss Colvin

At 4:15 p. m., the Dunbar High School senior told police, a Negro whom she described as 5 pounds, between 25 and 30, with a feet 8 or 9 inches tall, about 165 small mustache and wearing a blue-checked sport coat entered the store alone.

"This is a stickup," were his opening words, she related. He had his hand in his pocket over "what appeared to be a gun," she said. With the other hand he emptied the cash register of about $10 in cash and bills and demanded that she turn over the contents of her own pocketbook, $8.

Cloudy, Mild Today, Says Weatherbird

The weatherbird says today will be ideal for cleaning up those many-hued leaves that have been wafted into front yards by vagrant breezes of late.

Today will be cloudy in the morning, the Weatherbird reports, but the sun will start to peep through the gloom during the afternoon. It will be mild all day, though, with an anticipated high temperature of 74 degrees.

Our feathered friend also gleaned the information that yesterday's highest temperature was 69 degrees, recorded at 4:24 p. m., while the mercury dropped to its lowest level of 56 degrees at 6:36 a. m.

All in One Shop

Somerville, Mass. (U.P.). — The Hardy family of Somerville holds an unusual railroading record. The father, Walter, is assistant foreman at the Boston & Maine Railroad car repair shops here and his six sons work with him.

One Button Strike Ended

shortly before 6:30 a. m. They walked in seemingly casually, past 12 deputies then pacing before the plant building.

No attempt had been made to organize a picket line and their return was witnessed only by the guards, several newsmen and one carload of five union pickets and a union representative, Charles F. Gillman, jr., of Norfolk, Va.

Thus, apparently, ended the Ridgely phase of the joint strike which began last Tuesday morning and flared here, Thursday, in the arrest of two pickets for disorderly conduct. The two are free under $500 bail each for later court action.

Strike Held Ended

"There is no more strike here," declared Mayor Sutton. "There is no more strike and the union cannot win an election here in Ridgely."

The Federalsburg scene at opening hour was even more quiet .The small percentage of workers who did enter the plant found no picket line. Several pickets, however, stood around displaying their strike signs, but gave the lone policeman on duty no cause for action.

"No one's excited here," said Mayor Poole.

The Ridgely plant was still guarded here tonight by eight deputies, the second of two similar shifts assigned by the mayor. They draw $6 a day each, but their jobs tonight appeared to be ending.

Union officials, without permitting use of their names or direct quotes, virtually admitted defeat at Ridgely today.

No More Picket Lines

No future attempt will be made here to operate a picket line, they said, nor will the union seek to interfere with the workers' return.

However, they said, they still hope to win out by "indirect action." This, they said, can be accomplished by success in union recognition in the Federalsburg plant, as well as similar union recognition at the Maryland Plastics Co.

The union is currently organizing at the plastics concern, but has not called a strike there. Company directors, the union representatives said, include many of the backers of the button works firm.

Senate Auction Tomorrow

Legislative appurtenances of generation ago are to be offered at public auction tomorrow when the Senate has its first such sale in about 15 years.

A professional autioneer will sell the property, which William T. Reed, deputy sergeant at arms of the Senate, explained has been declard surplus. The sale gets under way at 10:30 tomorrow morning on the west front terrace of the Capitol.

Among items to go under the hammer are a huge swivel chair, early model typewriters, solid mahogany chairs, leather upholstered couches, mirrors, an old soda fountain, a mahogany file case loaded with stationery of the late Senator Carter Glass of Virginia.

Records Held Back, Bunch Lawyer Says

Avers Police Showed Only Part of What He Asked in Inquiry

The attorney for the family of John Forrest Bunch yesterday charged that police refused to show him some of their records in the death of the64-year-old carpenter.

John R. Fitzpatrick said he went to the Ninth Precinct station house, where he asked for approximately 10 records he believed were important in his investigation of the case.

He was allowed to see only the incidental book, the complaint book and the arrest book, he said. Lieut. Thomas E. Edwards, acting commanding officer, refused his request to see the list of officers on duty the day that Bunch was held at the station house, or the cell she record for that day, the lawyer declared.

Lieutenant Edwards stated that he was acting on instructions but declined to say from whom he had received them, according to Fitzpatrick.

Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett refused to make any comment regarding the instructions.

Fitzpatrick said he was told a special police report on the case was in the hands of the homicide squad. He did not ask there to see it, he stated.

Bunch died in Gallinger Hospital August 4, six days after he was arrested on a charge of intoxication. His death, attributed to a fractured skull, was held accidental by a coroner's jury. The family has contended that Bunch was injured while in police custody.

Reuther Calls Story Linking Him With Taft a 'Plant'

Detroit, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—President Walter P. Reuther of the CIO United Auto Workers charged tonight that a radio commentator's statement linking him politically with Senator Robert A. Taft was "planted" by leaders of a rival faction within the big auto union.

Reuther made the charge after Drew Pearson, in his broadcast tonight, mentioned Reuther as a "possible running mate" of Taft in the 1948 elections.

"This fantastic story was planted by the newly hired publicity agent of George F. Addes and R. J. Thomas in an effort to influence UAW delegate elections now in progress," Reuther declared.

Thomas was beaten by Reuther for the UAW presidency a year ago and subsequently was elected a vice president. Addes is UAW secretary-treasurer.

Abortion Held Legal

James J. Laughlin, criminal attorney, yesterday asked District Court to quash an indictment charging he procured an abortion on a 24-year-old girl.

In a motion filed by his attorney, T. Emmett McKenzie, Laughlin asked dismissal of the indictment on the ground that an abortion is not illegal unless it is shown that the abortion was not necessary to save the life or the health of the woman aborted.

Also under indictment in connection with the alleged abortion is Dr. Henry L. Peckham, jr., 3830 Livingston st. nw.

Area News in Brief

High Court Will Rule On Picketing of Store

The Supreme Court agreed yesterday to rule on validity of a U. S. District Court order forbidding union picketing and boycotting of a delicatessen here. Its eventual decision may involve important interpretations of rights to secure injunctions against unions.

The injunction was issued in a dispute between the Bakery Sales Drivers Local Union No. 33 and Wagshal's Delicatessen, 4855 Massachusetts ave. nw. The dispute was over the time of delivery of bakery products, payment of $12.22 claimed by a union driver as compensation for delivery of the products and the sale of a nonunion-made item by the delicatessen.

The union in July, 1945, picketed the delicatessen and set up a boycott which shut off all bakery supplies from it. The store operator said the union also threatened to stop all shipments of dairy products, including those by Railway Express from outside the District.

The delicatessen requested an injunction, which was granted by the U. S. District Court. The U. S. Court of Appeals here upheld validity of the injunction.

Joseph A. Padway, the late chief counsel for the American Federation of Labor, appealed to the Supreme Court to reverse the lower courts. Padway's petition said the Court of Appeals in its opinion "ignored" the plain language of the Norris-LaGuardia Act which restricts the use of injunctions in labor disputes.

The Appeals Court opinion said the injunction was not barred by the Norris-LaGuardia Act because the union demands did not involve bona fide labor controversies.

Counsel for the delicatessen urged the Supreme Court to refuse to intervene in the case, contending among other things that the new Taft-Hartley Act prohibits the union practices it complained about.

Heads Chest Group

Appointment of Mrs. Donald A. Campbell, 303 Virginia ave., Alexandria, as chairman of the residential-women's division for the city's annual Community Chest drive, was announced yesterday by General Chairman Marvin L. Wilson.

Mrs. Campbell

A native of Front Royal, Va., and a resident of Alexandria for 29 years, Mrs. Campbell has served as ward chairman for both the Community Chest and Red Cross campaigns in past years. She is a member of the Council of Social Agencies' committee on family and child welfare, and also is a member of the board of directors of the Washington Chapter, American Aid to France.

Holt Resigns U. S. Post

The White House yesterday announced the resignation of Harry H. Holt, jr., as United States Attorney for the eastern district of Virginia, effective today.

A presidential spokesman said Holt's resignation, after 14 years of Government service, was necessitated by the demands of his private law practice.

The spokesman said no successor has been chosen and could not judge when the choice might be made.

Academy Visitor

Capt. Andrew Elphinstone, nephew of Queen Elizabeth of Great Britain, visited the naval Academy at Annapolis yesterday. He was accompanied by the Rev. P. T. B. Clayton, Chaplain of the British tanker fleet, and Harold Braham, British consul in Baltimore, on a tour of the institution.

Duvals Hold Reunion

More than 175 members of the Society of Marine Duval Descendants held their annual reunion Sunday at St. James Church, Anne Arundel County, Md.

Elected president of the society was Edward S. Duvall, a Washington attorney.

The society was organized in 1927 to perpetuate the memory of Huguenot settler Marine Duval, who came to Anne Arundel County in 1652. His descendants have worshiped in St. James Church for 282 years.

Cyclist Held in Attack

Rastus Lee, 48, got so all-fired mad when a motorist sideswiped him Saturday night while he was riding his bicycle in the 1200 block of 20th st. nw. that he:

1—Exploded a gust of profanity (police said).

2—Walloped a protesting citizen with a piece of iron pipe (police also said).

Before Municipal Judge Walter J. Casey yesterday it was related that after Lee's two-wheeler had been sideswiped he got off some strong language. Another motorist, Melvin J. Hagen, 1230 New Hampshire ave. nw., was about to enter his parked car in which sat two women.

Police said when Hagen cautioned Lee about his language, the latter picked up a two-foot length of pipe which was lying in the street and slugged Hagen.

Judge Casey ordered Lee held in $1500 bail, for the grand jury on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon.

Victory to Be Marked

The 166th anniversary of the surrender of the British forces under Lord Cornwallis to the combined armies of America and France under General Washington will be observed in Yorktown, Va., in ceremonies at Victory Monument on Sunday, October 19. Grace Episcopal Church will hold a special service at 10:30 a. m. the same day marking the 250th anniversary of the building of York Parish Church.

Two Holdups Reported

Yokers robbed two victims in the District Sunday night. George S. Cooper, 77, of 411 4th st. nw., was yoked and robbed of $90 by two youths at 4th and E sts. nw. Two older yoke artists grabbed Fred K. Nielsen of 1615 Q st nw., as he entered his car in the 1600 block of P st. nw., beat him about the face and body and robbed him of $50 and his wrist watch.

Rent Hikes Agreed

About 6800 tenants in the Arlington-Alexandria-Fairfax area have agreed to voluntary rent increases through negotiations with landlords since July 1, Area Rent Control Director I. Chance Buchanan said yesterday.

The figure represents about 13.2 per cent of the 50,000 tenants in the area, Buchanan said, and is "substantially higher" than the State-wide average of 8 per cent. Of the total number who have agreed to higher rentals, about 3200 are occupants of three large Arlington apartment projects—Buckingham, Colonial Village and Arlington Village.

Bethesda P-TA to Meet

First general meeting this year of the Bethesda Elementary School P-TA will be held tonight at 8 o'clock at the school building. John R. Reeves, Maryland legislator, will speak on "What Is Happening to the Tax Dollar in Education?"

Rings Get Him 180 Days

Russell Shepherd, 24, had no bells on his toes but he had two suspiciously new rings on his fingers when police picked him up a few minutes after a window had been shattered at Kranstadt's store, 1822 7th st. nw., Sunday. Police said Shepherd, who lives at 1641 11th st. nw., had three more rings in his pocket.

A previous record of housebreaking didn't help Shepherd when he appeared before Judge Walter J. Casey yesterday charged with petty larceny. He drew 180 days straight time.

Knife Wounds Fatal

John M. Hatcher, 34, of 1318 B st. se., was found fatally knifed at about 8 a. m. yesterday in the rear of 5229 Drake pl. se.

Police, who had no immediate clews, said Hatcher was discovered by Mrs. Elizabeth Byrd, who lives at the Drake pl. address. His throat had been cut and his right side slashed.

Hatcher was taken to Gallinger Hospital where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

Montgomery Hills School's New Library

The Washington Post

PLENTY OF SPACE AND LIGHT—The new library of the Montgomery Hills school is built along spacious lines, with a fireplace in the connecting room (rear); large windows admit adequate light and the pine-paneled walls add a homey look. Shown here, at left, is Principal J. A. Sivigony, explaining details to Mrs. Robert Skaife, who walks in from extreme right. In the rear of the room, left to right, are Mrs. E. M. Douglas, wife of the Montgomery County superintendent of schools; little Juanita Furlow, 4, of Silver Spring, and Oliver W. Youngblood, Montgomery County commissioner, who points out wall panels. X-Ray Survey Of 600,000 Starts Jan. 10

The Washington Chest X-Ray Survey, designed to cover 600,000 local residents in a six-month period, will be launched here January 10.

Plans for the project, described as the largest of its type ever undertaken by a United States city, were announced yesterday by William E. Leahy, general chairman, at a meeting in his offices, 821 15th st. nw.

The survey, Leahy estimated, will cost local and Federal agencies a total of $216,000, but the cost to participating residents will be nothing. The United States Public Health Service is scheduled to contribute $100,000, with another $50,000 coming from the District Tuberculosis Association and $66,000 to be contributed by the District Health Department.

Testing will be confined to persons over 15 years of age.

Dr. A. Barklie Coulter, director, Bureau for Tuberculosis, District Health Department, and a member of the operating committee for the survey, said he expects the mass X-ray to uncover some 6000 cases of tuberculosis in the District. Of these, he estimated 1800 will be severe cases with the remainder in "minimal" and "intermediate" stages.

Dr. Coulter stressed that many cases of tuberculous infection will be found not serious and can be treated and cured in the home. The major need, he said, is to ferret out and act on cases which may, in the course of a year, spread infection among dozens of others.

He revealed that the death rate from tuberculosis in the District is 61.8 per cent of 100,000, compare dwith a 38 per cent Nationwide average.

The machines, Dr. Coulter said, will be stationed directly in Government departments, colleges and other "congested" areas.

Fr. Toomey New Catholic Charity Head

New Orleans, Oct. 13 (AP).—The Rev. Joseph B. Hoomey of Syracuse, N. Y., was elected president of the National Conference of Catholic Charities otday.

In the final discussions of the Rt. Rev. Monsignor John J. O'Grady, secretary of the NCCC in Washington, D. C., urged that resettlement of displaced peoples in Europe be speeded up. He said he was dissatisfied with the program, after interviewing displaced persons in 14 camps in Germany.

Although Governmental and voluntary agencies have been discussing plans for hesettlement for more than two years, Monsignor O'Grady said, "at the present rate of resettlement it would take about 14 years, I might say, to complete the program."

Vice presidents of the national organization elected were: The Rev. Thomas H. Doyle, Boston; Sister Elizabeth Logue, Emmitsburg, Md.; The Rev. Thomas Vll, Seattle, Wash.; Miss Rose J. McHugh, Washington, D. C., and Joseph Wechter, Buffalo, N. Y.

G. Howland Shaw, Washington, D. C., was elected treasurer.

Members of the executive committee were chosn as follows: Msgr. John J. McClaffrty, Washington, D. C.; Miss Florence M. Mason, Cleveland, Ohio; Charles A. O'Neill, Milwaukee, Wis.; Mrs. J. F. Murtags, Denver, Colo., and the Rev. John J. Donovan, New York City.

The conference selected Boston as its next convention city.

Greater New York Fair Will Mark Golden Jubilee

New York, Oct. 13 (AP).—A miniature world's fair to commemorate the golden jubilee of the incorporation of the five boroughs into Greater New York City, is planned for 1948, it was announced today.

The seven-month celebration will begin in April and preliminary plans call for displays marking progress in science, education, industry and other fields during the 50 years since the incorporation.

There will be an international air exposition, fashion show, municipal mobilization demonstrations by firemen, police and other municipal groups, and various additional events designed to call attention to the theme of the jubilee—the city's "achievements of yesterday, leadership of today and opportunities of tomorrow."

Spillman Hits Propaganda Against Self

New Orleans, Oct. 13 (AP).—Francis Cardinal Spellman said here tonight that "the propaganda of one nation against another is treacherous, but the propaganda of one people against itself is traitorous, and that is the propaganda that we must fight if truth and tolerance and peace are to prevail."

In an address prepared for the National Catholic Charities Conference, meeting here in its thirty-third annual convention, the Cardinal said:

"In defense of this land of liberty which I love as I love my church, I condemn atheistic Communism as an enemy of all men who believe in God and America. And as I profess my faith in Catholicism and in Americanism, and pledge allegiance to them unto the end of my life, I beg that every Catholic pledge himself to be an apostle of charity."

Fall Injures Woman

Mrs. Mary Gue, 38, suffered a possible broken back and a possible skull fracture about 1:30 a. m. yesterday when she fell down a flight of stairs in her home at 3331 Brothers pl. se. She was reported in "fair" condition at Casualty Hospital.

Safety Code Plans Split Firemen

Profssional pride among Montgomery County's paid and volunteer firemen has led to a "split" over whether there should be a fire marshal responsible for enforcement of fire safety precautions.

This disclosure was made yesterday by Albert E. Conradis, county public utilities agent, who recently appointed an eight-man advisory committee to help him draft a county fire safety code.

Conradis said "strong disagreement" has arisen among committee members. The disagreement, he said, is over whether the code should be enforced by a fire marshal, the building inspector or the various fire chiefs in their own district.

Public Hearing Planned

Conradis was instructed by the county commissioners to draw up the proposed code and submit it to the commissioners. Before it is finally adopted, a public hearings will be held. At present, there is no such code.

Henry E. Marschalk, past president of the Montgomery County Association of Volunteer Fremen and a leading advocate of a fire safety code, said yesterday he favors a fire marshal.

Chief A. J. Bargagni of Bethesda Fire Department, however, said he favors delegating enforcement to the fire chiefs. He said he believed a paid fire marshal in areas exclusively controlled by volunteers would cause friction.

Resentment Feared

Conradis said basis of the disagreement lies fundamentally in the pride-of-unit spirit built up during the years by both the volunteer and paid firefighters. Many of the volunteer firemen, it is feared, he said, may resent a paid marshal interfering in their work or directing fire prevention work in their territories.

Both Marschalk and Bargagni are members of the committee appointed by Conradis.

A committee meeting has been called for November 4 to try to reconcile the differences, Conradis said.

Conradis said many business houses in the county lack adequate fire safety measures. He added he was "amazed" recently when he learned no adequate law exists in Montgomery to require public places to maintain fire safety conditions.

Marschalk attributed lack of such regulations is to public apathy, adding: "Communities rarely acquire adequate regulations until there is a calamity and then officials are forced to act by an aroused public."

W. W. Sloan

Funeral services for Wintemute William Sloan, 64, Interstate Commerce Commission attorney who died yesterday, will be held at Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw., tomorrow at 11:30 a. m. Burial will be private.

Mr. Sloan, who lived at Woodley Park Towers, 2627 Devonshire pl. nw., was born and educated in Buffalo, N. Y. He was a graduate of the Washington College of Law and had been with the Interstate Commerce Commission 35 years.

He was a member of Foundry Methodist Church, St. John's Masonic Lodge and the Almas Temple of Shriners.

Restoring Washington's Early Home Discussed

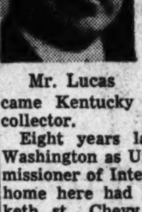

Fredericksburg, Va., Oct. 13 (AP). Eleven directors of the George Washington Boyhood Home Restoration, Inc., met here today to discuss plans for reviving a campaign of soliciting funds to make Ferry Farm, Washington's boyhood home, a national shrine. No formal action, however, was taken.

Edward H. Cann, president of the George Washington Boyhood Home Restoration, Inc., said he expected to call another meeting within a few weeks for additional study of the plan.

Located in Stafford County, the farm was the first President's home for several years during his boyhood.

Robert Lucas, GOP Leader, Dead at 59

Robert H. Lucas, 59, executive director of the Republican National Committee in the Hoover Administration and a former Commissioner of Internal Revenue, died yesterday at Doctors Hospital. He had been ill for several months.

Mr. Lucas

Born in Jefferson County, Ky., Mr. Lucas served as a city court prosecutor in Louisville, and in 1921 became Kentucky Federal revenue collector.

Eight years later he came to Washington as United States Commissioner of Internal Revenue. His home here had been at 140 Hesketh st., Chevy Chase, Md. He became party executive director in August, 1930, and served until June, 1932.

Active in Politics

Although active in politics from the time he was old enough to vote, Mr. Lucas was not always aligned with the regular Republican organization. When the Republican split developed in 1912, he joined the Bull Moose movement, and was secretary-treasurer of the progressive campaign committee for Louisville and Jefferson County.

He declined an offer of the Republican nomination for Mayor of Louisville in 1924, and was defeated in a primary election for Governor of the State a year later.

He was Republican nominee for the Senate in 1936, but was not elected.

After the Republicans won the Kentucky Senate seat and the Louisville district seat in Congress a year ago, Mr. Lucas was the first top ranking Kentucky Republican to declare himself in favor ofthe nomination of Attorney General Elbon S. Dummit for the party's gubernatorial nomination this year. Kentuckyians here credit him with directing the strategy that brought Dummit's nomination.

Worked for Hoover

Mr. Lucas' appointment to the Republican committee post followed the ouster of Claudius Huston of Tennessee. As executive director he got the word from President Hoover to take over reorganization of the party's campaign machinery. He also worked actively in behalf of Mr. Hoover prior to the 1932 elections.

Since 1932, Mr. Lucas had practiced law here in offices at 1343 H st. nw., and also in Louisville. He was president of the Kentucky Society of D. C. in 1943.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Gertrude Lucas, and a daughter, Dr. Martha Bob Lucas, president of Sweet Briar College, near Lynchburg, Va.

Funeral services will be held in Louisville on Thursday afternoon. Burial will be in Cave Hill Cemetery, Louisville.

Lord Passfield

Liphook, England, Oct. 13 (AP).—Lord Passfield (Sidney Webb), British economist and internationally known writer on Soviet Russia, died today. He was 88. Webb, son of an accountant and a hairdresser, was once described by George Bernard Shaw as "the ablest man in England."

Miss Gertrude E. Wiber

Funeral services for Miss Gertrude E. Wiber, 1500 Crittenden st. nw., active church worker here, will be held today at the Joseph Gawler's Sons funeral home, 1756 Pennsylvania ave. nw., at 2 p. m., with interment in Glenwood Cemetery.

Miss Wiber died Saturday in Doctors Hospital after an illness of several months.

A native Washingtonian, she lived her entire life here. An accountant, she was employed in the offices of Charles G. Stott & Co. for five years and for almost 20 years was associated with H. Zirkin & Sons, furriers, rising to the post of comptroller there.

Joining the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church as a girl, Miss Wiber was active in religious circles all of her life. For three years she was superintendent of the Sunday school, the only woman to hold that position. She was also a leading figure in the Evening Missionary Association.

She was the daughter of the late D. Elmer and Florence H. Wiber. Her father, a dentist, died in her early childhood, and her mother, then national secretary of the Woman's Board of Home Missions of the Presbyterian Church, later married r. W. L. Darby, who was for a long period executive secretary of the Washington Federation of Churches and is now District secretary of the American Bible Society.

Miss Wiber was a member of the Business and Professional Women's Club, the Credit Women's Breakfast Club and the Retail Credit Association.

She is survived, in addition to her mother, by a brother, Ralph E. Wiber, principal of the Ogdensburg (N. Y.) high school.

Dr. George G. Morris

Winchester, Va., Oct. 13 (Spl).—Funeral services for Dr. George G. Morris, 86, former Washington physician who died here Saturday, will be held in Mount Morris, Pa. tomorrow. He was a graduate of University of Maryland Medical School. He is survived by a sister, Mrs. Belle Van Voorse of St. Petersburg, Fla.

Rudolph H. Yeatman Dies; Was Expert on Libel Laws

Rudolph H. Yeatman, 82, Washington attorney and libel law expert, died yesterday at his home, the Presidential Apartments, 1026 16th st. nw., following a brief illness.

Mr. Yeatman

Mr. Yeatman, a native of the District, was born March 7, 1885. He was educated locally, and received an LL. B. degree from Georgetown University in 1906 and an LL. M. there the following year.

During the period of his law study, which began in 1903, he was private secretary to the late Daniel W. Baker, at that time United States Attorney for the District.

In 1907 he joined the law office of the late Wilton J. Lambert, whose partner he later became. When Mr. Lambert died in 1935, Mr. Yeatman succeeded him as general counsel for the Munsey Trust Company. He was also general counsel for the Washington Times-Herald.

He maintained offices in the Munsey building, where he practiced law with three of his sons, Rudolph H., J. Kenneth, and William H. Yeatman.

For many years Mr. Yeatman had been professor of law at Georgetown University, but an arthritic condition of increasing severity forced him to resign that position in 1931. Since then, he had confined his activities, in the main, to his law practice.

Mr. Yeatman was a director of the Munsey Trust Company. He also had been a member of the University Club and the Columbia Country Club.

At his bedside when he died were his wife, Mrs. Mary C. Yeatman, a son, Francis X. Yeatman, and a daughter, Mrs. H. George Richardson.

He is also survived by his three lawyer sons, another daughter, Mrs. Aram Bakshian, and 11 grandchildren, all of Washington.

Club Leader Reports on European Trip

Food Best U. S. Weapon Against Communism in France, Says Mrs. Buck

By Genevieve Reynolds

"FOOD is the best weapon the United States can use to keep communism from taking hold of France." So declared Mrs. J. L. Blair Buck, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, and member of the President's Food Committee.

"There's no doubt about it—the middle-class people in France are starving," she said in a press conference y sterday, held in the federation's headquarters at 1714 N st. nw.

Mrs. Buck has just returned from a visit to Paris, where she went to attend the first International Assembly of the Women's World Fellowship. On her trip she spent one week in London, one in Copenhagen as well as a week in the French capital.

Relatting first-hand experiences, she said that food is available in high-price restaurants and hotels in France, but is beyond the reach of most French people. "I entertained the heads of two French organizations for lunch. For three the meal was $29, minus tips," she explained. "The menu consisted of soup, a small portion af rabbit, a tiny piece of cake and coffee."

While attending the International Assembly, she said that she and all the delegates lost about 5 pounds each in one week on the French diet. "I went to bed hungry every night," she added.

Stressing the urgent need for food in France, the federation head declared, "The French are freedom-loving people. But they must have bread and they must be told that we are giving it to them. The Russians play up every amount of food given to the French, telling them 'see what we are doing.'"

Curtailment of the United States Information Service in France prevents many of the French people from knowing that they are receiving American food. "We have only one representative outside of Paris and the Russians have a representative in each town and city," explained Mrs. Buck.

English Families Suffer

As for the situation in Great Britain, Mrs. Buck said that food is available in London hotels at "fairly high prices" . . . that there is practically no black market there." People who suffer most ore those with small families," she observed. "The laborers get food without coupons and are better off than the middle-class groups."

While in London Mrs. Buck was entertained at dinner by Lady Astor. "We were eating with gold knives and forks," she said. "Lady Astor apologized that there was no butter or meat. The menu consisted of an excellent soup, vegetables from the garden, fish in a patty shell, fruit tart for dessert."

"Everybody ate every bite off her plate," she explained. "You do that everywhere in Great Britain."

Guests at the Astor dinner included Representative Frances Bolton, Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh—she's over there on a writing assignment for Readers Digest—Mrs. Lewis Doughal, wife of the United States Ambassador to Great Britain

MRS. J. L. BLAIR BUCK
. . . Food is a weapon

Fuel Scarce in Denmark

"Food is plentiful in Denmark but fuel is the immediate problem," reports Mrs. Buck. "In fact, the Danes exported food to Great Britain until funds ran out Now the food is being sold to the Russians."

Danish people are allowed only one kettleful of hot water for bathing. They go to the public baths once each week for a good scrubbing.

Asked what the federation members would do to aid in the food drive. Mrs. Buck said that they would send more food parcel. In England she has arranged through Lady Reading for the Women's Voluntary Services to distribute food packages to lower income families.

This morning Mrs. Buck will attend a meeting of the President's Food Committee in the East Room at the White House. On Friday she will give a full report of her European observations when the federation's national board opens its two-day conclave at the Statler Hotel.

Mrs. Truman will receive board members and State presidents at a White House tea, 4 p. m., Saturday.

Mme. Bonnet Tells AAUW of French Crisis

"Everybody in France is afraid of the coming winter because of the bread ration and lack of fuel," said Mme. Henri Bonnet, wife of the French Ambassador yesterday.

Guest of honor and speaker at a tea given by the International Relations Committee, Washington branch of the American Association of University Women, she told the audience that her country faces four crucial months because of the famine and drought that despoiled its wheat crop.

Mme. Bonnet pointed out that the casual visitor to Paris often gets the wrong impression of the country and its people. "Paris must be attractive for tourist trade, which is essential to the aconomy of the country," she explained. "Food eaten by the tourist does not deprive the French people because they couldn't afford to purchase it."

Dinner Menu for Tonight

FOR dinner on meatless Tuesday, the Citizens Food Committee suggests a main dish of fish fillets fried in the oven. Fresh or frozen fillets may be used, say the committee's nutritional advisers. Squash, now plentiful in this area, makes an appropriate accompanying dish which can be baked in the oven at th esame time as the fish. Any favorite fruit dessert is suggested to top off the meal.

The recipe for oven-fried fish follows:

1 to 1½ pounds fish fillets, fresh or frozen
1 teaspoon salt
¾ cup milk or water
¾ cup bread crumbs
3 tablespoons melted fat

Cut fish into serving sized portions. Add salt to molk and mix. Dip fish in milk and roll in crumbs. Place in well-greased baking pan Sprinkle each with melted fat and bake in a hot oven (500°F.) 10 to 12 mlutes, or in a moderate oven (350°F.) 30 minutes, until fish is browned and flakes easily when tested with fork.

De secureandrshedetao shrd cmfwy vbgkq xzfifff vbgkq cmfwy shet

For Wednesday dinner, the committee recommends pork spareribs as one of the less tender and expensive cuts. It's traditional accompaniment, sauerkraut, is also inexpensive and abundant. Sweet potatoes and any other vegetable that is plentiful in local markets, and baked pears or apples for dessert, will supply all the nutrients needed to make this a well-balanced meal.

Directions for preparing roast pork spareribs for 4 to 5 people are as follows: Arrange 2 to 3 pounds of ribs in a shallow pan and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Roast in a moderate oven about an hour until well done and brown. Serve while hot.

MRS. CHARLES C. LAUBACH 2d
... Wore heirloom veil

Laubach—Warden

In Abingdon Church in Gloucester County, Va., where her mother and grandmother had been married, Miss Martha Page Warden Saturday became the bride of Charles Crissman Laubach 2d, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stiles Laubach of Merion, Pa. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bruce Warden of Washington and granddaughter of Mrs. Alfred W. Withers of Gloucester.

The Rev. M. Brownell officiated and the nuptial music was played by Miss Margie Clements, who had also played at the wedding of the bride's parents.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore a gown of magnolia satin with long train and bertha of rosepoint lace. Her veil of tulle and duchess lace had been worn by three generations of family brides and she carried a shower bouquet of white roses and baby's breath.

Mrs. Warden McClure and Miss Patricia Warden, matron and maid of honor for their sister, were in royal blue taffeta with matching crowns and carried rose chrysanthemums. Bridesmaids were Miss Ann Page and Miss Grace Addison, cousins of the bride, Miss Janet Houff and Miss Annette Scott. They were costumed in rose taffeta with matching chrysanthemums.

Edwin W. Kent served as best man and ushers were George Boteler, John Greeley, Harry Bates, Clifford Houff, Morgan Bird and Philip Hamilton. Junior attendants were Bruce McClure, niece of the bride, and her cousin, David Dunham Addison.

After a reception held at the home of Mrs. Withers, the newlyweds left on a Northern motor trip, after which they will make their home in Washington.

Mrs. Laubach's great-grandmother was Mrs. Martha Throckmorton Page Vandegrift of Gloucester. The bridegroom is a grandson of Mrs. Oscar B. Colquitt and the late Mr. Colquitt, former Governor of Texas.

Spencer—Wolf

In Fountain Memorial Baptist Church here on October 11, Miss Mary Isabelle Wolf, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Dodson Wolf, was married to Carl Alfred Spencer, son of Mrs. Harry Ellison Spencer of Miamisburg, Ohio, and the late Mr. Spencer. The Rev. Frank B. Burress officiated and Mr. Wolf gave his daughter in marriage.

Miss Edith Lee Saunders acted as maid of honor and James Spencer served as best man. Ushers were Robert Spencer and Marvin Wilkerson.

Mr. and Mrs. Spencer will make their home at Bailey's Cross Roads, Va.

Farnsworth—Johnson

A wedding of interest here took place in St. John's Lutheran Church, Baltimore, on October 11 when Miss Viona Corrine Johnson was married to Glenn J. Farnsworth. The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otto W. Johnson of Minneapolis, Minn., has been working with the Government in Washington for the past five years. The bridegroom, formerly a captain with the Office of Strategic Services in the Eurpean Theater, is the son of Mrs. Margaret Farnsworth of Baltimore and the late John Farnsworth.

The bride wore a chartreuse suit with brown accessories and corsage of orchids. Miss Mary Morrison, maid of honor, wore a brown suit with amber accessories and corsage of talisman roses. William Douglas served as best man. Miss Lorraine Farnsworth, sister of the bridegroom, was soloist.

THE FEMININE FIGURE IS IN FASHION FOR FIRST TIME IN YEARS

JULIUS GARFINCKEL & CO. REPORTING

The broad-shouldered, slim-hipped figure is out. Now it's all gracious curves — gentle shoulders, bosoms, slender waists, rounded hips. And Eta, who designs for the woman, knows just how to turn this revolution in fashion to the best advantage.

She gives you this lovely feminine figure without bulk and within slim lines. Results are achieved by subtle, knowing cut and by a graduation of fullness, as in the jet-black rayon crepes, sketched.

This season, Eta has designed especially for candle-lit teas and for dinner parties that sparkle with rare wines and wit. Watch for her late afternoon, dinner and evening dress, soon coming in.

You will find in this collection the deep distinguished shades so important this year. The darkly handsome browns and greys are alternatives to black and blend most beautifully with furs. Try on our Laddie Northridge hats with an Eta dress. Those two designers worked and thought together, and the combined effect is rather wonderful.

Beebe's America

Lucius Found Dollar Steaks Amid Cinders

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

Hearing that Lucius Beebe was to be honored today at The Washington Post's first-of-the-season book and author luncheon, we grabbed this heaven-sent opportunity to wiggle out of work. A Beebe admirer through Gotham's prewar bistro and bar battles, we knew his habits and, via telephone, cornered him in the Biltmore's Turkish baths. Physically and mentally relaxed by hot vapors, Lucius magnanimously agreed to shed his lustre over this column.

Lucius, who attended Harvard and Yale with equal relish, stems from a well-known New England family. A refugee from Yankee inhibitions, he fell in love with New York, pursued its more expensive way with knowing delight. Famous for his superb tailoring, knowledge of vintages and ability to distinguish between various grades of caviar, he became high priest of gourmands, patron saint of de luxe restaurateurs.

For years the Beebe Herald Tribune Saturday column was a wondrous polysyllabic tour de force, its gilded denizens jeweled by Cartier, furred by Revillon, transported by Rolls-Royce, dined by the Colony, quenched by Lanson '14, '21 and '28. Less famous were the Beebe theatrical articles, his growing interest in railroads.

War stopped the glittering column short. Lucius turned from cognac to Coca Cola, from cafe society to the nostalgic Americana of short line railroads. Though today's Beebe is as elegant as ever, he's a serious writer whose skilled reporting spotlights a sturdy facet of our American scene.

I give you Lucius Beebe, author of "Mixed Train Daily. A Book of Short Line Railroads."

WHEN my photographic associate, Chuck Clegg, and I decided, three years ago, to undertake a more or less comprehensive record, editorially and photographically, of American short line railroads, we were conditioned in our decision by a variety of motives. The most obvious and simplest of these was that the short line, as a microcosm of the whole pageant of railroading, was fast disappearing and that its flavor of individualism, its wonderful archaisms and absolescences of operations, motive power and rolling stock would soon be only a legend. We were anxious that our "Mixed Train Daily, A Book of Short Line Railroads," should be for the little independently owned and operated roads of the land a record and a monument after they themselves had become one with the thoroughbraced Concord coach and the Mississippi River packet.

LUCIUS BEEBE

But even more compulsive than this claim upon our services as railroad historians was a feeling and awareness that the little railroads which were later to become the content and matter of "Mixed Train Daily" were the last active and functioning manifestations of an America which was disappearing almost as fast as they themselves; that they represented an individualism, simplicity and placid way of life which were now almost wholly submerged in the preposterous urgency, the overwhelming vulgarity of the times. Their functions, their operations and their physical properties, no less than the outland serenities of their existence, were a complete negation of monolithic industrialism, a brief and wistful souvenir of yesterday in a civilization which embraced the income tax, the elm blight, woman suffrage, game wardens, the assembly line, the atom bomb and the Roosevelt family.

In a scheme of living rendered at once spurious, meretricious and monstrous by the cheapening agencies of radio and the automobile, the trains of the short lines were, in factual reality, slow trains of yesterday, and we were able to discern in their humble properties some of the aspects that made the United States valid and worthwhile in a now almost forgotten past.

Terminal Considerations

THESE more or less ponderous social and economic considerations, it should be remarked, were more latent than they were explicit in the collective consciousness of Mr. Clegg and the writer. Their authenticity only became apparent as we pursued the capped stack eight wheelers and wooden underframe coaches of the short lines down the 60-pound rails that led to the remotest farlands of the countryside and, by implication, to the good way of life, the solid values of the American yesterday.

In gathering the material for "Mixed Train Daily" we were no more than practicing antiquarians and reporters in a field of specialized interest, and it was only after long tarrying in country places where neither the Hollywood drive-in nor the CIO had yet made an appreciable impression that we began to know we were collecting anything more than action photographs of little trains against an arcadian backdrop of cows and covered bridges.

South by West

IT INEVITABLY became apparent that what we were collecting was also a pattern of things forgotten and discredited in an age whose most passionate allegiances are pledged to radio commentators, labor leaders and cinema buffoons.

We discovered that the dollar steak dinner still exists in Waynesboro, Ga., and Corinth, Miss.; that the ultimate in hospitality in Jackson, Tenn., was an offer of "unstamped" whisky, distilled, thank God, in complete defiance of the Federal Government of the United States; that in the Far West no motorist would pass a stalled stranger without an offer of assistance, and that in Nevada, the fairest Commonwealth in the Star-Spangled Union, there are no taxes at all and that the roulette wheel and faro bank pay for all public good works. In a word, we discovered that all America is not neatly regimented along U. S. No. 1 or outside the club car windows of the City of Los Angeles.

While it must be admitted that the little trains of the short line railroads, setting out from unpainted depots for country wayfarings, are not possessed of the spasms of chromium and glass ornamentation characteristic of the most vulgar streamliners, and that you cannot, praise God, be attacked by telephone connections in their lounge cars, they do lead to a good way of life which still exists if one removes himself sufficiently far from Times Square or Sunset Boulevard.

Lieutenant Strain served as a fighter pilot with the Twentieth Air Force on Iwo Jima and was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Air Medal with three Oak Leaf Clusters. He is now with the Seventy-seventh Fighter Group at Shaw Field, S. C.

Gunston Hall To Be Opened For Benefit

Gunston Hall, one of the most historic homes in Virginia, will be open to the public this coming weekend, October 18 and 19. Rarely exhibited during the autumn, the house and grounds are being placed on view by the National Society of Colonial Dames in America (future custodians of Gunston Hall), more especially the Washington Committee of the Colonial Dames in the State of Virginia.

Traditionally, this famous house built by George Mason, author of the Virginia Bill of Rights, is on view in the spring, together with many other historic houses shown during Garden Week. This October showing, however, was arranged for a period when Gunston Hall's lovely chrysanthemums are expected to be at their best. The house will be open from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m. Saturday and Sunday and proceeds will be used for further restoration of the home, completion of the gardens and general maintenance.

Advance sale of tickets will begin this morning at the A. A. A., Francis Scott Key Book Store, the Statler Hotel and the George Mason Hotel in Alexandria.

In Autumn Wedding Procession

Mrs. W. Minster Kunkel and Representative John C. Kunkel, both of Harrisburg, Pa., were married Saturday in Arlington, Va., it was announced yesterday in Harrisburg. Mr. Kunkel has represented the eighteenth Pennsylvania District since 1939. This is his first marriage.

The bride is the widow of Dr. W. Minister Kunkel, who was a distant relative of Representative Kunkel. She is the former Katharine Smoot of Baltimore.

When Representative Kunkel returned last week from a tour of Europe, he and Mrs. Kunkel went to Baltimore to visit relatives, and from there they went to Arlington for the wedding ceremony.

After a 10-day wedding trip, Representative and Mrs. Kunkel will make their home in Harrisburg and Washington.

As a bachelor last spring, Representative Kunkel made headlines by taking 1000 feminine voters to lunch at the Statler Hotel.

Fowler—Warmack

Married October 4 in St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Mr. and Mrs. William Clarence Fowler will make their home in Washington following a Virginia honeymoon. The bride is the former Miss Lillian Muriel Warmack, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Warmack, this city, and her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Fowler of Dothan, Ala. The Rev. Henry W. Snyder performed the ceremony and Mr. Warmack gave his daughter in marriage.

The bride was gowned in white faille trimmed with handmade lace and wore a fingertip veil. She carried gardenias and lilies of the valley on a prayer book.

Attending her sister as matron of honor, Mrs. Robert L. Morrison was costumed in Arcadia blue velveteen and carried American Beauty roses. The bridesmaids, Mrs. William D. Warmack and Miss Corine Molstad, wore American Beauty moire and carried Johanna Hill roses.

Dr. Robert L. Morrison acted as best man and ushers were William and Joseph Warmack, brothers of the bride.

Sandow—Moskowitz

The wedding of Miss Sylvia Moskowtiz and Jack Z. Sandow took place October 12 at the Romany Room, Rabbi Harry Silverstone officiating at 5 p. m., and a reception followed immediately after the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her brother, Irving Moskowitz, the bride wore a gown of white satin tirmmed with lace. Her veil of illusion was caught with orange blossoms, and she carried a prayer book covered with white orchids.

David Weiner, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man.

The bride attended Columbus University, and the bridegroom attended Rabbinical School and the University of Warsaw.

Child Wants Simple Answers

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

Almost all mothers today are convinced of the necessity to answer their children's questions about the "facts of life."

Over and over they say they have told their children about where babies come from. They have answered all subsequent questions frankly.

To challenge this are the statements of authorities dealing with juvenile delinquency who state that boys and girls who get into trouble say they have never had any information about sex from their families. They have had all their education from other youth.

Many a parent insists she doesn't know what to tell her children. What she really means is she doesn't know how much to tell them of what she knows. Let her rest easy, for there are limitations and she need not exceed them. The small child, the one whose attitudes are being fixed by what he hears, is the easiest one to inform. He wants to know only simple, fundamental facts and any parent who doesn't know these is fooling no one but herself.

Answer enough. Information which satifies a child's curiosity does not lead to a morbid interest in sex, but allows the child to take it or leave it. That is good sex education.

For Men Only—a 10-Day Diet

Proteins Take Off the Pounds

By Lucia Brown

A man it was who wrote—and went on—the first reducing diet that recived any medical or scientific notice.

That was only back in 1863. The man was an Englishman, William Banting—an "enormously fat" man, according to unkind history.

Mr. Banting (a coffin maker!) had his own ideas about reducing, based on the scanty nutritional knowledge of his day. His diet consisted almost entirely of meat. He took off the pounds all right—but he eventually killed himself with his unbalanced eating.

His experiments, however, attracted wide attention and in the long run, led to an improved understanding of the principles of nutrition. Today's safe reducing diets are the result of the 80 years of study and experimentation on the subject that followed Mr. Banting's pioneer efforts.

Nowadays ,all the seven basic foods are included in thinning diets, with special emphasis on protective foods—green and yellow vegetables, citrus foods, milk, lean meat, and others.

Nobody denies Banting was right, though, in thinking that eating proteins would reduce you. He just carried the idea to sad excess.

Protein calories step up your metabolism and tend to use up more energy, hence are more effective in reducing weight than fat or carbohydrate calories. Protein foods satisfy your appetite earlier, too, make it content with fewer calories. They also help eliminate water from the tissues.

All this doesn't necessarily mean you have to eat meat to get thin. Fish, milk, eggs and cheese contain large amounts of animal proteins, too. And certain vegetables—dried beans, peas and nuts—contain proteins, too, though not of quite the same quality.

So your reducing efforts needn't be thwarted by meatless days such as today, or by poultryless and eggless days, either. Fish, cheese and other milk products are standing by to fill up the gaps, to say nothing of the Navy bean, the black-eyed pea and the peanut.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Railroad Man's Work Allows Him Many Days At Home, During Which He Smokes and Sits, An Immovable Recluse, to Wife's Distress

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My husband is a railroad man and there are many days during the week when he is home. During these days all he likes to do is sit around the house and smoke. He never cares to go to shows or any place where people go for recreation.

Consequently I never go anywhere in the evenings; but occasionally I go out to luncheon with friends or meet them of afternoons and go to a matinee. It nearly kills my husband to have me go anywhere. He thinks I ought to be home all the time; and of course when I am home I wait on him hand and foot.

He Never Lifts A Helping Hand

ALSO I cook, clean, scrub, wash and iron, cut the grass, take care of the lawn, etc., and am on my feet continually from morning until night, doing these tasks, whereas he never lifts a hand to help around the house. He loafs two days at a time and yet he complains of how hard he works.

He says a woman's place is at home all the time, taking care of her husband; and he tells me to go to bed when I feel tired. But I find I get more rest and relaxation by going out with friends for a few hours. However, every time I go out he has a fit—when he knows about it.

Please tell me if he has any just reason for complaint. Has a wife no rights in this world? R. B.

Both Unsuited To Their Jobs

DEAR R. B.: The conflict described, about which you're so bitter, boils down to this: You and your husband are intrinsically different temperaments—you a gregarious soul; he strongly inclined to be an introvert.

When it comes to asserting preferred recreations, this innate difference is bound to register. But as it happens, each of you is tied to a work-program which doubly emphasizes your essentially different requirements for rest and relaxation to relieve tedium.

You, who take to people like a duck to water, are for the most part isolated from group association by the terms of your homemaker job; whereas your husband, a more passive, diffident, withdrawn personality, is obliged to be constantly on the move in the midst of crowds, when fulfilling the requirements of his occupation.

One's Out-Going, The Other Passive

IN CONSEQUENCE, you experience intensified craving to break out as often as possible from your solitary routine; and your husband, to the contrary, puts special premium on comparatively motionless peace and privacy when at leisure, wanting only your company to take the edge off solitude.

In my opinion, your impulse to circulate is natural and wholesome; doubtless a self-preservative necessity to one of your temperament. Thus on that score you do have "rights," and you are appropriately exercising them when, despite your husband's objections, you seek a reasonable amount of your friends' society.

Certainly your husband isn't justified in having tantrums because you keep friendships in repair without his participation. On the other hand, it doesn't make sense to hector him about his reclusive behavior. Mutual justice in the circumstances requires that each sympathetically respect, or philosophically accept, the other's social gait, without becoming a slave to it. M. H.

Read Mary Haworth's column tomorrow for her advice to a young wife whose husband wants a divorce on the eve of their first child's arrival.

Your Questions On Homemaking

1. Recently in a restaurant I ate roasted duck. The skin was very brown, crisp and delicious. Can I get this result at home?

2. My cook's apple pie crust is so wet and soft that it can not be taken from the pan except piece by piece and that is difficult. She used cold cooked apples. I like the kind that can be eaten from your hand if you desire. V. H.

1. Brown and crisp skin on a roast duck can be achieved by frequent basting of the fowl with the drippings in the bottom of the pan. Place the duck on a rack in an uncovered roaster and set the oven at 375 degrees F. Until the drippings accumulate, make a solution of 1 cup hot water, ½ teaspoon salt and a little butter. Pour this over the duck after it has been in the oven 10 to 15 minutes. As the duck roasts, dip this solution, which will become more and more brown and flavorful, over the duck every 10 to 15 minutes. To crisp the skin, set the oven to 400 degrees F. for the last 15 minutes of baking time and stop basting.

2. Crisp pie crust is achieved by using only a minimum of water when mixing the crust. This can best be done by setting your water faucet to just drip and then holding the bowl under the faucet, leaving one hand free to stir constantly. As soon as the dough "cleans the bowl," that is, forms in a ball, add no more water. Usually you can stop a little before it completely cleans the bowl and work the crust into a ball with the fingers. And that is fine, for the less water used to mix the crust, the flakier, crisper it will be.

For the filling, I would suggest using only raw sliced apples for the kind of "eat out of your hand pie" you wish. Apples cooked before placing in the crust would of necessity be juicier than raw ones and this juice would soak the crust before the oven heat had a chance to set it. Of course, do not add water to the pie made with raw apples.

Indelible Ink

The first time the young son or daughter discovers an indelible pencil mother can expect a bit of trouble. However, the stains will come out by soaking the spot in ammonia and water solution, fairly strong. The process may have to be repeated a few times but this will bring the stains out of white materials.

Nice going, Petunia! If you haven't a ring mold, or need an extra one, you can make a good substitute by setting an oiled jelly glass in the center of a casserole dish.

No Chances

If the child appears ill or feverish, undress her and get her into bed immediately. Don't allow her to run around the house until the doctor comes as she is only running into further danger and using more of her reserve strength. Keep her warm and as quiet as possible until further orders from your physician.

A Homemade Cedar Chest

The real cedar chest is quite expensive, but by following this method a box of any soft wood can be made into a splendid one. Fasten the cover of the box on with hinges, stain the outside the desirable color; brush the inside with oil of cedar and keep a bag of cedar chips inside to insure its good qualities.

Double checking the year's program for Daughters of Colonial Wars are national, State and District officers (left to right) Mrs. Ryland C. Bryant, honorary State president; Mrs. Benjamin F. Buckley of Lexington, Ky., national president, and Mrs. Arthur C. Houghton, District president. Occasion was a luncheon yesterday following a DCW board meeting in the Mayflower Hotel

National Leaders of Colonial Daughters Meet Here to Plan Season's Program

TWENTY-TWO national officers and State presidents of the Daughters of Colonial Wars gathered here from all parts of the country yesterday to map out the organization's fall program.

At the business session held in the Mayflower Hotel, the delegates voted $1500 for rehabilitation of war wounded in the Percy ones Hospital at Battle Creek, Mich. Following a luncheon, the District Society of DCW entertained the national president, Mrs. Benjamin F. Buckley and other officers, at a tea at Wild Acres, the home of Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor.

Mrs. Grosvenor related the story of the invention and development of the telephone by her father, Dr. Alexander Graham Bell. For the occasion, she donned one of her mother's trousseau gowns which Mrs. Bell wore while on her wedding trip to London.

In a special ceremony, Mrs. Ryland C. Bryant, honorary State president, presented copies of "Colonial Services of Maryland, Vol. 1" to Mrs. Mary Walsh, librarian of the DAR library, and to George L. Radcliffe, president of the Maryland Historical Society. The book is an historical compilation covering the period 1734 to 1775. It was a project of the past administration, directed by Mrs. Eugene Lewis Culver and Mrs. Oscar Linwood Layton.

The afternoon also was marked by the presentation of DCW flag to Mrs. Arthur C. Houghton, president of the District Society, for use by the local organization.

Jewish Women Launch Drive

The Jewish Community Council of Washington yesterday launched its fall campaign for the Joint Distribution Committee of Supplies for Overseas Survivors, according to Mrs. Charles A. Goldsmith, honorary chairman, and Mrs. Nat H. Levy, metropolitan chairman. Quota for this area is 50,000 pounds.

Asking "how much is needed," rather than "how much can we raise," the S O S chairman of more than 20 local women's organizations pledged themselves to collect their share of the nati. al goal of six million pounds of canned food, clothing, medical supplies, layettes, books, to.s, household go"s and comfort items, necessary to ease the mental and physical suffering of 250,000 Jews in Europe's DP camps and to aid the million and more survivors who are seeking to rebuild their shattered lives in Europe.

Mrs. Levy announced the appointment of the following vice chairmen: Mrs. I. S. Turover, food collection; Mrs. Sara Feldman, clothing collection; Mrs. Frank H. Goldberg, with Mrs. Harry Silverstone as cochairman, sewing center and layette supplies. Mrs. Louis R. Fields will be responsible for cutting.

Asks Better Understanding Among World's Women

Mrs. Ruth Keslo Renfrow, chairman of the General Federation of Women's Clubs' project, "Peace Plans Practical," called on American women to insure international peace by promoting better understanding with the women of Europe, in an address at the National Democratic Women's Club luncheon yesterday. Most important task, Mrs. Renfrow said, is to undo the distorted picture European women have of the American housewife from wartime Nazi propaganda and American movies.

Mrs. Renfrow, who visited Greece, Swtizerland, the Netherlands, France, Italy and Czechoslovakia, assured the club women that foregin relief sent by the Federation and other groups was reaching its proper channels and is deeply appreciated by the peoples of those countries.

Printers Win Pay Increase In Baltimore

Baltimore, Oct. 13 (AP)—Despite an eleventh-hour wage increase for members of the International Typographical Union by Baltimore print shops, the National Labor Relations Board today planned to "go ahead" with a hearing tomorrow in which the union is charged with "failure to bargain collectively in good faith."

"We're going ahead with the hearing," said Ross M. Madden, director of NLRB's fifth regional office here, who issued the complaint September 23. It is the first time a union has been charged with unfair labor practices under the Taft-Hartley law.

Sidney T. Barban, NLRB field staff member, will present the Government's case tomorrow (10:30 a. m, EST), Madden said.

F. E. Street, executive secretary of the Graphic Arts League—bargaining agent for 22 print shops—announced an interim wage increase of 25 cents an hour, effective today and retroactive to the first October payroll, pending a new agreement between the league and Baltimore Typogrpahical Union, No. 12.

About 300 printers have been working without a contract since the 1947 contract expired September 30.

"Our employees should not be penalized because of the ITU's policy," Street said in announcing the interim raise, which brings the basic scale to $1.75 an hour.

Street said the league would grant an additional 15 cents and "agree to the union's economic demands provided the union will agree to and sign a complete contract consisting of the essential elements of the expired contract and excluding the illegal clauses—namely, closed shop and struck work."

The league had previously offered to withdraw its "unfair practices" charges—basis for the NLRB complaint—if the union would withdraw the "closed shop" clause.

Madden said today the NLRB might withdraw its complaint and cancel tomorrow's hearing of union and employers "come to a complete agreement, depending on the terms of the contract."

However, contract talks remained deadlocked tonight, and spokesmen indicated there was little chance of a last minute agreement.

Constitutionality Test Hinted In Labor Act Boycott Suit

Chattanooga, Tenn., Oct. 13 (AP). A Federal court hearing on the secondary boycott sections of the Taft-Hartley Act was recessed for 10 days today after National Labor Relations Board and union attorneys raised points that may result in a constitutionality test of part of the law.

Judge Leslie R. Darr gave attorneys until October 23 to file briefs after arguments were concluded on a union motion for dismissal of a board petition for an injunction against Local 74 of the International Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners (AFL). . .

The board is seeking to enjoin the local and Business Agent Jack Henderson from any secondary boycott involving the Watson Specialty Co., which operates 23 stores in 5 States.

The board charged that union members left a jog August 21 where nonunion employes of Watson's were installing linoleum and imitation tile.

Charles H. Tuttle of New York, senior counselor for the union, argued that the secondary boycott section of the law did not become effective until August 22—one day after the walkout—and that to force the union members to return to work would "impose involuntary servitude" in violation of the Constitution.

In his brief asking dismissal of the application, Tuttle said the boycott section is "clearly unconstitutional" if it makes "an unfair labor practice a refusal of union men to work on the same job side by side and in cooperation with non-union men, particularly where the latter's work falls within the jurisdiction and craft of the union men."

Rives Hilton of Washington, attorney for the board, asserted that even though the August incident occurred before the law became effective the company is still handicapped by "the present outstanding order."

He contended the men were ordered off their jobs by Henderson. Tuttle said Henderson merely informed them their constitution would not allow them to work with non-union workers.

The board, Hilton said, is seeking an injunction so that the "outstanding order" will be revoked. He asserted no labor union would work for people with whom Watson's contracts for labor.

Lens 'Zooms' You Into a Closeup

By Richard L. Coe

LITTLE SO ENCHANTS the movie-makers as word-making. Their advertisements always make beguiling, if wildly inaccurate, reading.

Only last week, as part of a New York stunt to promote Cecil B. DeMille's "Unconquered," it took an M-G-M man—Ernie Emerling of Loew's—to think up a word for Paramount. As codiscoverer, we suppose the right word would be, he got half a thousand silver dollars for dreaming up "Paramonumental."

Now comes "Zoomar."

Zoomar does just what it says. It zooms. It's a camera lens that looks at any large space and then zooms down to focus on a particular minute spot. All done with a twist of the cameraman's wrist.

This, to be sure, is an old trick of the movies. Cameras "dolly" from a distance down to a fixed point, but it has required cumbersome contraptions, to pull the trick. The "Zoomar" lens does it all now.

Paramount newsreels of the World Series (from the fourth game to the windup) employ the Zoomar lens for the first time and the result is mighty fascinating. From the camera perch the Paramount newsman zooms you down to the field while Cookie Lavagetto grips his bat on that pinch double. You shift to his face, too, a perfectly focused closeup of a player tensed for the ball.

There are some other neat closeups in this one—Joe Di Maggio's fingers selecting his bat, outfielders scrambling to get under the ball.

At the Circle and Atlas

Unfortunately, you can only see this newsreel at two local houses—the Circle and the Atlas. Paramount Newsreel hasn't had a downtown home since Pathe became the property of Warner Brothers. This is really too bad, for those shots of the series are the best of the lot.

Zoomar is the invention of Dr. Frank G. Back. It's an infinitely complex series of lenses, so delicately put together that the camera men who've used it breath a sigh of relief once the assignment is over. A quick drop would ruin the thing. Paramount bought the first one (for $12,500) and the other companies probably will be along in the field shortly.

But by being first in the field, Paramount should be coming up with some swell football shots within the next few weeks. Other good events, too, should come along which will benefit from the properly focused closeups (think, for instance, of the battle scenes this might have taken). Too bad, so few local houses show Paramount news at the moment.

So there's a new word for you, something to add to those endless credits: "Closeups by Zoomar."

ESTHER WILLIAMS is bound for the Capitol for a day of personal appearances. Our informant says nothing about erecting a swimming pool on the Capitol stage, which seems almost like impertinence. The lady's visit coincides with the opening of "This Time for Keeps," her latest Technicolormusicalswim." Esther worked so hard on an underwater ballet for this one that she's only just recovered from a resultant ear injury. E-Day at the Capitol will be Thursday the 23d, which, come to think of it, is A-Day at the Palace. A for Amber.

ANOTHER Government department is about to be honored with a movie—the crime detection office of the Post Office Department. RKO-Radio has obtained Inspector Judge Wood of the department to act as technical adviser in a story based on cases solved by the department. Richard Landau and Geoffrey Homes are writing the screenplay, which is now called "File No. 342." Will they cook up a new title?

"POWER Behind the Nation," the film sponsored by Eric Johnston and the Motion Picture Association of America, opens Thursday at the Warner and Ambassador Theaters. This is the short designed "to focus national attention on increased production as the road to recover." All the Johnston Office shorts' proceeds will be turned over to charity, first to benefit being the Damon Runyon Memorial Fund, the national cancer research project, which has been guaranteed a minimum of $50,000 from "Power Behind the Nation."

TOMORROW: Richard L. Coe reviews "Les Enfants du Paradis" ("The Children of Paradise"), the French film which opens at a gala benefit tonight at the Little.

ANNIE GETS HER GUN: Yup, it is Annie, too—Ann Sothern, under a black wig, in her latest Maisie role opening on the Capitol screen Thursday in "Undercover Maisie." Like Lucille Ball, who's there now, she's playing a detective. Gene Krupa brings his band to top the stage bill

Democrats Launch Alexandria Drive To 'Get Out Vote'

To combat Republican opposition in the election of State legislative delegates November 4, the Alexandria Democratic Committee has launched a "get out the vote" campaign.

In an effort to assure a record vote for State Senator Andrew W. Clarke, candidate for reelection, and Armistead L. Boothe, nominee to the State House of Delegates, the committee yesterday mapped a three-point program to encourage ballots. It called on Alexandrians to (1) notify their ward chairmen of their views on national, State and local issues; (2) to discuss these issues with friends and neighbors and (3) to assist neighbors in voting on election day.

Ward chairmen named to direct the drive are Capt. George H. Evans and Richard M. Wright, First Ward; Talbot Sinclair and Arthur F. Campbell, Second; Charles Sherwood and C. Raymond Hellmuth, Third; Mrs. Margaret F. Bailey and Vernon Dyson, Fourth; John T. Worthington and Gilbert J. Cox, Fifth, and Miss Camille DeLane and George Boteler, Sixth.

Vishinsky Scolds Diplomats Of 3 Satellite Countries

By Drew Pearson

All is not serene behind the iron curtain. In fact, quite a battle between satellite diplomats and Comrade Vishinsky was staged recently on—of all places—the palatial Long Island estate of the late J. Pierpont Margan. Probably the Wall Street banker would turn over in his grave if he knew that secret Communist strategy was now being debated at his one-time summer home near Glen Cove, but to the J. P. Morgan estate, now owned by the Soviet government, hulking Andrei Vishinsky last week invited Czech Foreign Minister Jan Masaryk, Polish Delegate Oscar Lange and Yugoslav Ambassador Sava N. Kosanovic, together with several of their staffs.

Vishinsky

Actually, it was Czech Foreign Minister Masaryk, who grew up in the U. S. A. and in London, who asked Vishinsky to call the meeting, because he and the other satellites were worried over Vishinsky's fiery American blasts.

Dr. Lange, who deserted his American citizenship, plus a professorship at the University of Chicago to be Polish Ambassador, joined with Masaryk and the Yugoslav in reminding Vishinsky that all three countries were in the middle of difficult economic negotiations with the United States—negotiations aimed to help their war-stricken countries. These talks, they said, were not helped by Vishinsky's "warmongering" tirades which they described as inaccurate, in poor taste and alienating large sections of American opinion.

This advice from his satellite colleagues sparked the grizzly haired Soviet prosecutor into a towering rage. Using words unprintable in a family newspaper, he lashed back at his critics as if they were the seven Russian generals whom he convicted of treason and had shot before the war.

Heads to Roll, Vishinsky?

The Polish, Czech and Yugoslav delegates were guilty of appeasing Wall Street, stormed Vishinsky. They must shake the dust of Wall Street from their feet and take an active stand behind Russia. Russia had been forced to carry the entire European offensive, he complained, because the Socialists and Sobloc were squeamish, timid and afraid to face realities.

Much more than mere American public opinion was at stake, fumed the uncomradelike comrade; namely, the working-class movement of Europe, which now was paralyzed by left-wing satellite fear to take the offensive.

"Russia is not afraid to take the lead," was a rough translation of Vishinsky's complaint. "We are the Jacobins of the world situation. We are not afraid to go to the fore. You are merely hangers-on."

The reference to the Jacobins of the French Revolution prompted one of Vishinsky's targets to ask:

"And when, Mr. Vishinsky, can we hangers-on expect our heads to roll?"

As abruptly as he started, Vishinsky stopped. One of the Yugoslavs present then asked how this country should vote on the question of Palestine.

"Why don't you think for yourselves?" the Vice Commissar shot back.

This, of course, is exactly what the satellite nations would like to do. But when he was asked what stand Russia would take on Palestine, Vishinsky was evasive. He would not commit himself.

All of which convinced his satellite listeners that Vishinsky had not yet received instructions from Moscow ordering him how to vote on Palestine, and that was why he gave them no instructions.

Vishinsky, of course, never dreamed that word of his dressing-down would leak beyond the iron curtain. But it did.

Merry-Go-Round

The CIO, now opening its annual convention in Boston, may back-track on its previous demand for return of price control. Reason is that if price control is voted back by a Republican Congress it would be accompanied by vigorous wage controls. CIO officials are skeptical as to how the latter might be administered . . . While President Truman urged American housewives to save food to avoid waste, a certain amount of beef and sardines has been wasting in South Africa, Australia and Portugal due to a shortage of tin plate. The Commerce Department, which handles export licenses for tin, has been bombarded by these three countries for more tin. Meanwhile, the beer industry has been using up thousands of tons of tin plate in canning beer, though ample glass is available.

Husband Held in Shooting

Cumberland, Md., Oct. 13 (AP).—Harry Wagner Griffith, of Leonardtown, Md., was held in the city jail today on an open charge after the shooting of his wife, Mrs. Bertha Mary Griffith, 45, of Cumberland.

Assistant Chief of Police B. Frank Gaffney said John O'Neal, a resident of Cumberland, informed police he saw Griffith shoot his wife twice with a revolver near the Queen City station of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and then walk away. He was arrested later at a hotel.

Mrs. Griffith was reported in "fair" condition at Allegany Hospital. She is suffering from shock and bullet wounds in the left shoulder and wrist. In the scuffle after the shooting O'Neal said Mrs. Griffith obtained the gun and threw it to the railroad tracks.

HERE'S THE WAY TO CURB REDUCIBLE

RUPTURE

With Common Sense Home Plan Endorsed by Thousands

FREE BROCHURE SENT

If you have a rupture, large or small, tear this out and mail at once to Capt. W. A. Collings, Inc., Box 56-C, Watertown, N. Y., for Free Brochure and full particulars of a remarkable modernized Plan for reducible rupture control that thousands report has brought them quick relief and a new found joy of ease, comfort and freedom in all their occupations of work and pleasure. If your rupture is still reducible (can be put back) you should not fail to try this in your own home without delay. It is adaptable to men with single or double rupture, recent and of long standing, small and large. Even big difficult, "hard to hold" ruptures have quickly responded to this superb control. You cannot afford to neglect your rupture. Even if rupture now gives little bother it needs proper care NOW. Give it no chance to become worse. And if your case is bad and everything tried has failed to help, do not despair. Send right away for this Free Brochure. There is no charge or obligation and you may never see this announcement again.

Washington Girl After 90-Foot Fall

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

RECEIVING FIRST AID—Rescuers are shown caring for Miss Mary Murphy, 21, of 4854 MacArthur blvd., after her fall from Crescent Rock, in Shenandoah National Park, to a ledge 90 feet below, on Sunday. Dr. M. J. W. White of Page Memorial Hospital, Luray, Va., where she is a patient, said she suffered a fractured right elbow, dislocated shoulder and multiple scalp lacerations. Her condition was reported as "very good" last night. She was rescued by forest rangers

30 Skeletons Await Study At Tazewell

Tazewell, Va., Oct. 13 (AP).—Arrival of a Virginia Tech archaeologist was awaited today for an explanation of some 30 skeletons, believed those of former Indian inhabitants, which have been discovered in a large cavern near here.

The cavern, reached by descending through a vertical passage on a hilltop overlooked by Fort Witten, was accidentally discovered by a farmhand and was explored yesterday by Samuel Peery and Jeff Higginbottam.

Fort Witten, a former Indian defense outpost, is 3 miles from here.

Higginbottam, owner of the land, said some of the skeletons appear to have been washed from their original positions by rain water entering the mouth of the cave while others indicated they were carefully placed in position, perhaps for burial.

Most of the remains were apparently those of women and children and showed evidence of great age, Higginbottam said.

Mud covering most of the skeletons was found to contain small stone ornaments, bits of pottery and beads.

Books dealing with the early history of the section record the use of the valley below the hill on which Fort Witten and the caves are located as an Indian summer camping around.

Bickley's "History of Tazewell County" records early settlers' knowledge of the presence of Indian bones in caves hereabouts and speculates that they were the remains of extinct tribes.

Chiang's Planes Repulse Assaults Of Chinese Reds

Nanking, Oct. 13 (AP).—The Communists pressed hot assaults today on Tiehling, 40 miles northeast of Mukden, but were driven back each time by low-level bombing and strafing runs of government planes, Nationalist dispatches from Manchuria reported.

Pro-government accounts also said the Communists had been driven out by Yingkow, seaport 100 miles by air southwest of Mukden, and had ben pursued 20 miles to the east.

"I've Found I Can Give Up Dosing!"

"I found a wonderful way to correct constipation due to lack of bulk in the diet. Eating KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN every day gives me the kind of lasting relief I never got from harsh purgatives. So if you are troubled this way, too, start eating KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN." ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to keep you regular naturally or double your money back. Simply eat an ounce every day in milk (or sprinkled over other cereals, or baked in ALL-BRAN muffins)—and drink plenty of water. Order KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN today.

How Dr. Edwards' Helps Folks Who Are Constipated

For over 40 years, Dr. F. M. Edwards, a noted Ohio Doctor, successfully relieved patients bothered by constipation and its headaches, lack of pep, dull eyes, sallow skin, with his famous Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets.

Olive Tablets are purely vegetable. They work gently but oh—so thoroughly! Olive Tablets pep up a sluggish intestinal tract. They act on BOTH upper and lower bowels. Just see if Olive Tablets don't give YOU the most comfortable, satisfactory, more natural-like bowel movements you've ever had! No griping.

Buy Olive Tablets today. At all druggists. Only 15¢, 30¢.

New Trial Ordered in Bank Case

Richmond, Va., Oct. 13 (AP).—The United States Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals late today ordered the Fredericksburg bank case remanded to the Federal District Court here with directions for a new trial "forthwith."

Senior Circuit Judge John J. Parker emphasized that the case should be disposed of as promptly as possible and directed that trial of the case take precedence over any other trial pending in the district.

Addressing defense and Government attorneys, Judge Parker said, "this court expects you, as officers of the court, to cooperate in the speedy disposition of this case." He suggested Government and defense attorneys "confer at once with the senior judge of the district"—Judge Sterling Hutcheson—to make arrangements for prompt retrial of the case.

Defense Attorney Stuart B. Campbell pledged to the Circuit Court judges that defense attorneys would clear their engagement books to insure a speedy retrial.

The Circuit Court ruling followed an opinion last Friday by ZJudge Hutcheson that defendants in the case had been convicted by a jury which was not entirely free of prejudicial influences.

Campbell, representing Delegate Joseph E. Proffitt, Joseph A. Sowers and Kyle M. Weeks, carried the brunt of defense arguments that the remnad should be ordered. United States Attorney Harry H. Holt, jr., argued the case "should be disposed of in the Circuit Court," since that court now has the entire record before it.

Proffitt, Sowers, Weeks and six other defendants charged with misapplication of funds from the Farmers and Merchants State Bank at Fredericksburg were convicted here last spring. Seven appeared.

Va., N. C. Newspaper Circulation Up 66%

Richmond, Va., Oct. 13 (AP).—Net paid circulation of 27 newspapers in Virginia and North Carolina has increaser 66 2/10 per cent in the past 10 years in spite of stiff competition from radio and magazines, D. Tennant Bryan, president and publisher of the Richmond Newspapers, Inc., told the Mid-Atlantic Circulation Managers at their annual meeting today in the Hotel John Marshall.

Newspapers can have more influence for good than any other services including governmental agencies, Bryan asserted.

Tampering Laid To 2 'Engineers' On Norfolk Ferry

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 13 (AP).—The cases of two men, charged with tampering with the machinery of the Norfolk-Portsmouth ferry Fort Lee while it was in midstream, were continued until October 23, in Police Court today.

The men, Lawrence G. Glass, 23, and Carl W. Taylor, 28, both of Portsmouth, described themselves as "Marine engineers," and told police they only wished to see the Fort Lee's engines in operation.

Frry officials said that when discovered in the engine room, the men had the dynamos disconnected.

Glass has an additional charge of assault lodged against him as a result of allegedly attempting to kick Quartermaster John W. Thompson down a hatch when Thompson ordered the pair from below decks.

When police, answering an emergency call, arrived at the Norfolk terminal, they found Glass and Taylor being held by deck hands on the ferry.

Police Training School Opened In Fairfax

The Fairfax County police department last night opened a special eight-week police training school at the Fairfax Elementary School with 15 officers enrolled.

Planned as a training school for new officers and a refresher course for veteran members of the force, the school offers two-hour classes every Monday, Wednesday and Friday night under direction of Sergt. Grafton L. Wells. Instructors include FBI agents, Judges Paul Brown and Harry Carrico of the county courts, Virginia Alcoholic Beverage Control Board agents and members of the State Police Force.

With last night's session devoted to a general introduction of the course, actual classwork will start tomorrow night when Commonwealth's Attorney Hugh Marsh will outline the laws of arrest and seizure.

Student Paper Charges Phelan's Behind Times

Moraga, Calif., Oct. 13 (AP).—A charge that Coach Jim Phelan is teaching the St. Mary's Gaels outmoded football wsa made today in The Collegian, school student publication.

Sports Editor Bob Fitzgerald, author of the article written before St. Mary's loss to Washington Saturday in Seattle, also said that a poorly conditioned St. Mary's line was not cooperating with the backfield, which boasts Herman Wedemeyer of Honolulu as its mainspring. St. Mary's has won two and lost two.

Salesmen Scoff, But Shopper Continues Quest

Mrs. Marine N. Duncan of 835 Rittenhouse st. nw. is still searching for a pair of sandals with closed toes and heels.

She's been making the rounds of our local shoe stores, sparked by that grim determination which distinguishes the woman who knows what she wants.

Salesmen try to discourage her with "Lady, there hasn't been a strap shoe made with a closed heel in seven years."

But Mrs. Duncan isn't taken in by that kind of talk, because about two months ago Garfinckel's advertised just the sandal she was looking for. But she got there after they were sold out.

So the contest between Mrs. Duncan and the shoe salesmen continues—and if I were a betting man I'd let you have the salesmen and give you 10 points.

LABOR PROBLEM

What's this, what's this? My Greenwich pkwy. agents tell me that every few weeks there's a new driver on the D4-MacArthur blvd. express bus.

The way I get the story, many of the passengers ask to be let off at unscheduled stops; the driver points out that this is contrary to regulations; there's a fuss; and pretty soon the driver asks to be shifted to a different run. The next driver goes through the same routine.

Is it true? What's the story?

HOW TRUE

Hazel Martin of 757 Quebec pl. nw. must have had my "Pet Peeves" in mind when she sent along the lines below. Try them to the tune of "Smiles."

There are folks who make me weary,
There are folks who make me sigh,
But the ones who really try my patience
Are the ones that gripe and mope and cry.
Nothing ever, ever, ever suits them;
All the world seems dark and always drear;
So they moan about the world in general,
And the next world, too, I fear.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Nine-month-old puppy needs a large yard or farm plus a master between 10 and 15 years of age." (Columbia 3335.)

LADY KILLER

A prominent District official has a handsome clerk who is constantly getting phone calls from his girl friends.

Even on Saturday, when the clerk doesn't work, the calls keep coming in. So the official decided to make inquiry.

"If these girls know you so well," he reasoned, "how come they don't know you're off on Saturday?"

"I don't know, sir," grinned the clerk, "maybe they're newcomers."

(To identify the principals in the story, ask anybody who works at the District Building. The story is all over the place.)

EXPLANATION

Bill Popham of Edgewater, Md., says his pet peeve concerns Monday comic strips.

He notices that the first panel or two on Monday usually repeats action depicted on Sunday.

Here's the reason for that, Bill: The artist knows that his strip is being run by hundreds of papers, some of which are not published on Sunday (and therefore can't carry his Sunday output).

Therefore, to preserve the continuity for the readers of these papers, he has to bring them up to date in his opening panels on Monday. Ketch?

SNAP JUDGMENT

For a college girl, she certainly had a lot of trouble naming the 48 States.

She wasn't sure whether or not Florida is in the Union, and Maine also gave her a lot of trouble.

The other girls marked her down as an intellectual square for a few days—until they found out that she'd just come over here from her native France. Then they marveled at her flawless English.

In Washington, one never knows—does one?

SUMMER DAZE

I've just checked back upon the cost
Of my two-week vacation.
The name of that high priced resort?
It should have been Inn-Flation.

Russian Sables Arouse a Problem

NEW YORK.—The Princess of Iran visited a furrier in New York and ordered two Russian sable coats. The Princess brought enough sable skins for the coats.

The furrier took her measurements and the Princess selected the style she considered appropriate.

Some of the furrier's employes objected to making these coats. Their spokesman called upon him and recited their complaints: That the sable skins were presented to the Princess' family by Stalin—as a preliminary to an Iranian-Soviet agreement which never was consummated—and that the workers therefore would not collaborate in producing a coat made of skins obtained under such pretext. The furrier insists that he had contracted to deliver the coats, and that if he has to work on them himself, union or no union, he'll deliver.

SOCIAL NOTES: Foreign Minister Bidault of France was scheduled to address the Overseas Press Club yesterday. He arrived late, and apologized for his tardiness. "The only people who are allowed to be late," said Bidault, "are politicians and beautiful women."

TRAVEL DEPARTMENT: "Chris" Christiansen, editor of Beaverbrook's London Daily Express, is in New York, preparatory to a cross-country tour. Christiansen was in the Barberry room last night, where he confided that he hadn't canceled his subscriptions to the Express and the Times for the period of his absence. "Not that I'll read them when I get back," he explained. "It's just that I need the paper so that I can light the fire at home all winter."

DIPLOMACY DEPARTMENT: Christiansen tells the story of those months in 1944 when Turkey was wavering under German pressure to enter the war on the side of the Nazis. An emissary was sent to Winston Churchill, who was asked to send a message to the Turkish government to win them to the side of the Allied nations. "I'll make my message a brief one," said Churchill. "It will be something like this: 'Turkey—Christmas Day is coming.'"

DRAMA DEPARTMENT: Marie McDonald, whose new picture, "Living in a Big Way," opens in New York at Loew's State, saw a performance of "Finian's Rainbow" last night. During the intermission she met Ralph Bellamy, who asked her: "What are you doing here?" . . . "I'm on my honeymoon," said Miss McDonald. . . . "So am I," replied Bellamy. . . . This was the dialogue from Noel Coward's "Private Lives," in which they had both appeared in Detroit . . . "'Private Lives' aside," Miss McDonald told him, "I really AM on my honeymoon. Meet my husband, Harry Karl." . . . Miss McDonald, incidentally, was suspended by MGM this week, for taking an unauthorized honeymoon trip.

NEWS DEPARTMENT: Henry J. Kaiser will sponsor a news commentary and entertainment show over Mutual . . . $25,000 of the embezzled $800,000 in the Mergenthaler case went into the backing of a gambling joint at a hotel in Highmount, N. Y. An 8th ave. restaurateur fronted the joint.

The AFL's executive council is recommending to the convention a public relations radio campaign be instituted. Morris Novik, who managed the AFL's campaign against the Taft-Hartley bill, has been invited to attend the convention and is en route there.
